NATIONAL MARINE FISHERIES SERVICE SOUTHWEST REGIONAL OFFICE
UPDATE ON LEGAL AND REGULATORY ACTIVITIES

Billfish Conservation Act (BCA)

The Billfish Conservation Act of 2012 (BCA), was signed into law on October 5, 2012. Section 4(a) of the Act prohibits any person from offering billfish or billfish products for sale, selling them, or having custody, control, or possession of them for purposes of offering them for sale. It treats violations of the Act as violations of the Magnuson-Stevens Fishery Conservation and Management Act (MSA). Section 4(c) of the BCA exempts billfish caught by U.S. fishing vessels and landed in Hawaii or Pacific Insular Areas (as defined under the MSA) from the general prohibitions on sale and custody with the intent to sell. It also exempts billfish landed by foreign vessels in the Pacific Insular Areas and exported to markets outside the U.S. or retained within Hawaii and the Pacific Insular Areas for local consumption. Recreational fishermen may possess, but not sell, billfish subject to limits imposed by existing state and Federal regulations.

The BCA defines "billfish" as any of the following: (1) blue marlin; (2) striped marlin; (3) black marlin; (4) sailfish; (5) shortbill spearfish; (6) white marlin; (7) roundscale spearfish; (8) Mediterranean spearfish; or (9) longbill spearfish. It exempts swordfish from the definition of billfish.

NMFS will provide public notice of the BCA's restrictions on the possession and sale of billfish and will seek initial public comment on implementation of the BCA through an advanced notice of proposed rulemaking, expected to be published in February 2013. Based on comments received, NMFS will consider addressing BCA implementation issues through a proposed and final rulemaking which may include a requirement that billfish sold/transported in the United States be supported by paperwork evidencing that it was harvested by U.S. vessels and landed into Hawaii or a U.S. Pacific Island.

Shark Conservation Act of 2010 (SCA)

NMFS is undertaking rule writing to implement the domestic provisions of the SCA which was enacted on January 4, 2011 (Pub. L. 111–348). A proposed rule has been drafted and is undergoing internal review with publication in the Federal Register scheduled to occur in 2013.

In regards to the international provisions of the SCA, NMFS published a final rule in the Federal Register on January 16, 2013 (78 FR 3338) that sets forth identification and certification procedures to implement provisions of the SCA which amended the High Seas Driftnet Fishing Moratorium Protection Act (Moratorium Protection Act), to address shark conservation in areas beyond any national jurisdiction. This action also amends the definition of illegal, unreported, or unregulated (IUU) fishing for purposes of the Moratorium Protection Act. On July 10, 2012, NOAA published a proposed rule establishing identification and certification procedures to implement the international provisions of the SCA. This rule also proposed changes to the definition of IUU fishing for purposes of the Moratorium Protection Act (see 50 CFR 300.201). The background information on this action was published in the proposed rule (77 FR 40553) on July 10, 2012 and is not repeated here. Briefly, under these regulations, in addition to identifying nations based on IUU fishing or bycatch of PLMRs, NMFS will identify a foreign nation in a biennial report to Congress if fishing vessels of that nation have been engaged during the preceding calendar year in fishing activities or practices in waters beyond any national jurisdiction that target or incidentally catch sharks and the nation has not adopted a regulatory program for the conservation of sharks. Such conservation measures must be comparable to those of the United States, taking into account different conditions. No nations were identified for shark catch on the high seas, due primarily to the restrictive timeframes and other limitations in the statute. A link to the 2013 Congressional Report is provided below.

Pacific Bluefin Tuna Final Rulemaking (IATTC Resolution C-12-09 Conservation of Bluefin Tuna)

The National Marine Fisheries Service (NMFS) proposed regulations (77 FR 73969) under the Tuna Conventions Act to implement Resolution C-12-09 of the Inter-American Tropical Tuna Commission (IATTC) that would establish limits on commercial retention of bluefin tuna by U.S. fishing vessels operating in the Eastern Pacific Ocean in 2012 and 2013. Under the rule, the U.S. commercial fleet is guaranteed a minimum of 500 metric tons of bluefin tuna. Specifically: commercial retention of bluefin tuna by U.S. fishing vessels would be required to stop when the international quota is reached, except that if the U.S. fleet has harvested less than 500 metric tons at the time the international quota is reached the closure would become effective only when the U.S. commercial harvest reaches 500 metric tons. This action is necessary for the United States to satisfy its obligations as a member of the IATTC and to reduce overfishing of the stock. A public hearing was held January 11, 2012 with five constituents participating. All comments will be addressed in the Final Rule which is expected to publish in the Federal Register during late spring 2013.

Implementation of IATTC Resolution C-04-06 on Vessel Monitoring Systems

NMFS Southwest Region (SWR) previously reported that IATTC Resolution C-04-06 requires that parties with tuna-fishing vessels 24 meters or more in length establish a satellite-based vessel monitoring system (VMS). NMFS SWR had planned to wait for final rulemaking on the High Seas Fishing Compliance Act (HSFCA) revised regulations before moving forward on implementing Resolution C-04-06. However progress on the HSFCA rulemaking has slowed, thus the SWR requests that the Council add to a future agenda discussion regarding the mechanism by which implementation of this Resolution would occur. Implementation of Resolution C-04-06 could occur one of two ways: under the Tuna Conventions Act of 1950 or under the Magnuson-Stevens Act through the Council process by regulation under the HMS Plan.

Background

IATTC Resolution C-04-06 will affect all vessels authorized by NMFS to fish for tuna in the Eastern Pacific Ocean (EPO) that are 24 meters or greater in length. In 2012, 15 West Coast commercial vessels of this size class landed tuna or tuna-like species. Tables 1 and 2 illustrate the number of West Coast vessels potentially impacted by Resolution C-04-06. Table 1 addresses only the vessels that landed tuna or tuna-like species in the years 2002-2012.

Table 1. Number of U.S. West Coast vessels authorized to fish in the EPO at least 24 meters in length that landed tuna or tuna-like species from 2002 through 2012. The gear types include multi-purpose, troll/jig, and purse seine from the coastal pelagic species fleet.

Year	2002	2003	2004	2005	2006	2007	2008	2009	2010	2011	2012
Number of vessels	11	11	8	7	8	7	6	12	9	11	15

Table 2. Number of U.S. West Coast vessels 24 meters or greater in length currently authorized to fish in the Eastern Pacific Ocean. Purse seine vessels are in the coastal pelagic species (CPS) fleet.

Gear-type	Number of Vessels
Multi-purpose	21
Troll/Jig	9
Purse seine (CPS)	2
Charter	22
TOTAL	54

Some vessels that landed tuna or tuna-like species in the EPO have a Western and Central Pacific Fisheries Commission (WCPFC) Area Endorsement, which require that the vessels have operational VMS prior to receiving the endorsement. Four vessels with WCPFC area endorsements landed tuna or tuna-like species in 2012; seven from 2002 through 2012. Provisions of Resolution C-04-06 are consistent with VMS requirements of WCPO fisheries. Finally, the VMS provisions of IATTC Resolution C-04-06 are also consistent with current VMS requirements in the groundfish fleet.

Implementation of IATTC Resolution C-12-07 on Transshipments

In 2013, SWR will proceed with proposed and final rulemaking via the Tuna Conventions Act to implement IATTC Resolution C-12-07. C-12-07 prohibits at-sea transshipment of tuna, tuna-like species, and sharks, except for the following: troll vessels, pole-and-line vessels, or vessels engaged in transshipment of fresh fish ("tuna or tuna-like species, dressed/gutted, but not further processed or frozen"). Large-scale tuna longline fishing vessels (LSTLFVs), which are defined in the resolution as "all vessels fishing beyond areas of national jurisdiction or beyond CPC-controlled areas and targeting tuna or tuna-like species", and authorized carrier vessels are allowed to transship at sea, providing they follow provisions to monitor LSTLFV transshipments at sea. These monitoring provisions include a record of authorized vessels, operation of VMS on carrier vessels, an observer program for carrier vessels financed by the CPC (IATTC member or cooperating non-member), and reporting requirements. Although West Coast fisheries have not transshipped at sea since 2003, the U.S. is obligated to implement Resolutions adopted by the IATTC.

U.S. Government Sanctions of Mexico

The Magnuson-Stevens Reauthorization Act of 2006, in amending the High Seas Driftnet Fishing Moratorium Protection Act (Moratorium Protection Act), called attention to the need for international cooperation to address fishing activities that have a deleterious effect on sustainable fisheries worldwide. This not only applies to illegal, unreported, and unregulated (IUU) fishing, but to fishing practices that may undermine the sustainability of protected living marine resources (PLMR), such as marine mammals, sea turtles, and seabirds. Identification of nations for bycatch activities may be based only on current activities of fishing vessels of that nation, or on activities in which those vessels have been engaged during the calendar year preceding submission of the biennial report to Congress in January.

In its January 2013 Report to Congress, NMFS identified only one nation, Mexico, for fishing activities involving the bycatch of PLMR, specifically sea turtles reportedly taken as bycatch in a bottom-set gillnet fishery off the Pacific coast of Baja California in 2012 . After learning of the stranding event, NMFS contacted the Government of Mexico to request more information on the event and on Mexico's regulatory program in the gillnet fishery to reduce sea turtle bycatch. From the information NMFS received, the agency determined that the regulations Mexico provided were not comparable to U.S. regulations for bycatch of loggerheads. Therefore, Mexico was identified for PLMR bycatch. If Mexico takes appropriate actions to address its activities within two years of being identified, then it receives a positive certification. If Mexico receives a negative certification, sanctions under the Moratorium Protection Act may be applied, including prohibitions on importation of certain fish and fish products into the United States, denial of port privileges, and other measures, under specified circumstances.

SOUTHWEST FISHERY SCIENCE CENTER REPORT

Trials to catch and tag swordfish with deepset longline gear

In the fall of 2011 and 2012, using NOAA cooperative research funds and funds awarded by Collaborative Fisheries Research West, Southwest Fisheries Science Center (SWFSC) scientists conducted 10-day and 16-day deepset longline cruises off Central and Southern California. The objectives of the cruises were 1) to experiment with targeting swordfish deep during the day below the epipelagic waters where sea turtles live, and 2) to deploy electronic tags on swordfish to examine their fine scale behavior in an area where they overlap with turtles. In collaboration with the fishermen aboard the F.V. Ventura II, the team worked on methods for setting gear deep during the day (>200m). A total of 28 sets were made during the 2 cruises. A range of marketable species were caught including swordfish, tunas and opah, and satellite tags were deployed on swordfish and opah. One common mola and a number of blue sharks were also caught, nearly all of which were released alive. Unfortunately, in 2011, weather restricted most effort to more southern waters, south of Point Conception. In 2012, waters shifted to winter conditions earlier than usual and overall fishing was very poor at that time for the drift gillnet fleet and the experiment. Some funding has been received to continue the experiments during 2013 with the goals of 1) further developing the deep-set fishing approach, 2) better characterizing the potential catch composition, 3) characterizing catch in relation to depth and oceanography including the deep scattering layer, 4) deploying electronic tags on swordfish and other potential target species, and 5) assessing the economic value of the catch. Based on the results to date, the fishing technique shows promise for catching swordfish and other marketable species at depths below the turtle habitat.

Deep-set buoy gear trials in California

Dr. Chugey Sepulveda will provide an update on the progress of recent alternative swordfish gear performance trials conducted by the Pfleger Institute of Environmental Research (PIER) and NOAA Fisheries (SWR). The presentation will be based on data gathered for two consecutive field seasons in which deep-set buoy gear configurations were developed and trialed by both researchers and cooperative fishers in the Southern California Bight[1]. Data will also be presented on the 2012 swordfish research efforts within the Pacific Leatherback Closure Area (PLCA)[2,3]. Progress to date on swordfish tagging within the PLCA and the development of deep-set gear designs for selectively targeting swordfish at depth will be discussed. To date, a total of 15 swordfish have been captured in the Southern California Bight using the deep-set buoy gear configuration. The trials have also successfully avoided any interaction with any bycatch species of concern (e.g., turtles).

Modeling leatherback turtle temporal and spatial use of the PLCA

To investigate the possibility of predicting occurrence and behavior of leatherback turtles in the Pacific Leatherback Turtle Conservation (PLCA) area using satellite telemetry data, SWFSC scientists have been modeling the assumed behavior and occurrence of the tagged turtles in the PLCA using a suite of oceanographic and environmental variables. Satellite telemetry data of leatherback turtles in the PLCA were compiled from 41 individuals. Daily locations of these turtles were estimated using a statistical movement model. The movement model also provided the probability of foraging/transit behavior for each estimated location. Based on the results of a previous study, seven environmental variables were selected to model turtles' behavior using the statistical method of Random Forests and boosted regression trees. The variables in the model are sea-surface temperature, chlorophyll concentrations, latitude, longitude, day-of-the-year, eddy kinetic energy, and depth. Boosted regression trees and Random Forests are non-parametric regression/categorization analytical tools that use multiple predictor variables to build mathematical prediction models for a response variable.

A preliminary analysis indicated that all seven variables were useful in predicting the probability of foraging and that more than 70% of the variability in the dependent variable (probability of possible foraging) can be explained by the models. Seasonality of their behavior was indicated by the importance of the day-of-the-year variable in the prediction model. The output of the models will be used to develop probability surfaces of turtles' behavior for given environmental conditions and to identify the temporal and spatial use of the PLCA by leatherback turtles. This information can be used to identify the sites of greatest leatherback bycatch vulnerability.

A heavy layer of sound-scattering organisms that had been near the surface at night started to descend about 45 minutes before dawn and the swordfish followed it down. Such behavior probably accounts for the "U"-shaped depth curve seen in Figure 5.

Future plans

- Analyze behavior from tagged fish
- Determine capture depth for everything caught
- Conduct additional cruises to obtain more information on:

- 1) species habitat use north of Point Conception
- 2) catch composition
- 3) how to refine fishing methods and
- 4) economics

Highly Migratory Species Advisory Subpanel Report
National Marine Fisheries Service Report

The Highly Migratory Species Advisory Subpanel (HMSAS) reviewed Agenda Item I.1.b, National Marine Fisheries Service (NMFS) Southwest Regional Office Update on Legal and Regulatory Activities, and provides the following comments:

Billfish Conservation Act

The HMSAS would like to remind the Council that the exemption for the Hawaii fishermen to land billfish in Hawaii puts the West Coast fishermen at a disadvantage in harvesting and marketing.

Implementation of Inter-American Tropical Tuna Commission (IATTC) Resolution C-04-06 on Vessel Monitoring Systems (VMS)

On the issue of the IATTC Resolution C-04-06 on Vessel Monitoring Systems, the HMSAS wants to point out that in 2006 when the resolution was agreed upon, the target was the management of the purse seine and longline tuna fisheries. The proposed rulemaking by NMFS is to include a requirement that charter/recreation and troll/jig vessels over 24 meters (78.7 feet) that catch any tunas will need an operational VMS.

The HMSAS requests that the Council advise NMFS to use an open process that includes the Council process to solicit comments during their rulemaking. NMFS should also ask the IATTC Secretariat for documentation on whether other countries require VMS on their charter/recreational or troll/jig vessels, or if the IATTC intended the VMS requirement to apply to charter/recreational or troll/jig vessels over 24 meters that are fishing for tunas.

There are reported problems with subscriptions and compatibility of VMS services. Also, there is the question of Federal financial assistance to vessel owners that are required to have VMS. The HMSAS requests that the Council ask:

- The Highly Migratory Species Management Team (HMSMT) to work with the HMSAS to identify problems with VMS, and
- NMFS (as it continues the rulemaking process) to modify the rule to minimize the difficulties identified by the HMSMT.

SWORDFISH MANAGEMENT REPORT ON POTENTIAL CHANGES TO THE TURTLE CONSERVATION AREA AND TAKE LIMITS

At the March 2012 Council meeting the National Marine Fisheries Service (NMFS) and the Highly Migratory Species Management Team (HMSMT) presented information on bycatch and bycatch mitigation in swordfish fisheries, current research on the distribution of sea turtles and their critical habitat off the west coast, and bycatch estimates for current west coast swordfish fisheries and gear types used elsewhere to target swordfish. This information was intended to allow the Council to consider possible changes to the management of west coast swordfish fisheries.

In response, the Council directed the HMSMT, with input from the HMS Advisory Subpanel, to investigate changes to the closure dates for, and/or the southern boundary of, the Pacific Leatherback Conservation Area (PLCA) in order to enhance fishing opportunity in the California drift gillnet fishery. The Council also requested NMFS to explore the use of take caps for Endangered Species Act- (ESA-) listed sea turtles in the drift gillnet (DGN) fishery to mitigate bycatch impacts. The Council scheduled further consideration of potential changes at the March 2013 meeting.

NMFS has provided a brief report describing the biological opinion for the California drift gillnet fishery currently in preparation, and issuance of a permit pursuant to the Marine Mammal Protection Act authorizing incidental, but not intentional, take of ESA-listed marine mammals (see Agenda Item I.2.b, NMFS Report).

The HMSMT met January 23-25, 2013, in La Jolla, California, to develop a report describing potential options for modifying the PLCA time-area closure (see Agenda Item I.2.b, HMSMT Report). These options focus on opening the area of the PLCA south of Pt. Sur (36°18.5' N. lat.) for part or all of the current closure period, August 15-November 15. The HMSMT Report also describes how sea turtle take caps could be used as a mitigation measure for vessels authorized to fish in this area. This would be similar to management of the Hawaii-based shallow-set pelagic longline fishery where annual limits on the numbers of interactions that occur between fishing vessels and sea turtles have been established. Two implementation options are discussed, issuance by NMFS of an exempted fishing permit for the activity with attached terms and conditions, or making a regulatory change through the biennial management process described in the HMS Fishery Management Plan.

Attachment 1 provides data from the Pacific Fishery Information Network (PacFIN) database on landings and revenue in the DGN fishery by time and area to help inform discussion on the topics discussed in the HMSMT Report.

The Council received written public comment on this action item by the advance deadline for the advance briefing book from the Turtle Island Restoration Network, including a petition signed by 5,450 members of the public; members of the California State Assembly; oceansunfish.org; the California Coastal Commission; the Center for Biological Diversity; Oceana with a petition signed by 36,483 individuals; and private citizens. For the two petitions, the list of signatories is in the online/CD versions of the briefing book only. Written comments are compiled in chronological order under Agenda Item I.2.c, Public Comment.

PACFIN LANDINGS DATA RELEVANT TO PROPOSED PACIFIC LEATHERBACK CONSERVATION AREA MODIFICATION

Kit Dahl
PFMC Staff

Background

This report provides information on landings from the DGN fishery relevant to proposed changes to the Pacific Leatherback Conservation Area (PLCA). The PLCA covers an area extending southwest from Pt. Sur and west to 129° W long. and north to a line at 45° N. The Council is considering options to open the area south of Pt. Sur for part or all of the current August 15-November 15 closure period.

Methods

PacFIN fish ticket data were queried to determine landings and revenue relevant to modifications to the PLCA under consideration. PacFIN is not spatially explicit for catch but does contain data from fish tickets on reported catch areas and port of landing. A GIS layer of California Department of Fish and Wildlife marine reporting blocks was obtained from their website. A second layer was constructed with polygons representing the PLCA areas north and south of Pt. Sur. These layers were queried to determine the fishing blocks that intersect with these PLCA areas (wholly or partially within the areas). Since the catch blocks do not exactly match the PLCA areas using total report landings (or revenue from a reporting block could overestimate the amount of catch from within the PLCA (because some catch within a block could have occurred outside the PLCA). Based on calculations in ArcGIS 47% of the area of the blocks intersecting with the PLCA area south of Pt. Sur is within that PLCA area. If catch were evenly distributed across the reporting blocks then one might conclude that 47% of reported catch from these blocks fell within the PLCA area south of Pt. Sur. Although catch is not evenly distributed spatially, for the purposes of this analysis estimates of the proportion of the area of intersecting blocks either in the PLCA north of Pt. Sur, south of Pt. Sur, or outside the PLCA, were applied to PacFIN catch and revenue data to represent the proportion of catch in each of these three areas.

PacFIN was also queried with respect to the day of the year on which the landing occurred (the fish ticket date) to approximate the time of catch with respect to the PLCA closure period. Obviously, the actual day of catch would be some days earlier depending on trip length but this potential offset cannot be estimated from the available data.

Results

Table 1 shows where catch of swordfish and common thresher shark occurred relative to the PLCA in percent values for periods before and after the PLCA was implemented in 2001. Most catch occurred "outside," which includes fishing blocks outside the PLCA but could also include some landings from inside the PLCA that was not reported by one of the CDFW reporting blocks (such as catch off the Oregon coast). Before the PLCA was implemented 9% of landings (adjusted as described above) was within the PLCA; after implementation this dropped to about 2%.

Table 1. Percent of DGN swordfish and common thresher shark landings in fishing blocks in the PLCA (by area) and outside the PLCA (or not identified by block) before PLCA implementation (1991-2000) and after (2001-2012).

Time Period	PLCA North of Pt. Sur	PLCA South of Pt Sur	Other Areas
2001-2011	1.2%	0.9%	97.9%
1991-2011	6.2%	1.5%	92.3%

Table 2 shows comparable information just for the PLCA areas. This view shows that about 20% of catch occurred in the area of the PLCA south of Pt. Sur during the entire period, 1991-2012. After PLCA implementation a much higher proportion of catch occurred in this area. This could represent catch during times when the PLCA area is open and areas within intersecting blocks that are outside (to the south) of the area south of Pt. Sur. One explanation could be that vessels are fishing close to the southern boundary during the closure period, because of higher catch rates. Since catch was assigned proportionately based on the percentage of these blocks falling inside the PLCA, catch from the southern PLCA would be over-represented.

Table 2. Percentage of DGN swordfish and common thresher shark landings landings in fishing blocks in the PLCA (by area) before PLCA implementation (1991-2000) and after (2001-2012).

Time Period	PLCA North of Pt. Sur	PLCA South of Pt Sur
1991-2011	80.5%	19.5%

Table 3 shows the distribution of swordfish and common thresher shark from DGN landings before and after PLCA implementation by port group. As one might expect, the fraction of landings from ports adjacent to the PLCA area fell after implementation and rose in ports south of the PLCA. Landings in port groups north of Morro Bay represent a very small fraction of the coastwide total after PLCA implementation, falling from about 41% before implementation to 7% after.

Table 4 shows the fraction of swordfish and common thresher shark landings coming from fishing blocks in the PLCA north and south of Pt. Sur by port group in the period before PLCA implementation. Note that this table does not include landings from outside of the PLCA, which according to Table 1 was about 90% of total landings prior to PLCA implementation. The area south of Pt. Sur was particularly important to vessels landing in Morro Bay, Santa Barbara, and Los Angeles port groups.

Figure 1 shows landings by time periods, focusing on the period from August 15 to November 15, and prior to PLCA implementation (1991-2000). As noted above, the PLCA is closed during this time period. A large fraction of catch occurred during the August 15-November 15 time period subsequently closed by the PLCA. Relative to the proposal, it is also worth noting that catch was higher in the approximately 2-week period at the end of the closure period (November 1-15) compared to the beginning of the period (August 15-31).

Table 5 focuses on the PLCA area south of Pt. Sur showing when landings occurred by the same time periods prior to PLCA implementation. The highest percent occurred September 16-30; November 1-15 was third highest 2-week period for landings. This suggests that a proposal focused on opening the PLCA at the end of the current closure period would provide more benefits than the period at the beginning of the time period.

Table 6 shows landings and revenue by port group from the PLCA area south of Pt. Sur during the time period now closed (August 15-November 15) prior to PLCA implementation. These data suggest that this area was most important for vessels landing in Monterey and Morro Bay. Note that while the landings and revenue data were adjusted as described above, the same adjustment could not be made for vessel counts. Instead these are counts of vessels reporting catch anywhere from blocks within or intersecting the PLCA south area.

Dear Assemblymember Fong,

Thank you for your letter expressing concerns about proposals to modify the Pacific Leatherback Conservation Area (PLCA) for the drift-gillnet swordfish fishery. The boundaries of the PLCA were drawn very conservatively, encompassing approximately 213,000 square miles. When the PLCA was established over 12 years ago, NOAA's National Marine Fisheries Service (NMFS) scientific understanding of Pacific leatherback sea turtle movements was quite elementary. Today, NMFS scientists have considerably advanced their understanding of, among other things, leatherback transit and foraging movements for the segment of the western Pacific population that annually visits the U.S. west coast during late summer through fall[1].

On March 10, the Pacific Fishery Management Council (Council) will be receiving presentations from its advisory bodies, including the Highly Migratory Species Management Team (composed of west coast state and federal fishery managers and NMFS Southwest Fisheries Science Center scientists), regarding the possible modification of the timing and/or the southern boundary of the PLCA. This assignment is consistent with the Magnuson-Stevens Fishery Conservation and Management Act (MSA), which mandates that every fishery management plan assess, specify, and describe likely effects of conservation and management measures on participants in the fishery or fisheries being managed, fishing communities, and participants in neighboring fisheries [MSA Section 303(a)(9)].

When and if the Council feels that changes may be warranted to the PLCA, it would submit its recommendation to NMFS. Before any final decision is made, NMFS is required by law to analyze the impacts of the proposed action (e.g., a consultation under section 7 of the Endangered Species Act) to determine if it would be likely to jeopardize the existence of the western stock of leatherbacks or any other listed species.

As the Council deliberates on this issue, please note that U.S. consumers still place a high premium on North Pacific swordfish, a stock which is considered healthy and currently under-utilized. Unfortunately, the majority of swordfish consumed in the United States is harvested by foreign fleets that most likely do not operate under the same sustainable fishery practices required of U.S. fishermen (including adequate compliance monitoring and enforcement) for reducing marine mammal and sea turtle interactions. Consequently, the impacts of these fisheries that import their products come with a much higher environmental burden and ecological footprint. For these reasons, it is important that the Council process for reviewing the sustainable management of this fishery, as with all fisheries under its jurisdiction, proceed per the established MSA guidelines.

You also mentioned the two sperm whale interactions and I share your concern. My staff is currently preparing a biological opinion to evaluate that event and make recommendations on any additional measures that would minimize the potential for future interactions. I also think it is important to note that the 2010 interactions were the first observed since 1998 in this fishery. The take of protected species in this fishery have been reduced significantly due in large part to mandatory conservation measures imposed by NMFS. These measures included the use of 36 foot net extenders to further lower the nets in the water column thereby reducing the interaction probabilities with marine mammals and the placement of acoustic pingers on the nets to serve as an auditory warning system.

NMFS appreciates your interest in the swordfish fishery. This fishery, like any food production system, undeniably creates environmental impacts. However, the agency is provided statutory tools that allow fisheries to operate while striving to minimize adverse ecosystem impacts. Should the Council forward a recommendation to NMFS, you can be assured that my office will use the best scientific information available to ensure that the future existence of protected species are not jeopardized.

For additional information pertaining to the swordfish fishery please see the enclosed fact sheet as well as the proceedings from a NMFS hosted swordfish workshop found here: http://swr.nmfs.noaa.gov/sfws/proceedings.html.

Sincerely,

Kevin Chu

NOAA FISHERIES

NOAA's National Marine Fisheries Service (NMFS or NOAA Fisheries) is responsible for the management, conservation, and protection of living marine resources and their habitats in the U.S. Exclusive Economic Zone (3 to 200 miles offshore).

Southwest Region

The Southwest Regional Office oversees the U.S. Highly Migratory Species and the Coastal Pelagic Species fisheries off the west coast; as well as protection and management of marine mammals and threatened and endangered marine and anadromous species off California.

Southwest Science Center

The Southwest Fisheries Science Center conducts biological, socio-economic, and oceanographic research; observes and monitors marine species and their environment; and analyzes potential and past impacts of conservation and management measures.

North Pacific Swordfish

Species Information

Stock status: The population of North Pacific swordfish (Xiphias gladius) is healthy, abundant, and is harvested at sustainable levels. The North Pacific swordfish (NP swordfish) stocks are separate from the North Atlantic swordfish stock which was overfished, but has been fully rebuilt since 2009.

Stock structure: NP swordfish are assessed as two stocks. The western central stock area covers most of the N. Pacific with a loose boundary from northern Baja stretching southwest to the equator. The eastern stock area starts south of northern Baja and stretches down to Peru. Limited tagging data suggest that the stocks mix in the California Current.

Life Span and Size: Maximum recorded age and size is over 15 years old and 1400 pounds.

Ecosystem Role: Adult and juvenile swordfish feed at the highest levels of the food web. This means they are not typically prey to other animals.

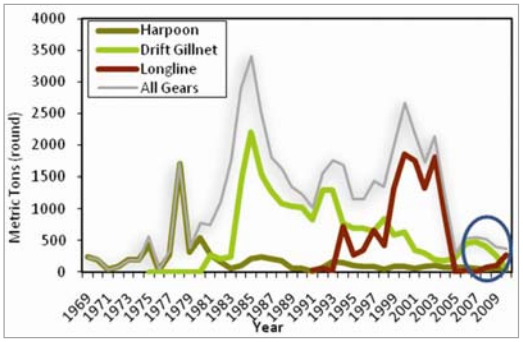

Nutrition: Swordfish is an excellent source of protein, selenium, niacin, and vitamin B_{12} and a good source of zinc. The flesh may contain amounts of methylmercury in excess of the FDA's recommended limit for mothers, mothers-to-be, and young children. People in these groups should limit their consumption.

U.S. West Coast Swordfish Fishery

Catch: A little over half of the U.S. commercial swordfish catch in 2009 was NP swordfish caught by fishermen based in California and Hawaii (the rest was North Atlantic swordfish caught by east coast and Gulf of Mexico fishermen). Foreign fleets catch the majority of NP swordfish; from 1996 to 2005, U.S. fishermen accounted for approximately 21 percent of the mean catch. The west coast fleet harvested only 10 percent of the U.S. catch and that proportion has declined.

Gear: West coast commercial fishermen use drift gillnets and harpoon to harvest NP swordfish, mostly from July to December. Small amounts of NP swordfish are also caught incidentally by west coast fishermen in the deep-set long line pelagic tuna fishery on the high seas.

Landings: Today, west coast NP swordfish landings are roughly less than 400 metric tons (round weight) annually down from 3,400 metric tons in1985. Shallow-set longline gear is used in federal waters off Hawaii and on the high seas, but is prohibited inside federal waters off the west coast. In 2010, approximately 70 percent of NP swordfish landed in California ports were delivered by Hawaii longline vessels which may fish just outside federal waters off California.

California landings by gear type, 1969-2009. The uptick in longline landings circled in blue reflects increased landings made by the Hawaii long line fleet.

Jobs: U.S. swordfish fishing operations support American jobs, not only for fishermen but in related industries including the processing, shipping, retail and restaurant sectors. Port communities where swordfish are landed receive positive economic impacts from fishing activities, including employment opportunities. Consumers of U.S.-caught swordfish enjoy a high-quality product from a fishery which is regulated to meet strict conservation requirements to limit impacts on protected marine mammals and endangered sea turtles.

Interactions with Non-target Species: Harpoon fishing is a highly selective technique for catching swordfish. However, it accounts for very little NP swordfish harvest due to high operating costs. Drift gillnets previously had an unacceptable level of interactions with marine mammals and sea turtles until multiple conservation measures were implemented over a decade ago.

Managing U.S. Fisheries for Sustainability

It's Federal Law: The Magnuson-Stevens Act (MSA) requires federal fisheries to be managed sustainably, considering ecological, economic, and social factors. Furthermore, U.S. fisheries operations must comply with other applicable federal laws including, but not limited to the Endangered Species Act and the Marine Mammal Protection Act. Regulations are designed for factors such as preventing overfishing, protecting habitat, minimizing bycatch and interactions with endangered species and marine mammals, considering the well-being of fishing communities, and ensuring socio-economic benefits to the nation.

Science-based management: The MSA requires the best available science to be used in management decisions. It establishes a strong role for scientific advisors and peer-review of the methods and data used in the management process.

Healthy stock levels: The majority of federally managed stocks and complexes are healthy – of the stocks for which determinations can be made, 86% are NOT subject to overfishing and 79% are NOT overfished. Firm caps on fishing levels are in place for all fisheries to end and prevent overfishing. For overfished stocks, rebuilding plans are in progress or under development.

Minimizing bycatch: Federal U.S. fisheries are managed to prevent and minimize bycatch. This often results in lower allowable harvest than a target species could sustain to ensure protections for other marine animals. To improve the selectivity of harvest practices, NOAA Fisheries researchers continually work with fishermen to develop and test new fishing gear and methods.

Sustaining U.S. fishing: Fishing – in all its forms – is approximately a $72 billion per year business in the U.S. that is vital to the economies and cultural identities of coastal communities. However, many U.S. fishermen and local economies are struggling to adapt to restrictions in fishing opportunities. Some U.S. fisheries face uncertain futures as older fishermen retire and new entrants are lacking.

How do I know if my seafood is sustainable? Visit NOAA's FishWatch.gov for up-to-date information on popular wild caught and farmed seafood, developments in U.S. aquaculture, and efforts to ensure imported seafood comes from safe and legal sources.

U.S. West Coast Swordfish Fishery Management

Avoiding Marine Mammals: To reduce marine mammal interactions, two mandatory gear modifications have been in place the drift gill net fishery since 1997: (1) acoustic pingers to deter marine mammals from the net; and (2) buoy line extenders that lower nets further below the water surface to allow marine mammals to swim over.

Protecting Sea Turtles: To reduce interactions between sea turtles and drift gillnets, two time-area closures were implemented off California in 2001. The Pacific Leatherback Conservation Area (PCLA) closes over 213,000 square miles annually from August 15 to November 15. A separate closure may occur in the Southern California Bight in designated El Nino years when loggerhead turtles may be present. Drift gillnet fishermen are required to undergo training for safe handling and release techniques in the event of a turtle interaction.

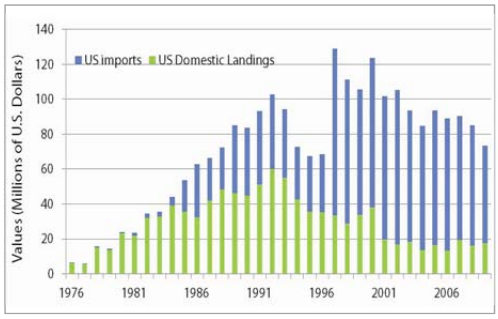

Monitoring: NOAA Fisheries has placed observers in the drift gillnet fishery since 1990. Vessels must carry an observer when one is assigned.

Research: NOAA Fisheries conducts research to support stock assessments and management of NP swordfish. The Pfleger Institute of Environmental Research and NOAA Fisheries are currently conducting fishing trials off California to test alternative gear that may be more effective at selectively harvesting swordfish while minimizing interactions with protected species. To read about this research, visit: http://www.pier.org/deep-set-buoy-gear.php

Sustainable Seafood Comes From Responsible Fisheries

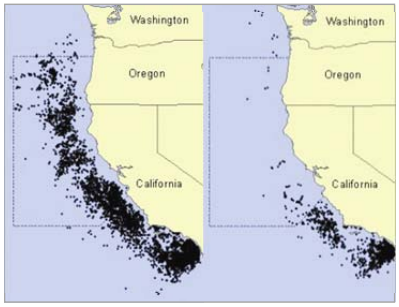

U.S. Seafood Market: The USA surpasses Japan in seafood consumption, second only to China. 91% of seafood consumed in the United States is imported and about half of that is farm-raised.

Foreign Swordfish Fisheries: The majority of swordfish consumed in the United States is harvested by foreign fleets which may not operate under the same or similar sustainable fishery practices that are required of U.S. fishermen, particularly for reducing marine mammal and sea turtle interactions. NOAA Fisheries is conducting an analysis of management regimes in the top five nations which import swordfish into the United States: Ecuador, Chile, Costa Rica, Mexico, and Indonesia (in order of most swordfish imports to least). This study examines the environmental laws, data reporting, enforcement, and compliance of these countries.

U.S. swordfish landing and import values from 1976-2009.

Working Towards Sustainability: The drift gillnet fishery has contracted considerably with vessel numbers, landings, and revenues at historic lows since the implementation of the PLCA and loss of access to the productive fishing grounds therein. NOAA Fisheries hosted a stakeholder workshop to explore these issues. To read the proceedings, visit: http://swr.nmfs.noaa.gov/sfws/index.html

Drift gillnet sets from July 1990-May2001 before the PLCA (left) and drift gillnet sets from August 2001-January 2010, after the closures were established (right).

Current Management Considerations: The Pacific Fishery Management Council is considering potential modifications to the management of the drift gillnet fishery. These include changes to the effective dates for the PLCA closure and/or southern boundary line, to allow for restoration of a small percentage of the fishing effort that occurred before the PLCA closure was established. Any recommended modifications would include mandatory monitoring to maintain or even enhance protected species conservation measures, NMFS will fully analyze any recommendations by the Council.

HIGHLY MIGRATORY SPECIES MANAGEMENT TEAM REPORT
AND USE OF TAKE CAPS TO MANAGE THE DRIFT GILLNET FISHERY

1 Introduction

Given the multiple Highly Migratory Species Management Team (HMSMT) meetings and attendant discussions that have taken place on the topic of this report, the HMSMT would like to provide a brief overview of pertinent events that have led to the alternatives being presented and assessed here. The National Marine Fisheries Service (NMFS), Southwest Region (SWR), convened the U.S. West Coast Swordfish Workshop: Working Towards Sustainability on May 10-11, 2011, in San Diego, California. The workshop focused on two overarching goals: 1) To establish, through information sharing, the current state of knowledge on biological, ecological, and socioeconomic factors of North Pacific swordfish fisheries, and 2) To achieve a common understanding among stakeholders of the current issues facing, and potential future of, the U.S. west coast swordfish fishery. One of the workshop objectives was to understand the implications of a declining U.S. west coast swordfish fishery, including the impact on coastal community jobs, producer benefits, potential transfer effects, and consumer choices. This objective is consistent with the Magnuson-Stevens Fishery Conservation and Management Act (MSA), which mandates that every management action assesses, specifies, and describes likely effects of conservation and management measures on participants in the fishery or fisheries being managed, fishing communities, and participants in neighboring fisheries (MSA Section 303(a)(9)).

After the workshop, the California Department of Fish and Game (CDFG) mailed out a survey to current U.S. west coast swordfish fishermen asking their opinion on a host of topics including ways that potential regulatory relief could help revitalize their declining catch and revenues while still maintaining, or if possible enhancing, protected species conservation measures. Fishermen identified potential modification of the Pacific Leatherback Conservation Area (PLCA) as a key change that could help revitalize the fishery. Based on information gathered at this workshop in combination with the CDFG survey results, NMFS and the HMSMT presented to the Council at their March 2012 meeting information on the west coast swordfish fishery and related protected species impacts under Agenda Item B.3. The purpose of this agenda item was to solicit recommendations from the Council on future management of the fishery.

In response, in March 2012 the Council provided guidance to the HMSMT to investigate changes to the closure dates for, and/or the southern boundary of, the PLCA in order to enhance fishing opportunity in the California drift gillnet (DGN) fishery (Agenda Item B.3). The Council also requested NMFS to explore the use of "hard caps," which the HMSMT interpreted to mean take caps with 100% observer coverage requirement take caps for Endangered Species Act-listed sea turtles in the DGN fishery to mitigate bycatch impacts. (The more common term take cap will be used in the remainder of this report.) The Council scheduled further consideration of potential changes at the March 2013 meeting.

Based on this guidance the HMSMT has identified the proposed action as follows:

> Modify the current Pacific Leatherback Conservation Area time/area closure to ensure the continued viability of the California large mesh swordfish drift gillnet fishery consistent with applicable state and federal laws.

As with other federal actions, the proposal would have to comply with applicable laws, which are summarized in Appendix A.

The following issues and developments are relevant to the current proposal:

- Agenda Item B.3.b, Supplemental HMSMT Report, March 2012, provides a short history of the Hawaii shallow-set longline fishery management and related litigation. Currently, the fishery is managed with annual limits on the numbers of interactions that occur between fishing vessels and sea turtles: 26 leatherback sea turtles, and 34 loggerhead sea turtles. If either limit is determined to have been reached, the Hawaii-based shallow-set longline fishery is immediately closed. When closed, Hawaii longline vessels are prohibited from shallow-set fishing north of the Equator for the remainder of the calendar year. A table with historical interactions by year can be found at the NMFS Pacific Islands Regional Office website. A biological opinion for Amendment 18 was published January 30, 2012, and the final rule was issued October 4, 2012. On November 2, 2012, two environmental organizations, Turtle Island Restoration Network and the Center for Biological Diversity, filed a lawsuit against NMFS and U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service over Amendment 18 and the biological opinions issued by each agency. The suit alleges violations of Federal laws, the MSA, Endangered Species Act (ESA), Administrative Procedure Act, National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA), and Migratory Bird Treaty Act. General Counsel for the Pacific Islands Region is currently reviewing the suit.
- Hawaii vessels seasonally land swordfish in west coast ports. According to PacFIN landings data (queried on January 30, 2013) seven longline vessels landed 168 mt of swordfish in 2012 worth $768,084. This compares to 13 DGN vessels landing 22 mt of swordfish in 2012 worth $184,358. Note that these data must be treated as preliminary because of the lag time between the landing date and when fish ticket data are entered in the PacFIN database. Therefore these figures could be higher once all the fish ticket data are in the database.
- NMFS SWR convened the U.S. West Coast Swordfish Workshop May 10-11, 2011 as described above.
- In March 2006 the Council recommended issuance of an exempted fishing permit (EFP) to allow up to 10 drift DGN vessels to fish in the PLCA subject to full observer coverage and take caps on protected species which would terminate fishing if any of the caps were reached. However, NMFS did not issue the permit. More information is available in Agenda Item B.3.b, Supplemental HMSMT Report, March 2012.
- A regulation designating critical habitat for endangered leatherback sea turtles along the U.S. West Coast became effective on February 25, 2012. Some 41,914 square miles of marine habitat was so designated. The Council provided comments on the proposed rule at the April 2010 meeting (see Agenda Item G.4., Situation Summary). The Council also received a briefing from staff from NMFS's Protected Resources Division at the March 2012 meeting.
- On September 22, 2011, NMFS published a final rule determining that the loggerhead sea turtle (Caretta caretta) is composed of nine distinct population segments (DPSs) that constitute ''species'' that may be listed as threatened or endangered under the ESA. All nine DPS's are listed under the ESA, four DPSs were listed as threatened and five as endangered. The North Pacific DPS, which constitutes the population found occasionally off the U.S. west coast, was listed as endangered. Critical habitat for the North Pacific loggerhead DPS is currently being considered within its range, as required under the ESA for a new designation of an endangered or threatened species.
- The leatherback sea turtles that occur in the U.S. west coast EEZ are from the Western Pacific nesting population, primarily from nesting beaches in Papua Barat, Indonesia. There are numerous nesting sites throughout the region; however, most leatherbacks nest at one of two major areas, the beaches of Jamursba-Medi and Wermon in northwest Papua. The most recently available information on leatherback sea turtle nesting numbers in this area reflects a disturbing decline. Tapilatu et al. in press (2013) estimated that the annual number of nests at Jamursba-

Medi has declined 78.2% over the past 27 years (5.5% annual rate of decline), from 14,522 in 1984 to 1,532 in 2011. The beach at Wermon has been consistently monitored since 2002 and has declined 62.8% from 2,944 nests in 2002 to 1,292 nests in 2011 (11.6% annual rate of decline). Collectively, Tapilatu et al. (in press 2013) estimated that since 1984, these primary western Pacific beaches have experienced a long-term decline in nesting of 5.9% per year.

3 Proposed Options Including Modifications to the Pacific Leatherback Conservation Area, Application of Take Caps, and Implementation Process

3.1 Modification of the Southern Boundary and/or Changes to Closure Dates

The HMSMT followed Council guidance to consider alternatives for modifying the PLCA. Alternatives could be developed from the following types of measures:

- Modify the PLCA southern boundary so that it extends due west from Pt. Sur (36°18.5' N lat.) to the current western boundary at 129° W long.
- Delay the start of the closure period from August 15 to September 1 and/or move up the end of the closure period from November 15 to October 31.
- Form combinations of the above area and time period modifications with the most favorable combinations of low leatherback sea turtle interaction rates and high swordfish catch rates. This modeling strategy for proposal development could also be applied to other alternatives as part of evaluating their impacts.

The HMSMT further discussed the possibility of developing additional alternatives based on scientific considerations which might allow for increased economic opportunity in the west coast U.S. swordfish fishery while satisfying conservation requirements under the ESA and Marine Mammal Protection Act (MMPA). The HMSMT heard reports at their January 2013 meeting by NMFS Southwest Fisheries Science Center (SWFSC) Protected Resources Division (PRD) scientists Tomo Eguchi, on habitat-based modeling, and Alex Curtis, on biological reference points for sea turtles similar in nature to potential biological removal (PBR) used for determining MMPA compliance. Both methodologies were described as under development, and not currently ready for application. The HMSMT acknowledges the work of Drs. Eguchi and Moore and voices its support for continued efforts to develop new tools that could more effectively support an economically vibrant U.S. west coast swordfish fishery while maintaining conservation standards.

3.2 Analytical Methodology for Evaluating the Alternatives

To facilitate consideration of alternatives such as those described above, the HMSMT has developed a framework to structure alternatives, facilitate analysis, and streamline decision making, as explained in the following table and description. The HMSMT plans to provide additional quantitative data about fishing effort, catch, and bycatch in different areas in supplemental Council briefing materials.

Table 1. Description of PLCA alternatives by subperiod and PLCA subzone

Alternative	Subperiod	PLCA Subzone
		South of Pt. Sur	North of Pt. Sur
Status Quo: Current PLCA Closure	August 15 - August 31	Closed	Closed
	September 1 - October 31	Closed	Closed
	November 1 - November 15	Closed	Closed
Alternative 1: Reopen Fishery South of Pt Sur	August 15 - August 31	Open	Closed
	September 1 - October 31	Open	Closed
	November 1 - November 15	Open	Closed
Alternative 2 September 1 Closure	August 15 - August 31	Open	Open
	September 1 - October 31	Closed	Closed
	November 1 - November 15	Closed	Closed
Alternative 3: November 1 Reopening	August 15 - August 31	Closed	Closed
	September 1 - October 31	Closed	Closed
	November 1 - November 15	Open	Open
Alternative 4: Open South of Pt Sur, Closed North of Pt Sur from Sept-Oct	August 15 - August 31	Open	Open
	September 1 - October 31	Open	Closed
	November 1 - November 15	Open	Open

Table 1 encompasses a full range of alternatives based on the Council's March 2012 direction for its HMS advisory bodies to determine if any changes can be made to the closure dates for, or the southern boundary of, the current PLCA closure of the large-mesh DGN fishery from August 15 – November 15 which has been in effect since the 2001 season. The two rightmost columns specify a given alternative through six choices of which time-area combinations to keep closed or reopen to DGN fishing, reducing a decision about modifying the current closure to six steps.

The left column of the table briefly describes each alternative. The next column to the right splits the current closed period into three subperiods: August 15-31, the entire months of September-October, and November 1-15. The two rightmost columns refer to the respective areas inside the PLCA south and north of Pt. Sur, as seen in Figure 1.

The status quo alternative is the current closure, described by continuing the closure in all six time-area combinations.

- Alternative 1, to reopen the fishery south of Pt. Sur, is described by specifying that areas south of Pt. Sur remain open for all three subperiods while areas north of Pt. Sur remain closed. As seen in the map below, the proposed reopening of the southern portion of the PLCA would not permit fishing during the closed period north of the currently open area extending from Pt. Sur southward, but would reopen an area of about 46,000 square miles to the southwest of Pt. Sur which has been seasonally closed since 2001.
- Alternative 2, to delay the closure start date until September 1, would reopen the full PLCA (areas north and south of Pt. Sur) to fishing for the period from August 15-August 31, while the other four time-area combinations remained closed.
- Alternative 3 would reopen the full PLCA to fishing after November 1, while otherwise maintaining the current closure.
- Potential Alternative 4 blends Alternatives 1-3 and serves to illustrate how any other series of six choices of time-area combinations to reopen or not can be used to define additional alternatives. In this case, the closure would remain in force north of Pt. Sur from September 1-October 31, while five other time-area combinations would reopen to DGN effort.

The range of alternatives discussed here is meant to be illustrative and does not exhaust the possibilities. Additional alternatives besides those shown in Table 1 may be formed by other choices of which time-area combinations to reopen or keep closed.

The HMSMT is developing a quantitative analysis based on the framework described here which could be used to inform a decision on a potential PLCA modification, using a related approach to that which was used by NMFS to analyze areas which were proposed as west coast critical habitat for leatherback turtles (77 FR 4170). California Department of Fish and Wildlife (CDFW) logbook data from the period from 1990-2000 will be used to develop low, medium and high effort scenarios for the period when the fishery operated without the closure in effect. Observer records from 1990-2000 will be used to estimate market species catch per unit of effort (CPUE) and nonmarket and protected species bycatch rates relative to the six time-area combinations which comprise the alternatives under consideration. Real revenues data for the drift gillnet fishery during the 1990-2000 period will be used in conjunction with effort data to estimate potential revenues that might result from reopening areas. Effort estimates will be combined with estimated finfish and CPUE to estimate population impacts.

An additive approach will be used to estimate potential population and revenue impacts of the alternatives as the sum of impacts for underlying time-area combinations which comprise them. Estimated impacts for each alternative will be summarized in terms of effort, revenues, finish catch, and protected species takes. Information will be included on which area and time period modifications offer the most favorable combinations of low leatherback sea turtle interaction rates and high swordfish catch rates.

3.3 Application of Take Caps

Take caps establish a limit on the number of turtle interactions that could occur before fishing is prohibited for the remainder of the season. Take caps based on the Incidental Take Statement and enforced by legally-mandated 100% observer coverage have been used in the Hawaii shallow-set longline swordfish fishery since it reopened in 2004, as discussed in the above background information (Section 2) and further in the following section. Take caps could potentially be applied as a precautionary management measure with any change to allow DGN effort in time-area combinations that were closed since 2001.

A related issue to the potential application of take caps is monitoring requirements for implementation. Observers are currently placed on DGN fishing vessels under the authorities of both the MMPA and MSA with a coverage level objective of 20 percent of fishing effort. DGN fishermen who attended the January 2013 HMSMT meeting commented on the burden placed on their fishing operations by the requirement to carry observers, and questioned the reasons for continuing the requirement.

Some drift gillnet vessels are too small to adequately house an observer on overnight trips. Drift gillnet vessels that are deemed unobservable are re-assessed every fishing season. Under the MMPA, fishing vessels may be exempt from observer coverage if NMFS, or a designated contractor providing observer services to NMFS, waives the observer requirement based on a finding that the facilities for housing the observer or for carrying out observer functions are so inadequate or unsafe that the health or safety of the observer or the safe operation of the vessel would be jeopardized (50 CFR 229.7(c)(3)). The MSA states that an observer will not be deployed on, or stay aboard, a vessel that is inadequate for observer deployment due to accommodations or safety issues as described in 50 CFR 600.746(c). Table 2 and Table 3 provide data on unobservable vessels in the DGN fishery in fishing seasons dating back to 2001.

Observers are placed on drift gillnet fishing vessels under the authorities of both the MMPA and MSA. The cost of observer coverage could be a limiting constraint on the use of take caps. A higher percentage of required observer coverage reduces the net operating value of a fishery after considering all costs attributable to placing fishery observers aboard vessels.

Vessel size requirements and potential safety issues, the burden placed on fishermen, and the cost of placing observers on DGN vessels in an era of tightening federal budgets raise concerns about the potential to significantly increase observer coverage from its recent levels. However, some form of monitored conservation limits may be a necessary component of any action to reauthorize effort inside the PLCA during the closed period.

In light of the above discussion, an adaptive approach to include take caps as part of a feasible PLCA modification could include the following:

1) Consider only changing observer coverage requirements on any new effort which is authorized under a regulatory change to authorize currently prohibited DGN fishing effort, noting this follows the approach taken with the 2006 EFP to authorize a limited amount of drift gillnet effort inside the PLCA during the closed period.
2) To avoid prohibitively high ongoing costs of observer coverage, consider a higher initial coverage requirement on any reauthorized fishing effort followed by a reduction towards sustainably lower coverage levels if warranted by information from new observations.
3) Explore the potential for electronic monitoring (EM) to serve as a substitute for observer coverage requirements needed to support the use of take caps.
4) Consider whether a probability-based methodology could be used to support the use of take caps with less than 100% observer coverage.

3.4 Adaptive Management Elements

Adaptive management has been proposed as an alternative to the employment of very conservative management policies (e.g. very restrictive harvest regulations) as a hedge against uncertainty (Hilborn and Walters 2001). The usual justification of extremely conservative policies is to avoid taking conservation risks until better scientific data can be gathered, but this creates a conundrum if harvest regulations eliminate the ability to collect data needed to inform management decisions. Fisheries management in the face of inherent uncertainties is necessarily an adaptive process where decisions and policies developed over time play into the resolution of uncertainties. This discussion is relevant to questions of a potential PLCA modification, as the absence of fishing inside the PLCA since the establishment of the August 15-November 15 closure in 2001 has resulted in the lack of recent DGN fishery-dependent data to provide an empirical basis for managing swordfish effort inside the PLCA during the closed period.

The U.S. Atlantic and Hawaii swordfish fisheries have utilized de facto application of adaptive management policies. The U.S. North Atlantic swordfish fishery, which was regulated in the late 1980s to rebuild the target stock, has subsequently led the way in encouraging adoption of sustainable principles, including support for international harvest reductions and advancing the use of circle hooks and other innovative gear tools and techniques to reduce sea turtle interactions while allowing for sustainable fishing. The U.S. North Atlantic longline and buoy swordfish fishery is currently undergoing an assessment for Marine Stewardship Council sustainability certification.

The Hawaii shallow-set longline fishery, which closed in 2001 due to a lawsuit over the level of loggerhead sea turtle interactions, was reopened in 2004 under requirements to use circle hooks and mackerel bait and 100% observer coverage, with an effort limit of 2,120 sets per season and takes caps of 16 leatherback turtles and 17 loggerhead turtles, which required the season to end if a cap was reached. Several years of experience demonstrated an 89% reduction in the sea turtle interaction rate with little effect on swordfish CPUE. Based on this new information, the set limit was eliminated and the sea turtle caps were increased to allow 26 leatherback and 34 loggerhead interactions, reflecting a higher level of anticipated effort after the take caps were eliminated.

The successful application of adaptive principles to manage the U.S. Atlantic and Hawaii Pacific swordfish fisheries suggests considering whether similar approaches could help move the west coast swordfish fishery towards a more favorable balance between conservation management and economic opportunity. The Council approved an EFP application in 2006, which would have reauthorized fishing inside the PLCA subject to take caps with 100% observer coverage requirements on leatherback turtles and other protected species of concern, had it gone into effect.

3.5 Implementation Options

The HMSMT has identified two ways in which proposed changes to the PLCA could be implemented:

1. The Council recommends that NMFS issue an EFP to authorize a limited trial of fishing
2. The Council proposes a change to current HMS management regulations as part of the next biennial management cycle, which would occur in 2014

Council Operating Procedure 20 describes the process for reviewing EFP applications under the HMS FMP. Applications for EFPs from federal or state agencies must meet the briefing book deadline for the June Council meeting. The Council reviews the application and makes a recommendation to NMFS at their June and September meetings. If the Council so chose, an application could be submitted at the June 2013 meeting. However, at this time no sponsor has been identified for such an EFP. The advantage of implementing the proposal through an EFP is that fishing could be more tightly controlled while information is gathered on the feasibility of opening an area of the PLCA in terms of socioeconomic benefits and environmental impacts. The disadvantage of recommending an EFP is that substantially the same level of analysis (consistent with applicable law) would be required as is the case for a regulatory change. If the EFP trial proved successful and the Council decided that a regulatory change was merited, then this additional process and analysis would be required.

Section 204 of the Magnuson-Stevens Reauthorization Act of 2006 added a new Cooperative Research and Management Program section (section 318) to the MSA. Section 318(d) of the revised MSA requires that the Secretary, through NMFS, ‘‘promulgate regulations that create an expedited, uniform, and regionally-based process to promote issuance, where practicable, of experimental fishing permits.’’ NMFS issued a final rule on August 25, 2009 (74FR42786) updating and clarifying EFP definitions and procedural and technical regulations (50 CFR 600.745). The EFP application, review, and final approval process continues to be delegated at the NMFS Regional Office level.

The second implementation option would be to change current regulations through the biennial management process described in Chapter 5 of the HMS FMP. The HMS FMP includes a relatively open framework that allows many changes to be made to the management program without amending the FMP. Section 2.4 in the HMS FMP describes the fixed elements of the FMP that require and FMP amendment to change. After reviewing that section of the FMP, the HMSMT concluded that modifications to the PLCA could be made through the biennial process without an FMP amendment. Chapter 5 describes a three-meeting process for Council decisionmaking on regulatory changes occurring over the June, September, and November meetings. Regulation changes are supposed to become effective for the next fishing year, which begins on April 1. (In practice, the regulatory process and other requirements have meant that past regulatory changes recommended by the Council have taken longer to implement.) The next biennial cycle would begin in June 2014 with a target implementation date of April 1, 2015.

As noted above, the advantage of making a regulatory change versus recommending an EFP is that a permanent change to the PLCA could be implemented in one process. However, if impacts (particularly to protected species) are not adequately anticipated additional regulatory action may be needed.

Table 4 summarizes these implementation options.

4.1 Protected Species Interactions

On February 4, 2004, NMFS issued a biological opinion on: (1) adoption of the HMS FMP; (2) continued operation of HMS vessel permits under the High Seas Fishing Compliance Act; and (3) implementation of ESA regulations prohibiting shallow set longline fishing east of 150°W longitude. That Opinion concluded that the proposed action(s) were not likely to jeopardize leatherback, loggerhead, green, or olive ridley sea turtles; or fin, humpback, or sperm whales. An Incidental Take Statement (ITS) for these species, specifically for the DGN fishery, was issued, along with reasonable and prudent measures and their implementing terms and conditions. Table 5 reproduces the ITS table for the drift gillnet fishery.

Table 5. Anticipated incidental takes of ESA-listed marine mammal and sea turtle species in the drift gillnet HMS fishery (reproduced from the HMS SAFE).

Species	Estimated Entanglements (number of animals in 3 years)	Estimated Mortalities (number of animals in 3 years)	Typical Conditions Resulting in Take
Fin whale	4 in 3 years	2 in 3 years
Humpback whale	4 in 3 years	0
Sperm whale	4 in 3 years	2 in 3 years
Green turtle	4	1	SSTs in fishing area similar to Nov 99
Leatherback turtle	3	2
Loggerhead turtle	5	2	Only in El Niño years
Olive ridley turtle	4	1	SSTs in fishing area similar to Nov 99

Note: SST – sea surface temperature.

On December 5, 2010, a NMFS-contracted observer recorded two sperm whales caught in the DGN fishery in U.S. federal waters near the border with Mexico. One whale was released injured, the other was released dead. Additionally, there was a humpback whale entanglement in DGN gear in 2009 (based upon a DGN fisherman's report via a Marine Mammal Authorization Permit reporting form). NMFS determined that these entanglements may have exceeded the ITS from the 2004 biological opinion and on September 7, 2012, NMFS re-initiated formal consultation on the DGN fishery as required under Section 7 of the ESA. The consultation and Biological Opinion will consider the effects of the DGN fishery as well as the issuance of a Marine Mammal Protection Act (MMPA) 101(a)(5)(E) permit that will authorize the DGN fishery to incidentally, but not intentionally, take ESA-listed marine mammals incidental to commercial fishing operations, for a period of up to three years. The consultation will include any species and critical habitats within the U.S. west coast EEZ that have been designated since the 2004 consultation and biological opinion. Although consultation has been reinitiated, the analysis and conclusions of the 2004 Opinion remain in effect.

Since the issuance of the 2004 Opinion and adoption of the HMS FMP and accompanying regulations shortly thereafter, no substantive changes in the management of the DGN fishery have occurred. The DGN fishery continues to operate as a limited entry fishery and includes mandatory bycatch mitigation measures that have contributed significantly to reducing marine mammal bycatch levels. These measures include, among others, time/area closures, use of acoustic pingers, and installation of net extenders to submerge the gillnets to a depth of 36 feet below the surface. The estimated incidental take and mortality of listed species by the fishery remains very low; however, the number of vessels actively fishing in the DGN fishery and the total effort exerted by those vessels has steadily declined. As a result, the potential overall impact to protected species has most likely declined as well. The decline in the fishery may be due in part to the implementation of the PLCA and the 3-month loss of prime swordfish fishing grounds within the approximately 200,000 square mile closed area. Although the number of DGN vessels actively fishing is only a fraction of the total number of valid permits, the Opinion will assess the potential impacts of both active and non-active permits as the latter could enter the fishery at any time if so desired.

The HMSMT reminds the Council that a complete table showing historically observed levels of protected species interactions with the drift gillnet fishery was included in appendix tables C.1 and C.2 of Agenda Item B.3.b, Supplemental HMSMT Report, March 2012. Similar information specifically tied to the analysis of alternatives will be included in a March 2013 Supplemental HMSMT Report to the Council.

4.2 Trends in the Drift Gillnet Fishery

The California drift gillnet fishery is managed with mandatory gear standards and seasonal area closures used to address various conservation concerns. The permit is linked to an individual fisherman, not a vessel, and is only transferable under very restrictive conditions; thus the value of the vessel does not become artificially inflated. To keep a permit active, current permittees are required to purchase a permit from one consecutive year to the next; however, they are not required to make landings using DGN gear. In addition, a general resident or non-resident commercial fishing license and a current vessel registration are required to catch and land fish caught in drift gillnet gear. A logbook is also required. In addition, the use of at least 14 inch stretched mesh size and possession of a federal HMS permit is required to target swordfish and other highly migratory species.

About 150 permits were initially issued when the limited entry program was established in 1980 and peaked at 251 permits in 1986. As more regulations on the fishery were enacted, permits issued declined over the years. At the time the PLCA was implemented, 114 permits were issued, and subsequently they have continued declining by a few a year; in 2012, only 76 drift gillnet permits were issued. About half of the existing permits are actively fished, although a smaller proportion has been fished in the last three years. The following table summarizes active vessels versus permits issued.. (See Figure 2 and Table 6)

†Preliminary data

Logs submitted by drift gillnet permittees show a similar pattern of declines, as fewer vessels participated due to time/area closures, and the PLCA. Annual fishing effort has also decreased from a high of over 10,000 sets in the 1986 fishing season to under 1,000 sets since 2009. By the time of the implementation of the PLCA, the number of vessels submitting logs was half what it had been six years before. Only 157 sets were made in 2011; however, participants in the swordfish fishery have said that the last three years were particularly poor seasons for swordfish, with only a couple of dozen boats or less actively fishing. (See Table 7)

Landings, understandably, follow a similar trend. Landings of swordfish and other HMS species since the PLCA implementation are a fraction of what they were at their peak in 1985, although they had been declining before then (see Table 8 and Figure 3). (The sharks shown in Table 8 are the most common marketable catch aside from swordfish caught in the drift gillnet fishery.) Thresher shark landings did not decline as sharply, possibly because more are taken in the Southern California Bight, south of the PLCA.

5 Ongoing Research That Could Inform Development of the Proposal

5.1 Modeling Leatherback Turtle Temporal and Spatial Use of the PLCA

To investigate the possibility of predicting occurrence and behavior of leatherback turtles in the PLCA using satellite telemetry data, SWFSC scientists have been modeling the assumed behavior and occurrence of the tagged turtles in the PLCA using a suite of oceanographic and environmental variables. Satellite telemetry data of leatherback turtles in the PLCA were compiled from 41 individuals. Daily locations of these turtles were estimated using a statistical movement model. The movement model also provided the probability of foraging/transit behavior for each estimated location. Based on the results of a previous study, seven environmental variables were selected to model turtles' behavior using the statistical method of Random Forests and boosted regression trees. The variables in the model are sea-surface temperature, chlorophyll concentrations, latitude, longitude, day-of-the-year, eddy kinetic energy, and depth. Boosted regression trees and Random Forests are non-parametric regression/categorization analytical tools that use multiple predictor variables to build mathematical prediction models for a response variable.

A preliminary analysis indicated that all seven variables were useful in predicting the probability of foraging and that more than 70% of the variability in the dependent variable (probability of possible foraging) can be explained by the models. Seasonality of their behavior was indicated by the importance of the day-of-the-year variable in the prediction model. The output of the models will be used to develop probability surfaces of turtles' behavior for given environmental conditions and to identify the temporal and spatial use of the PLCA by leatherback turtles. This information can be used to identify the sites of greatest leatherback bycatch vulnerability.

5.2 A Potential Biological Removal Type of Approach to Estimating Sea Turtle Take Limits

At the January 23-25, 2013, HMSMT meeting, Alex Curtis presented a paper she recently coauthored with SWFSC PRD scientist Jeff Moore on a new approach to creating biological reference points for anthropogenic sea turtle mortality. Their work represents a step towards tying international management of fisheries interactions with sea turtles to population biology and accounting for impacts from all fleets (including international) and non-fisheries sources of mortality, as an alternative to the fishery-dependent regulatory limits based on marginal population impacts, which are typical in current management practice. She set forth a bycatch control rule called Reproductive Value Loss Limit (RVLL), generalized from the Potential Biological Removal management model for marine mammal populations, and described its potential application. The RVLL scales population size by reproductive value to account for strongly age-structured population dynamics and age-dependent fisheries mortality rates in sea turtle populations. Additional work would be needed to apply this methodology to conservation management of leatherback sea turtles in Pacific swordfish fisheries. The HMSMT advocates further development of population-based approaches to sea turtle conservation at the international (stock-wide) level.

Summary of Key Applicable Laws

- Magnuson-Stevens Fishery Conservation and Management Act (MSA). The purposes of the MSA include conservation and management of fishery resources in the U.S. EEZ, promotion of domestic commercial and recreational fishing under sound conservation and management principals, and encouragement of U.S. fisheries for stocks currently underutilized by U.S. fishermen. (16 U.S.C. 1801)
- National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA). The purposes of NEPA are: To declare a national policy which will encourage productive and enjoyable harmony between man and his environment; to promote efforts which will prevent or eliminate damage to the environment and biosphere and stimulate the health and welfare of man; to enrich the understanding of the ecological systems and natural resources important to the Nation; and to establish a Council on Environmental Quality. (42 U.S.C. 4331)
- Endangered Species Act (ESA). Under the ESA endangered and threatened species are identified and the Act facilitates the protection of habitat for these species and establishes a program for the conservation and recovery of these species.
- Marine Mammal Protection Act (MMPA). The MMPA seeks to prevent stocks of marine mammals that are in danger of extinction or depletion as a result of man's activities from diminishing beyond the point at which they cease to be a significant functioning element of the ecosystem, and specifically decline below the optimum sustainable population. (16 U.S.C. 1361)
- Other applicable laws and Executive Orders including the Regulatory Flexibility Act (RFA) and E.O. 12866 (Regulatory Impact Review). The RFA and E.O. 12866 have broadly similar objectives to require Federal agencies to assess the economic impact of proposed regulations.

STATUS OF BIOLOGICAL OPINION FOR THE DRIFT GILLNET FISHERY AND MARINE MAMMAL PROTECTION ACT PERMIT

On February 2004, NMFS issued a biological opinion on, among other things, the effects on endangered and threatened species (listed species) of fishing as managed under the newly adopted HMS FMP. That Opinion concluded that the proposed fisheries were not likely to jeopardize leatherback, loggerhead, green, or olive ridley sea turtles; or fin, humpback, or sperm whales. An Incidental Take Statement (ITS) for these species, including the drift gillnet (DGN) fishery, was issued, along with reasonable and prudent measures and their implementing terms and conditions.

On December 5, 2010, a NMFS-contracted observer recorded two sperm whales caught in the DGN fishery in U.S. federal waters near the border with Mexico. One whale was released injured, the other was released dead. Additionally, one humpback whale entanglement in DGN gear in 2009 was reported by a DGN fisherman via a Marine Mammal Authorization Permit reporting form. NMFS determined that these entanglements may have exceeded the ITS from the 2004 Opinion and on September 7, 2012, NMFS re-initiated formal consultation on the DGN fishery as required under Section 7 of the Endangered Species Act (ESA). The consultation and biological opinion will consider the effects of the DGN fishery on listed species as well as the issuance of Marine Mammal Protection Act 101(a)(5)(E) permits authorizing the DGN fishery to incidentally, but not intentionally, take ESA-listed marine mammals incidental to commercial fishing operations, for a period of up to three years. The consultation will include any species and critical habitats within the U.S. west coast EEZ that have been designated since the 2004 consultation and biological opinion. Although consultation has been reinitiated, the analysis and conclusions of the 2004 Opinion remain in effect.

ENFORCEMENT CONSULTANTS REPORT ON SWORDFISH MANAGEMENT REPORT ON POTENTIAL CHANGES TO THE TURTLE CONSERVATION AREA AND TAKE LIMITS

The Enforcement Consultants (EC) have reviewed the proposals for the large-mesh drift gillnet (DGN) fishery and has the following comments.

1. We have no opinion on the scope or dates of the Pacific Leatherback Conservation Area. However, we do support closed areas that have few waypoints and use straight East-West and North-South lines. These types of areas are easier for the public to comply with and much easier for enforcement personnel that are enforcing across several different fisheries in the course of a single patrol.

2. The EC proposes that the Council recommend the mandatory use of a Vessel Monitoring System (VMS) for all vessels with a Federal Highly Migratory Species (HMS) permit with gillnet endorsement. VMS has proven an invaluable tool for monitoring compliance with protected areas in the groundfish fisheries such as Rockfish Conservation Areas, the Cowcod Conservation Area, as well as the Atlantic HMS gillnet fishery. In addition to the Pacific Leatherback Conservation Area, the DGN fishery has 12 other season-based closed areas, few of which adhere to the principles previously described for enforceable and plot-able closed areas. VMS is also recommended for the DGN fishery because of the range of the fishery. The majority of other West Coast fishing effort, especially off of California, occurs within a more easily-patrolled range of the coast. The wide range of the DGN fishery, small number of vessels involved, and the scale of the closed areas make them exceedingly difficult and cost-prohibitive to effectively patrol either on the water or from the air. There are some recommendations for increased observer coverage in the DGN fishery. The Council should remember that several vessels in the fishery are considered un-observable due to construction. VMS is an inexpensive and valuable tool for monitoring the position of vessels in the absence of observers. It is also worth noting that any requirement for VMS under the Magnuson-Stevens Act would be eligible for reimbursement of purchase and installation by the fishery service up to $3,100. VMS is a valuable, proven, and relatively inexpensive monitoring tool that enhances compliance with area-based management techniques and is especially appropriate given the number and design of the closed areas in this fishery.

Highly Migratory Species Advisory Subpanel Report
Potential Changes to the Pacific Leatherback Conservation Area

The Highly Migratory Species Advisory Subpanel (HMSAS) reviewed the information in Agenda Item I.2.b, Highly Migratory Species Management Team (HMSMT) Report, on the Pacific Leatherback Conservation Area (PLCA) and compliments the HMSMT on the work that went into the report. The HMSAS requests that the Council add the following alternatives for consideration by HMSMT:

1 Open the entire PCLA with caps (annual limits on the number of interactions) and 100 percent observer coverage, which would allow flexibility for the fishermen to "follow the fish" while still avoiding impacts to marine mammals and turtles. This suggestion is modeled after the Hawaii shallow-set longline fishery approach. This option could provide new data for future decisions. This management of the PLCA would be separate from current open area which now requires 20 percent observer coverage.

2 Open the area of the PCLA southwest of Point Sur from a line due west of Point Sur -- from 12 miles to 100 miles in the triangle area which is currently closed. This area would have observer coverage comparable to the current open area. Currently the area from 0 to 12 miles is closed from Point Conception north by California state law (See Figure 1).

In addition, the HMSAS understands that research shows that the turtles and swordfish are sensitive to certain sea temperatures, salinity, thermoclines, plankton, etc. The HMSAS asks that the Council request the HMSMT to review sea temperature information that could be used for management purposes.

Potential Modifications to PLCA and Use of Take Caps to Manage the DGN Fishery

Highly Migratory Species Management Team
March 2013 Pacific Fishery Council Meeting
Tacoma, Washington

Developments Since PLCA Closure

- Critical habitat designation for leatherback turtles
- Decline in drift gillnet fishery participation, effort, landings and revenues to historic lows
- Fishery discontinued in Oregon state waters
- New biological opinion for DGN fishery under development

Alternatives Under Consideration

1. Modify the PLCA southern boundary so that it extends due west from Pt. Sur (36°18.5’ N lat.) to the current western boundary at 129° W long
2. Delay the start of the closure period from August 15 to September 1
3. Move up the end of the closure period from November 15 to October 31
4. Consider time area combinations with the most favorable combinations of low leatherback sea turtle interaction rates and high swordfish catch rates

Leatherback Interactions vs. Swordfish Catch (2)

Potential Impacts of Alternatives(1)

- High effort – based on 1990–2000 observed logbook effort distribution; not feasible given permit attrition since the PLCA was established
- Medium effort – scales 1990–2000 logbook effort distribution over time and area to recent number of permits; models potential effort if latent permits came back into use
- Low effort – proportionally scales 1990–2000 logbook effort distribution to recent effort levels

Application of Take Caps

- Consider potential caps and 100% at-sea monitoring only for any restored PLCA effort
- Consider a probability-based methodology to support take caps with less than 100 percent at-sea monitoring

Research That Could Inform Proposal Development

- Recent analysis of factors for decline of Western Pacific leatherback turtle population
- Modeling of marine turtle and mammal movements and spatial use of habitat off the West Coast
- Developing biological reference points for potential management of protected species

HMSMT Recommendations

- Continue research exploring alternative gears and habitat modeling to support potential adaptive management options
- If the Council decides to modify the current PLCA:
  - Consider interaction limits for species of concern with potential 100% at-sea monitoring as part of any alternative that reduces the PLCA.
  - Maintain observer coverage in the status quo fishery at 20%.

HIGHLY MIGRATORY SPECIES MANAGEMENT TEAM REPORT ON PRELIMINARY ANALYSIS OF PLCA ALTERNATIVES

This report lays out and demonstrates an approach the HMSMT has developed to analyzing PLCA alternatives which could potentially be used to support a Council decision about whether to reopen any PLCA time-area combinations which have been closed since 2001.

Analytical Description of PLCA Alternatives

Table 1 describes alternatives based on the Council's March 2012 direction for its HMS advisory bodies to determine if any changes can be made to the closure dates for, or the southern boundary of, the current Pacific Leatherback Conservation Area (PLCA) closure of the large-mesh drift gillnet (DGN) fishery from August 15 – November 15 which has been in effect since the 2001 season. The six time-area combinations identified in the two rightmost columns fully describe a given alternative through a series of six choices of which time-area combinations to keep closed or reopen.

Alternative	Subperiod	PLCA Subzone
Status Quo: Current PLCA Closure	August 15 - August 31	Closed	Closed
	September 1 - October 31	Closed	Closed
	November 1 - November 15	Closed	Closed

The left column of the table briefly describes each alternative. The next column to the right splits the current closed period into three subperiods: August 15-31, the months of September-October, and November 1-15. The two rightmost columns refer to the respective areas inside the PLCA south and north of Pt. Sur, as seen in Figure 1. As seen in the map, the proposed reopening of the southern portion of the PLCA would not open fishing north of the currently open area extending from Pt. Sur southward, but would reopen areas to the southwest of Pt. Sur which have been closed since 2001.

The status quo alternative is the current closure, described by continuing the closure in all six time-area combinations. Alternative 1, to reopen the fishery south of Pt. Sur, is described by specifying that areas south of Pt. Sur remain open for all three subperiods while areas north of Pt. Sur remain closed. Alternative 2, to delay the closure start date until September 1, would reopen the full PLCA (areas north and south of Pt. Sur) to fishing for the period from August 15-August 31, while the other four time-area combinations inside the PLCA remained closed. Alternative 3 would reopen the full PLCA to fishing after November 1, while otherwise maintaining the current closure. Alternative 4 blends Alternatives 1-3 and serves to illustrate how any other series of six choices of time-area combinations can be used to define additional alternatives. In this case, the closure would remain in force north of Pt. Sur from September 1-October 31, while permitted DGN effort would be restored for the five other time-area combinations.

The alternatives described here do not exhaust the possibilities; the approach is general, and could be extended to include other alternatives besides the range encompassed by Table 1, formed by different choices of which time-area combinations to keep closed or reopen.

BPUE/CPUE Ratios

DGN observer data[1] from 1990-2000 were used to compute ratios of leatherback turtle bycatch-per-unit-effort (BPUE) to swordfish catch-per-unit-effort (CPUE) for the six time-area combinations which comprise the current PLCA closure (six columns in left side of Figure 2 for PLCA North and South over August 15-November 15 period; gray shaded cells in Table 2). For comparison, BPUE/CPUE ratios (Bartram et al. 2010) were also included for time-area combinations which were not closed in 2001 (Other Period or Outside PLCA columns in upper-right and lower-right rows of Figure 2; white shaded cells in Table 2). The calculations use observer data on numbers of swordfish caught and leatherback turtle interactions which occurred for years immediately preceding the establishment of the closure to estimate the relative risk of leatherback interactions compared to likely swordfish catch success. Time-area combinations with low BPUE/CPUE ratios are those which historically experienced a favorably low rate of leatherback turtle interactions for a given level of swordfish catch.

[1] Observer coverage of drift gillnet effort from 1990-2000 was 16.4% of the total number of sets fished over the period.

Table 2: Observed Leatherback and Swordfish BPUE/CPUE Ratio by Subperiod and PLCA Subzone, 1990-2000

The results of this analysis show the majority of observed effort inside the PLCA before the closure occurred North of Pt. Sur over the September 1-October 31 period, with a total of 1,053 observed sets from 1990-2000. This time-area combination inside the PLCA also experienced the largest observed amount of swordfish catch and of leatherback interactions. Though these relatively large catch and bycatch amounts are attributable in part to a higher level of effort for this time-area combination, the leatherback-swordfish BPUE/CPUE ratio is also highest for this time-area combination among those which constitute a portion of the closure, suggesting the area north of Pt. Sur over the September 1-October 31 period is a relatively unattractive time-area combination candidate for reopening. By contrast, the other five time-area combinations inside the PLCA that have been closed since 2001 had lower BPUE/CPUE ratios, comparable to or in some instances below time-area combinations that have remained open since 2001. Generally speaking, alternatives composed of time-area combinations that exclude the area north of Pt. Sur over September-October had comparably low observed leatherback interactions and BPUE/CPUE ratios to the time-area combinations which remained open after the PLCA closure went into effect.

For time-area combinations with observed leatherback interactions, the reciprocal of the BPUE/CPUE ratio may be used to express the numbers of swordfish that were caught per observed leatherback turtle interaction during the 1990-2000 period. This is useful for comparing the benefit-cost tradeoffs of one time-area combination over another, as a higher reciprocal ratio indicates more swordfish caught for the same number of leatherback takes. In the area north of Pt. Sur the observed ratio was 217 for September-October versus 670 for November 1-15. This suggests that a November 1-15 reopening may offer a more favorable benefit-cost ratio than a September-October reopening.

Preliminary Impact Analysis

A preliminary analysis was conducted to demonstrate the methodology for the current version of the alternatives. The approach includes elements of the method used by NMFS to analyze areas which were proposed as West Coast critical habitat for leatherback turtles (77 FR 4170). Potential impacts were estimated separately for the various time-area combinations under consideration (Table 6). An additive approach was used to estimate impacts for alternatives that include multiple time-area combinations.

Estimated impacts in terms of effort, revenues, finfish catch and protected species takes are summarized below for each alternative:

- The leftmost three columns of Table 3 display estimated impacts for Alternative 1, to reopen the fishery South of Pt. Sur, obtained by summing across columns 1, 4 and 7 of Table 6 for low, medium and high effort scenarios, respectively.
- Impacts under Alternative 2, to start the PLCA closure on September 1, are displayed in columns four through six of Table 3 (sum of Table 6 columns 1 and 2).
- Alternative 3 impacts, to reopen the fishery on November 1, are shown in columns 7-9 of Table 3 (sum of Table 6 columns 7 and 8).
- Impacts of Alternative 4, to limit the closure to the PLCA area north of Pt. Sur from September 1-October 31, are in the rightmost three columns of Table 3 (sum of Table 6 columns 1, 2, 4, 7 and 8).

Table 3: Summary of Impacts of Alternatives

Discussion

- As shown in the table displaying preliminary analysis, leatherback-swordfish BPUE/CPUE ratios for all four alternatives are comparable in magnitude with those for time-area combinations which remained open to fishing after the 2000 season. For instance, Alternatives 2-4 all have a lower BPUE/CPUE ratio than the PLCA North area during the open season.
- Given low (0-2) total levels of observed leatherback bycatch for all PLCA time-area combinations under consideration except for the PLCA north of Pt. Sur during the September-October period, estimated leatherback BPUE cannot be precisely estimated.
- A precautionary approach would assume any additional impacts due to restored effort to be additional to those of the currently open fishery. The additive assumption is conservative as a measure of potential impacts, due to (1) a limited entry permit system constraining overall effort in the fishery, making any effort increase in reopened areas likely to be offset by a decrease in currently allowed effort; (2) limits on observer coverage, which are likely to constrain overall DGN effort, including any that might occur with any restored effort alternative inside the PLCA; (3) changes over time in the composition of the DGN fishery, including numbers of permits and participants, age distribution of current participants and any potential younger entrants into the fishery, and interest to return to fish in areas closed since 2001, making it difficult to use historic effort inside the PLCA to accurately predict in advance how much fishing effort might return in the event of any potential restoration of effort; (4) attrition in the remaining number of DGN permits since 2001 suggesting that effort after a reopening is likely to be less than pre-regulation levels of effort.
- The Magnuson-Stevens Act National Standard 1 requires management to "prevent overfishing while achieving optimum yield." Recent assessments indicate the North Pacific swordfish stock targeted by the West Coast fishery is currently being fished well below optimum yield as defined in the Fishery Management Plan for Highly Migratory Species (Brodziak, HMS FMP).
- Anticipated additional revenues are positively correlated with favorable economic impacts on West Coast communities in the form of employment opportunities and producer and consumer benefits due to the potential for an increased supply of fresh swordfish and related multiplier effects on regional economies.

- The simple approach taken here to estimate revenue impacts assumes revenues are directly proportional to sets of fishing effort. A more detailed approach that reflects differences in catch rates by species across time-area combinations could produce starker contrasts in revenues across alternatives. For example, by a wide margin, the highest CPUE for swordfish, a high-value species, was for inside the PLCA from November 1-November 15 (3.7 swordfish per set versus 3.0 swordfish per set for the next highest time-area combination). Explicitly considering this in the analysis could result in higher estimated revenues for a November 1 reopening of the PLCA.
- The catch (take) rates shown in Table 3 do not necessarily reflect mortality, which varies by species. For instance, though mola mola catch rates are the highest in the table, they are observed to be released alive nearly 100% of the time, suggesting the catch rate may be a poor indicator of fishing mortality.

Data Sources and Estimates of Effort, Catch and Bycatch to Support Analysis

The analysis relies on three databases which represent different aspects of the HMS (large-mesh) DGN fishery. The California Department of Fish and Game logbook database was used along with information from the HMS SAFE Report on the numbers of DGN vessels with landings to west coast ports in each year to develop estimates of effort which could occur if time-area combinations which have remained closed since 2001 are restored. NMFS observer records were used to estimate HMS FMP species and other finfish catch rates and bycatch rates for protected species with a known history of large-mesh drift gillnet interactions. Real revenues data from the HMS SAFE Report for the DGN fishery during the 1990-2000 period summarized in 2011 dollars were used to develop revenue estimates reflective of recent price levels.

Table 4: Expected Effort and Revenue under Alternative Effort Scenarios

Expected effort and revenues were estimated from the DGN logbook database and real revenues data for the DGN fishery as summarized in the HMS SAFE Report, respectively.

"Subperiod" references in the table are 1: August 15-August 31, 2: September 1-October 31, 3: November 1-November 15 and 4: Other periods.

"PLCA Subzones" are 1: PLCA South, 2: PLCA North and 3: Outside PLCA.

Logbook effort during the eleven seasons immediately preceding the establishment of the closure (1990-2000) was used to estimate potential changes in effort from a PLCA closure modification. A "high" effort estimate was based on allocating the annual average numbers of sets of DGN effort fished over the years from 1990-2000 to the percentage breakdown of sets of logbook effort reported for the twelve time-area combinations implied by combinations of four periods with three areas. Such an estimate is likely to be conservatively high relative to future experience that could occur under a PLCA modification as it represents effort during a period when a far larger number of permits were in the fishery than currently.

A “medium” effort estimate was developed by first computing the average number, 145, of DGN vessels that fished per annum during the 1990-2000 period, using DGN vessel counts in Table 52 of the 2011 HMS SAFE Report. Effort was scaled down proportionally from 145 to 82 DGN permits which were issued for the 2011 fishing season, then allocated to time-area combinations as before.

A “low” effort estimate was similarly developed by scaling down annual effort from 145 to the average numbers of vessels reported in HMS SAFE Report Table 52 as fishing over seasons from 2007-2011, which was 57, then again using the same proportional allocation to time-area combinations.

Revenues were estimated starting with the average real DGN fishery revenue from 1990-2000 per set, based on PacFIN revenues and logbook-reported effort in sets. Revenues under each alternative were estimated based on multiplying estimated real revenue per set times anticipated effort.

Finfish Catch and Protected Species Bycatch Rates

NMFS observer data collected from 1990-2000 were used to quantify observed effort in sets, finfish catch and protected species bycatch for the six time-area combinations. These summaries were used to compute observed catch (CPUE) and bycatch (BPUE) rates per unit of effort over the eleven-year period for each time-area grouping (Table 5). Potential impacts were calculated by scaling revenue per set, CPUE and BPUE rates to low, medium and high effort scenarios (Table 6).

HIGHLY MIGRATORY SPECIES MANAGEMENT TEAM DISCUSSION OF PACIFIC LEATHERBACK CONSERVATION AREA ALTERNATIVES

When the Pacific Leatherback Conservation Area (PLCA) was established in 2001, limited information was available with respect to the movement and distribution of Pacific leatherback turtles along the U.S. West Coast. Since that time, much has been learned about their foraging activity, transit patterns, and the oceanographic conditions influencing their behaviors. Preliminary results of ongoing research are promising, and are expected to provide information to support adaptive management alternatives in the near future based on habitat of target and non-target species.

Analysis presented in the supplemental Highly Migratory Species Management Team (HMSMT) report to examine the projected impacts of a suite of potential changes to the current time/area closure is based on the observer, logbook, and landings records from 1990 - 2000. Estimated effort is based on recent effort levels distributed over time and area according to how the effort was distributed during 1990-2000. The HMSMT has evaluated available information from the drift gillnet fishery as it operated before the PLCA went into effect and discussed the likely range of alternatives that modify the time or extent of the PLCA closure.

Of the suite of alternatives examined, the HMSMT considers the three alternatives presented in the table below as the most promising based on the impact analysis. Alternative 2 was not considered further, as it is not supported by the HMS Advisory Subpanel and would provide very little additional swordfish landings and revenue. If the Council considers any of these changes, the low number of anticipated sets, based on current participation in the fishery, suggests an EFP could be a practical regulatory approach.

Alternatives	Effort (sets)	Ex-Vessel Revenues (thousands)	Swordfish Numbers	Leatherback Turtle Numbers
Alt. 1: Open S of Pt. Sur	42	$103.7	128.8	0.24
Alt. 3: Open All November 1-15	37	$91.4	137.2	0.18
Alt. 4: Open All except N. Sept. 1-Oct. 31	80	$197.5	255.7	0.42

Any alternative could potentially include implementation of interaction limits for species of concern with initial 100 percent observer coverage. Observer coverage in the status quo fishery could remain at 20 percent.

The HMSMT is prepared to conduct further analyses or to develop adaptive management alternatives based on the Council's guidance.

RE: West Coast Swordfish Fishery

Dear Mr. Schwaab:

We are disappointed that the National Marine Fisheries Service (NMFS) is once again pushing to increase domestic Pacific swordfish landings and fishing effort with gears known to have high levels of bycatch. In this time when our country is seeking to promote sustainable industries and ecosystem-based approaches to management that protect and maintain the health and biodiversity of our oceans, it is unreasonable that NMFS continues to allow the California drift gillnet swordfish fishery to kill dolphins and sea lions, and to toss back, dead and damaged, 20 to 30 percent of its catch of fish. Further, it would be unreasonable to continue to invest in and promote efforts to develop a pelagic longline fishery for swordfish when the State of California and the Pacific Fishery Management Council have already taken actions to prohibit it due to the high levels of bycatch associated with this fishery and the take of endangered and threatened species.

We are writing to request that NMFS end this current effort to expand a west coast based drift gillnet or pelagic longline fishery for swordfish. If, however, NMFS is going to spend valuable time and taxpayer money investigating approaches to expand commercial fishing for swordfish on the west coast, you can expect serious challenges by conservation organizations and others if those efforts are 1) not associated with the phase out and prohibition of drift gillnet gear, and 2) associated with any experimental gear that is not significantly different from the drift gillnet or pelagic longline gear that NMFS has already tried, but failed to advance in recent years.

At the September 2011 meeting of the Pacific Fishery Management Council (PFMC), NMFS gave a report on the California-based driftnet fishery for swordfish and made the argument that NMFS and the PFMC must explore how to allow for greater catch levels of swordfish in U.S. waters in order to fulfill the local demand for swordfish. NMFS staff suggested in their report, without providing any supporting evidence, that if we increase domestic swordfish catch this will decrease the take of endangered leatherback sea turtles by other Pacific nations targeting swordfish. In response to the NMFS request, the PFMC directed its Highly Migratory Species (HMS) Management Team and Advisory Subpanel to provide information to inform a decision on whether to change the current driftnet swordfish fishery, scheduled for the March 2012 PFMC meeting.

If the agency's primary goal continues to be to increase domestic regional production of swordfish with a west coast fishery using drift gillnets and/or pelagic longlines, the result will be the increased take and mortality of endangered sea turtles, marine mammals, sharks, tunas, and many other fishes. We suggest, however, the primary goal ought to be a comprehensive international plan to protect marine mammals and recover endangered Pacific leatherback and loggerhead sea turtles from nesting beaches, across migratory pathways and in foraging hotspots. NMFS could work towards this goal by demanding changes to fisheries through international fisheries organizations to which the United States is a member, such as the Inter-American Tropical Tuna Commission (IATTC) and the Western and Central Pacific Fishery Commission (WCPFC), and also by using legal tools under the Magnuson-Stevens Fishery Conservation and Management Act and Marine Mammal Protection Act to restrict swordfish imports by Nations not meeting U.S. conservation standards.[1]

In particular, we urge NMFS to immediately finalize and publish a rulemaking to implement provisions of the Marine Mammal Protection Act that require foreign fisheries to meet the same levels of protections as domestic fishers for marine mammals. NMFS published an advanced notice of proposed rulemaking in April 2010 to develop regulations to implement these provisions and additional measures to ensure that foreign fleets protect all protected species including sea turtles under the Endangered Species Act.

Since the public comment period closed more than a year ago, NMFS has not moved forward on these important regulations. Doing so would help level the playing field for swordfish fishers in the U.S., and would likely be a far more effective option for providing sustainable seafood to the U.S. market than expanding the west coast swordfish fishery.

The PFMC, California legislators, the California Coastal Commission, conservation organizations, and thousands of members of the public have engaged in the debate over the west coast swordfish fishery now for decades. One thing is abundantly clear: these groups do not want to see an unselective west coast swordfish fishery that is going to kill marine mammals, endangered sea turtles and result in the annual bycatch of thousands of iconic fish and sharks. In 1992 the California Department of Fish and Game banned all pelagic longline fishing in the EEZ off the California Coast. Since 2004, longline gear used to target swordfish has been prohibited on the high seas off the U.S. west coast following NMFS' determination that the bycatch of North Pacific loggerhead sea turtles would violate the Endangered Species Act. In response to bycatch concerns, the State of Washington prohibits drift gillnet gear for swordfish and the State of Oregon revoked all of its drift gillnet permits for swordfish and thresher sharks in 2009. What is more, due to the projected high catch levels of non-target fish, marine mammals and sea turtles, the PFMC voted in April 2009 for the 'no action alternative' in a Draft Environmental Impact Statement that would have allowed for a west coast based high seas shallow-set longline fishery for swordfish.[2] This high seas fishery proposal followed multiple failed Experimental Fishing Permit proposals to expand the geographic and temporal scope of the drift gillnet fishery into the Pacific Leatherback Conservation Area, and to allow for a single vessel to fish swordfish in the EEZ off California using pelagic longline gear.

[1] 16 U.S.C. 1862i §608 'Actions to Strengthen International Fishery Management Organizations' and 16 U.S.C. 1826k §610 'Equivalent Conservation Measures' and 16 U.S.C. § 1371(a)(2) 'The Secretary of the Treasury shall ban the importation of commercial fish or products from fish which have been caught with commercial fishing technology which results in the incidental kill or incidental serious injury of ocean mammals in excess of United States standards.'

In July 2008, the California Legislature passed AJR 62 with the resolution,

> That the Legislature of the State of California requests that the National Marine Fisheries Service defer consideration of any efforts to introduce shallow-set longline fishing off the California coast, both inside and outside the EEZ, until Pacific leatherback sea turtle critical habitat is established, the federal status of the North Pacific loggerhead sea turtle is clarified, and critical habitat is designated for the North Pacific loggerhead sea turtle, if it is designated as "endangered". [emphasis added]

As you know, on September 22, 2011, NMFS issued a final rule determining that North Pacific loggerhead sea turtles are a distinct population segment and that they are endangered with extinction, thus uplisting them from "threatened" to "endangered".[3] Given this resolution, however, NMFS should not pursue any efforts to expand pelagic longline fishing for swordfish until critical habitat is designated for both loggerheads and leatherbacks. While we expect a final rule designating critical habitat for leatherback sea turtles by November 15, 2011, NMFS has not yet issued a proposed rule to designate critical habitat for North Pacific loggerheads meaning that any effort by NMFS to expand a longline fishery would be contrary to the expressed resolution of the California Legislature.

Meanwhile, the California drift gillnet fishery targeting swordfish and thresher shark has a high level of indiscriminate and wasteful bycatch that includes many species of fish plus the lethal take of marine mammals (~138 marine mammals per year) ,[4] and at times, threatened and endangered sea turtles. Given this fishery's track record with bycatch, it is baffling that less than 14% of fishing effort was observed in the 2008-09 fishery and less than 13% in 2009-2010 fishery,[5] making it extremely difficult to accurately account for the bycatch of rare and endangered species known to be caught and killed by this gear. This is far under the 20%

[2] The proposed shallow-set longline fishery would have caught as bycatch, 3-9 leatherback sea turtles/ year, 4-27 loggerhead sea turtles/ year, 5-10 marine mammals per year, 5,900 – 30,900 sharks/ year, and 1,600-5,500 tuna/ year. observer coverage required by the 2004 Biological Opinion (BI-OP)[6] and the 30% coverage recommended by NMFS in the recently published National Bycatch Report.[7]

The NMFS National Bycatch Report finds that the bycatch of three marine mammal stocks in this fishery – the long-beaked common dolphin, short-finned pilot whale, and Northern right whale dolphin – exceed Potential Biological Removal levels defined in the Marine Mammal Protection Act and/ or the Zero Mortality Rate Goal.[8] Even with such low observer coverage, the bycatch of loggerhead sea turtles was observed in 2006, the bycatch of a leatherback turtle was observed in 2009, and the fishery is known to take prohibited species such as white shark, basking shark and megamouth shark.

NOAA's National Bycatch Strategy and bycatch reduction efforts define bycatch as "discarded catch of any living marine resource plus retained incidental catch and unobserved mortality due to a direct encounter with fishing gear."[9] This definition does not distinguish between live or dead discards; rather it includes all discards. In 2009, observers documented over 6 common molas discarded for every swordfish caught and an overall discard rate of 65% (number of animals discarded divided by total number of animals caught).[10] Using NMFS' bycatch definition, this is a bycatch rate of 91% (number of animals discarded or incidentally caught divided by total catch). Furthermore, from May 1, 2008 to January 31, 2009 there were 1,060 drift gillnet sets with approximately 25% of the catch returned to the sea dead or damaged (over 4,800 fish), including over a thousand sharks of various species, tunas and others fishes.[11]

We ask that you work with the Southwest Regional office of NMFS to end these repeated efforts to expand the west coast based drift gillnet fishery or pelagic longline fishery for swordfish. If anything, NMFS should be working to phase out and eventually close the California driftnet swordfish and thresher shark fishery once and for all, and in the meantime increase observer coverage to adequately monitor and account for all bycatch and discards, plus implement hard bycatch caps on all marine life taken including fish, marine mammals and sea turtles. We could envision exploration of other fishing gears that are substantially different from gillnets or longlines as part of a comprehensive strategy to develop a clean swordfish fishery, including potential expansion and/or marketing efforts focused on the harpoon fishery.

We also ask that NMFS develop and advance an international plan to protect and conserve marine mammals and sea turtles in fisheries from which the U.S. imports swordfish as described above. Clearly it is time to put an end to the indiscriminate killing and waste of marine life that has been occurring for decades in this driftnet fishery off the coast of California. Now is not the

RE: Please Ban Drift Gillnets Today

I am writing to urge the National Marine Fisheries Service to cease expanding the drift gillnet fishery based in California and instead eliminate it altogether.

Drift gillnets are death traps in waiting for multitudes of ocean animals. These oceanic death traps have been known to kill over 30 species, including endangered leatherback sea turtles, bottlenose dolphins, great white sharks, sea birds, and even sperm whales.

While the drift gillnets are meant to target swordfish, animals like the endangered leatherback sea turtle are accidentally trapped and slowly suffocated until they die, unable to come to the surface for air. As the largest sea turtle in the world, leatherbacks are an international treasure. These creatures are known to have impressive stamina, often swimming thousands of miles across ocean basins in search of food or breeding grounds. But too often, these endangered creatures find themselves trapped underwater and desperately gasping for air.

Please protect the lives and habitat of the leatherback sea turtles, whose population is already in great decline, and eliminate the usage of the deadly drift gillnets in the Pacific coastal region.

Please replace the deadly drift gillnets with fishing methods that have been proven safe for the oceanic ecological system in the area.

Thank you for your help on behalf of marine wildlife and healthy marine ecosystems.

Yours truly,

Dear Donald McIsaac, Exec. Dir.

Please help our marine life! Endangered leatherback sea turtles are being caough and suffocated by the mile long gillnets used to target sword-fish along our Pacific Coast. These oceanic death traps have also been known to kill over 30 other species! including bottlenose dolphins, great white sharks, sea birds, and even sperm whales! Dolphins, whales and endangered turtles drown (slowly suffocated) as they get caought and and are unable to get to the surface for air & die - Please immediately ban the use of these deadly underwater traps - and developer safer, more sustainable fishing methods in their place - Protect the lives & habitat of the leatherback sea turtles, who population is already in great decline! I would be so very grateful and would appreciate a kind reply.

Re: Fishing Proposals in California Offshore Pacific Leatherback Conservation Area

Dear Mr. Wolford and Mr. McInnis:

The California Coastal Commission ("Commission") is writing to express its strong concern over federal proposals being developed to allow the California drift gillnet fleet to fish in the Pacific Leatherback Conservation Area ("PLCA") and continued efforts to expand the swordfish and shark fishery along the California coast using gear that is restricted or prohibited by the state of California.

We have become aware that the Pacific Fisheries Management Council ("PFMC") will review specific proposals from National Marine Fisheries Service ("NMFS") to make changes to the size and duration of the PLCA and consider setting new levels of allowable leatherback interactions for the fishery at its March 2013 meeting. Plans to introduce and approve an Exempted Fishing Permit ("EFP") were recently published on the PFMC's draft agenda for 2013 meetings, indicating an intention to pursue expansion of the drift gillnet fishery for swordfish and shark.

In addition, we understand that NMFS is currently researching use of deep-set longline gear in the PCLA to lay the groundwork for another possible future proposal to introduce use of this prohibited gear along the California coast.

The Commission is concerned that federal efforts to expand coastal fisheries using drift gillnet gear and longline gear may be inconsistent with the Coastal Zone Management Act ("CZMA"). In 2007, the Commission determined a federal EFP proposal for longline fishing to be inconsistent with the enforceable marine resource protection policies of the CZMA.

Under the CZMA, if upon receiving written notice of an application for a federal license or permit to conduct an activity that is being conducted outside of the coastal zone,[1] but that the Commission staff believes would affect any land or water use or natural resource of the coastal zone, the Commission staff will request permission to review the federal permit from the federal office of Ocean and Coastal Resources Management ("OCRM). If OCRM grants such request, the federal agency may not issue the permit unless the Commission concurs with the consistency certification (or, the Secretary of Commerce overrides an objection on appeal by the permit applicant).

The sea turtles, seabirds, marine mammals, and fish that will be caught and injured or killed by vessels operating under a proposed drift gillnet or longline EFP are all "natural resources" protected by California's Coastal Management Program. Entangling and killing these animals clearly "affects" these resources triggering the consistency requirement of CZMA.

The Commission also understands that protections for endangered sea turtles along the California coast were strengthened over the past two years. Leatherback critical habitat was designated in more than 16,000 of state and federal coastal waters. Also, in 2011, the status of the North Pacific Distinct Population Segment of loggerhead turtles was upraded from threatened to endangered, and critical habitat for the species will soon be designated in ocean waters that may include state and federal coastal waters. The Commission also has concerns about the entanglement and death of two sperm whales in the California drift gillnet fishery in 2010, equating to an estimated 16 entanglements of this endangered marine species. These developments would seem to indicate a need for increased protections for state natural resources from fishery interactions.

Please feel free to contact Sarah Christie, the Commission staff's legislative liaison, at (916) 445-6067, or Mark Delaplaine, Manager, Energy, Ocean Resources and Federal Consistency Unit, at (415) 904-5289, if you have any questions regarding this matter.

Sincerely,

CHARLES LESTER
Executive Director

Re: drift gillnet fishery for swordfish and shark

Dear Director McIsaac:

As you know, drift gillnets have been banned on the High Seas and along most of the U.S. West Coast because of high bycatch of marine life including endangered whales, dolphins, sea turtles, shark, tuna and other non-target fish. Recently two endangered sperm whales were entangled and killed in the California drift gillnet fishery, which means the fishery now operates in violation of conservation laws protecting marine mammals.

In the meantime, I understand that the National Marine Fisheries Service (NMFS) and the Pacific Fisheries Management Council (the Council) are undertaking actions to expand the drift gillnet fishery for swordfish and shark off the U.S. West Coast. Please halt these actions! Actions to increase gillnet fishing conflict with new protections given to sea turtles over the past year, including designation of critical habitat for Pacific leatherbacks along the West Coast and and the uplisting of the Pacific loggerheads from threatened to endangered under the U.S. Endangered Species Act.

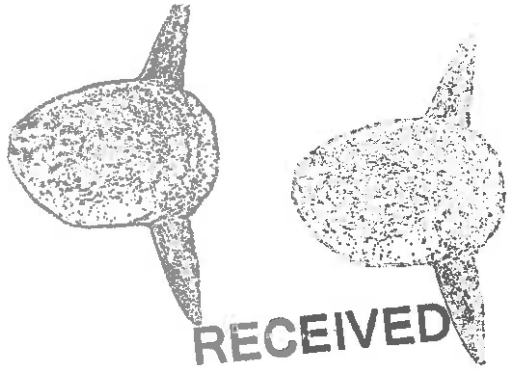

I oppose weakening the Pacific Leatherback Conservation Area that has reduced entanglements of endangered leatherback sea turtles to one over the past decade. At the March 2013 meeting, the Council must vote no on any proposals that would allow more gillnet fishing in leatherback habitat or increase the high bycatch in this unpopular, unsustainable fishery.

For these reasons, I urge you to please stop any and all efforts to expand the swordfish gillnet fishery. In addition, I ask that you please phase out the drift gillnet fishery along our coast, permanently ban longlining under any circumstances and support sustainable fishing practices that don't compromise the health of endangered species, fisheries and our oceans. Thank you.

With utmost conviction and sincetity,

Linn D. Barrett

Dear Mr. Wolford and Mr. McInnis,

As a researcher who studies the behavior, movement and genetic status of ocean sunfish, also known as common mola, in the California Current and the Pacific, I am writing to express concern over proposals in development to increase California's drift gillnet fishery into coastal waters currently protected to prevent entanglement of endangered sea turtles. Ocean sunfish (common mola) comprise the largest number of unwanted fish caught by the large-mesh drift gillnet fleet which targets swordfish and thresher sharks along the California coast.

We know that in the upcoming March 2013 meeting, the Pacific Fisheries Management Council plans to review specific proposals from National Marine Fisheries Service (NMFS) to change the size and duration of the Pacific Leatherback Conservation Area (PCLA) so as to increase the gillnet fishing operations.

Over the past decade (2001 to 2011), ocean sunfish accounted for an average 55 percent of the total numbers of fish caught in these gillnets based on fleet observer coverage of about 20 percent. As such this is a highly conservative estimate of how many mola were actually caught. Even with these estimates five times more sunfish than swordfish were caught in this fishery. During this ten year period, more than 100,000 individual sunfish have become entangled and discarded overboard. Gillnets usually don't kill molas outright, but rather cut into their skin and scrape off their protective mucus opening them up to possible secondary infections. Survival rates for discarded mola released alive remain unknown and in great need of study.

Sunfish are the world's heaviest bony fish and can weigh up to 5,000 pounds making them the world's largest gelatinous zooplanktivore. This role is of increasing importance given the rise in media reports concerning problems with jelly populations worldwide. Recently large jelly blooms knocked California power plants offline--e.g. see jelly blooms in 2008 and 2012 (http://usnews.nbcnews.com/_news/2012/04/27/11432974-diablo-canyon-nuclear-plant-in-california-knocked-offline-by-jellyfish-like-creature-called-salp?lite). Jellies have also been reported to impact tourism negatively e.g. the incident in San Diego of black sea nettles http://legacy.utsandiego.com/news/metro/20070807-9999-1m7jelly.html. In light of these events and others, there is a distinct need to understand, research and maintain health populations of jelly-eaters within our California current system.

Our team has been tagging these giant elusive fish within the California Current since the year 2000 and sampling their genetics. We are just now starting to decipher their movement patterns and population structure however there is much more work to be done. To date, our satellite data show mola do not engage in trans-basin migrations and have discrete home ranges along the California and Baja coastlines with bathymetric and thermal preferences between 0-400 meters and 13-18C respectively. During the day, they make repeated dives between 50-300 meters. During the night, they stay primarily in the upper 10-50 meters. Gillnets dropped into the surface waters of the ocean to soak overnight lie in direct conflict with sunfish nighttime behavior.

Our preliminary California mola microsatellite genetic data suggest some factors such as being subject to bycatch from California drift gillnet fishery may be adversely affecting mola population numbers. A new paper summarizing our recent tagging work as well as additional genetic work will be published and available to you later this year.

Drift gillnets have been banned on the High Seas and along most of the U.S. West Coast because of the high bycatch of marine life including endangered whales, dolphins, sea turtles, shark, tuna and other non-target fish like the mola. The California drift gillnet fishery is steadily shrinking and the demand for swordfish in California and the U.S. has steadily declined since the mid-1990s.

I urge you to take note of the high mola bycatch consequences of the gill drift net fishery along the California coast. Please err on the side of caution and do what you can to protect instead of endanger these poorly understood yet vital fish in our ocean food web.

How are you? I'm writing to let you know we are concerned about the Molas. We know that many Molas get caught in the drift gillnet fishery in California. Before you increase the size of the fishery please give Scientis time to learn more about the mola. We have been researching and videod ave finding. Please watch our video at vimeo.com/62194011 or it can be found on the Sanctuary Integrated Monitoring Network website. Write me back soon. Mola are an important part of the food web. Dear FFMC

How are you? I'm writing to let you know we're worried about the molas. I'm wondering if you could wait to increase the fishing area because we are wondering about How many dead molas result from being in the net. We've been studying molas and don't want them to die out. I've also heard you don't like jellys. Molas eat jellys so if you want less jellys, then try catching less molas, and keep more alive.

P.S If you catch a live mola put it back in the ocean.

RE: Oppose proposals to allow expansion of the drift gillnet fisheries to fish in the Pacific Leatherback Conservation Area

Dear Mr. Wolford and Mr. McInnis:

As members of the California State Assembly who are deeply invested in the long-term sustainability of California's ocean health, we are writing to express our strong concerns about proposals being developed to allow the California drift gillnet fleet to fish in the Pacific Leatherback Conservation Area (PLCA).

We have become aware that the Pacific Fisheries Management Council (the Council) will review specific proposals from National Marine Fisheries Service (NMFS) to make changes to the size and duration of the PLCA and consider setting new levels of allowable leatherback interactions for the fishery at its March 2013 meeting.

Given that leatherback sea turtles are highly endangered and the PLCA has successfully minimized interactions in the fishery to near zero over the past decade, we believe that allowing the high bycatch drift gillnet fishery to expand into the PCLA is very likely to threaten the health of California's ocean resources and marine wildlife, specifically endangered leatherback sea turtles and whales as well as non-target fish including sharks, bluefin tuna, sunfish and other species.

In addition to our concerns about the endangered Pacific leatherback sea turtle, which the state legislature recently designated as the official marine reptile of California with the passage of AB 1776(Fong), we also have concerns about the entanglement and death of two sperm whales in the California drift gillnet fishery in 2010, which equates to an estimated 16 entanglements of these endangered marine species. We understand that NMFS has not taken any official action to address this excess take and that the fishery is being allowed to operate in violation of the Marine Mammal Protection Act and Endangered Species Act.

Printed on Recycled Paper

The State of California has a long history of regulating the drift gillnet fishery in order to reduce and prevent negative impacts to the marine environment and protected species. While the fishery is now primarily managed by federal agencies, the state continues to issue permits and regulates the operation of the fishery. Therefore, the state Legislature has a direct interest in the management of the fishery.

We also understand in 2006, federal proposals to allow the drift gillnet fishery to expand into the PCLA were forwarded and defeated by opposition from the State of California as well as from scientists, recreational fishers, the conservation community, and the public. So, it is hard to understand why now, six years later, federal officials are attempting to raise this issue again.

Drift gillnets have been banned on the high seas along with most of the U.S. West Coast because of high bycatch of marine life including endangered whales, dolphins, sea turtles, shark, tuna and other non-target fish. Since the mid-1990s, the California drift gillnet fishery is steadily shrinking and the demand for swordfish in California and the U.S. has steadily declined. In addition, women and children are warned not to eat swordfish due to high mercury levels by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration.

From a fiscal perspective, it makes no sense to invest taxpayer dollars or support controversial proposals to expand the California swordfish fishery. Particularly the usage of high bycatch gear such as drift gillnets and longlining when the State of California and the Pacific Fisheries Management Council have consistently taken actions to limit or prohibit the gear over the past two decades.

Recently, new developments to protect endangered sea turtles along the West Coast must be considered in relation to the swordfish and shark fishery, including the designation of nearly 42,000 square miles of ocean as a critical habitat for the endangered Pacific leatherback sea turtle and the uplisting of the Pacific loggerhead from threatened to endangered under the U.S. Endangered Species Act.

For these reasons, we urge you to halt the federal agency efforts to expand the swordfish fishery before it goes any farther. Instead, we urge you to study how to phase out the drift gillnet fishery along our coast, permanently ban longlining along our coast under any circumstances and to support sustainable fishing practices that don't compromise the health of endangered species, fisheries and our oceans.

Dear Chairman Wolford and Administrator McInnis,

Please find attached a letter signed by 5450 members of the public from around the United States and internationally who oppose the federal efforts by Pacific Fishery Management Council and National Marine Fisheries Service to consider allowing California drift gillnet fleet sore swordfish and thresher shark to fish in the Pacific Leatherback Conservation Area.

They urge a no vote from all Council members at the March 2013 when this item will be presented. We realize that the final proposals have not yet been made public, but the Council and NFMS have made it clear that the intention is to increase fishing effort and the number of turtles and other marine mammals put at risk of entanglement in the fishery.

Please include these comments in the Feb. 7 briefing book deadline.

If you need them in another format, let me know. You can also find the petition online at http://action.seaturtles.org/p/dia/action/public/?action_KEY=12260

Thank you,

Teri Shore

RE: Public Comment, Pacific Fishery Management Council Meeting - March 2013
Item I. Highly Migratory Species Management: 1. NMFS Report Incl. Alternative Gear Impacts; 2. Swordfish Mgmt. Report on Changes to Turtle Conservation Area and Take Caps

Dear Chair Wolford, Council Members and Administrator McInnis,

Turtle Island Restoration Network (TIRN) is writing to urge the Pacific Fishery Management Council (the Council) to deny any further actions to make changes to the Pacific Leatherback Conservation Area (PLCA) or increase the level of endangered sea turtle interactions in the California drift gillnet fleet for swordfish and shark.

Considering any changes to the PLCA, introducing sea turtle take caps or switching to alternative gear types is premature at this time due to insufficient science to support any changes, the continued decline of Western Pacific leatherback populations by 6 percent per year, and the fact that the fishery is currently operating in violation of the U.S. Marine Mammal Protection Act and Endangered Species Act. Please consider the following:

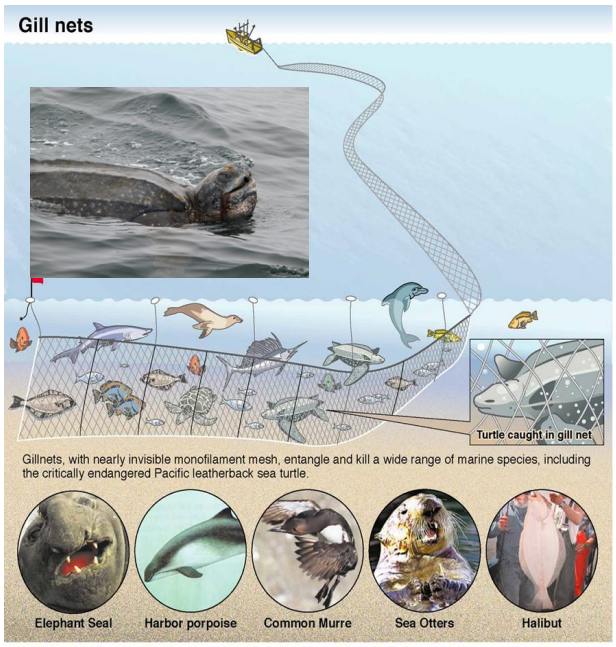

1. Insufficient science is currently available to support changes to the PLCA that would benefit leatherback protection or the fishery.

2. There is insufficient evidence of any substantive changes in the science on leatherbacks or in the fishery since similar proposals to allow fishing in the PLCA were denied in 2006.

3. The fishery is currently operating illegally in violation of the Endangered Species Act and the Marine Mammal Protection Act due to the observed take of two sperm whales in 2010; and the Incidental Take Permit in the fishery for marine mammals has lapsed.

4. There is insufficient science to support the introduction of higher limits on turtle takes to allow increased fishing effort.

5. During the year-long process to consider changes to the PLCA, there has been insufficient consideration of new developments in endangered species protections in waters where the fishery operates: a) designation of critical habitat for leatherback sea turtles in 42,000 square miles of ocean along the U.S. West Coast, b) uplisting of the Pacific loggerhead that is taken in the fishery from threatened to endangered, requiring increased protections, and c) pending designation of critical habitat for Pacific loggerheads along the U.S.West Coast.

6. Insufficient consideration of how allowing fishers into the PLCA might impact other bycatch species.

7. Insufficient consideration of science that may indicate a need to enlarge the PLCA or otherwise increase protections of sea turtles and endangered species in the fishery.

Please also review TIRNs' comments from March 2012, attached, which outline additional reasons for not allowing the process to change the PLCA to continue.

Insufficient Science to Support Changes to PLCA

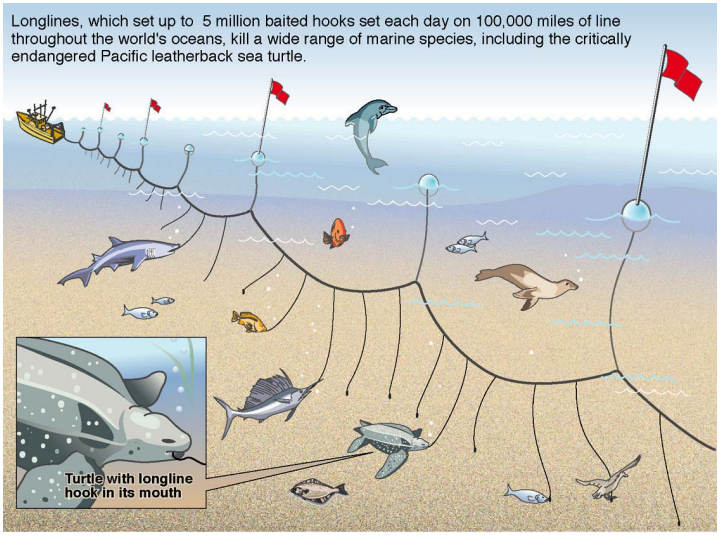

I attended the meeting of the Highly Migratory Species Management Team (the Team) of the Pacific Fishery Management Council January 23 to 25, 2013, at the National Marine Fisheries Service Southwest Fisheries Science Center in La Jolla. (See my summary and notes from the meeting attached at the end of these comments.)

At the meeting, the Team discussed opening the PLCA to the drift gillnet fishery for swordfish by reducing the length of time of the closure, the size of the closure and/or increasing the numbers of endangered leatherback sea turtles taken in the fishery from the current level of near-zero to another unspecified level. Options that will be presented to you at the March 2013 PFMC meeting will include all or some combination of the above. It is also possible that other alternatives not made public at the meeting could be presented.

The science presented at the Team meeting consisted of preliminary results from several fishery and leatherback research projects that could provide important new information to help manage the fishery and ensure sea turtle protection in the future. However, the science does not currently support any of the above proposals or any combination. Each of the scientific presenters made it clear that the data presented was preliminary was not yet ready for "prime time" for use in fishery management. A summary of science presented at the meeting is given below.

In addition, no evidence has been presented by the Team to date that opening the PLCA would significantly benefit the swordfish fleet given the fishery's size, revenues and constraints related to observer coverage.

Several Team members shared various economic theories for why the U.S. needs to produce more swordfish generally, but, even if valid, those theories don't directly support the need or benefits for fishing specifically in the PLCA, as compared to anywhere else along the U.S. West Coast or other U.S waters.

Longlining Not a Good FIshery Model

The Team is likely to offer examples of fishery management from other swordfish fisheries to argue for the expansion into the PLCA. However, the Council must ask the Team to explain how a different fishery using different gear in a different region of the ocean is comparable to the California drift gillnet fishery and how it directly supports changes to the PLCA or increase of turtle takes. TIRN's view is that it is not a valid "apple-to-apples" comparison.

The size and duration of the PLCA was based on science that documented high areas of leatherback activity. The behaviors of leatherbacks have not changed. New satellite telemetry reinforces the importance of the PLCA to leatherback protection from bycatch in the drift gillnet fishery. The only observed interaction of a leatherback since the PLCA was established occurred outside its boundaries. If anything, this fact points to the need to expand the PLCA to protect leatherbacks from the drift gillnet fishery, given the leatherback's continued decline.

Unless the Team presents conclusive and supportive science at the March 2013 Council meeting, it will not have fulfilled its task of providing science-based approaches for expanding the California drift gillnet fishery into the PLCA or increasing turtle take. In TIRN's view, the alternatives for changing the PLCA and increasing effort in the swordfish fishery that were discussed at the Team meeting in January 2013 appear to be arbitrary and not driven by science.

California Drift Gillnet Fishery Now Operating in Violation of U.S. Conservation Laws

Any changes to the California drift gillnet fishery that would allow an increase in fishing effort or take of endangered or protected species is also premature and probably illegal given that the fishery is now operating in violation of the U.S. Endangered Species Act and the Marine

Mammal Protection Act. This is due to the observed take of two sperm whales in 2010, which based on about 20 percent observer coverage, produces an estimate of approximately of 16 sperm whales killed or injured in the fishery that year. This level is above the Potential Biological Removal level for this endangered species.

In addition, due to NMFS inaction and oversight, the Incidental Take Permit for protected marine mammals under the MMPA and ESA has expired and it no longer valid--meaning any marine mammal take is currently illegal. A new Biological Opinion and convening of the Marine Mammal Take Reduction Team as required by the ESA and MMPA is overdue by as much as two years, and is a perquisite before any discussion of expanding the fishery.

Based on the discussions at the Team meeting, NMFS does not plan to remedy these ESA and MMPA violations until after the March 2013 PFMC meeting. In fact, NMFS appears to intentionally be delaying any remedies until fishing in the PLCA is proposed. However, it does not seem prudent (or legal) for the Council to take further action to increase fishing effort and level of takes of endangered species in a fishery that is not currently compliant with conservation laws.

Summary of science presented at HMSMT meeting in January 2013 in La Jolla

The science presented at the meeting consisted of ongoing research that is not extensive enough for fishery management purposes. The arguments to the Council are likely to be based on theories about market transfer and the need to expand the fishery for economic reasons, but supporting data was not presented as to how these theories specifically argue for changing the PLCA.

Here is what was presented in summary:

- The presentation on leatherback behavior in the PLCA and along the California coast, particularly on modeling times and areas of suspected foraging behavior, did not provide any conclusions that would assist fishery management, which was confirmed by the presenter.
- A presentation on a new model to estimate Potential Biological Removal Levels for sea turtles based on what is currently used for marine mammals
- A presentation on the research on buoy gear for swordfish provided preliminary results that made it clear that the gear was not ready for commercial deployment.
- A presentation on use of deep-set longline gear during the daytime in the PLCA was also preliminary and inconclusive and not ready for commercial deployment.

Scientific presentations brief overviews

1. Predicting behaviors of leatherback turtles in the California Current Ecosystem. Preliminary results. Tomo Eguchi, Scott Benson, Dave Foley.

Focus on this question: When leatherbacks are present in the ecosystem, can we predict their behavior?

They looked at various oceanographic conditions, telemetry positions and how they correlated with leatherback activity, specifically suspected foraging behavior. The model they developed seemed promising in being able to predict leatherback behavior within a given time window and correlated with the various oceanic conditions. Additional research is needed to further develop the model. Ultimately they want to look at whether they can predict when leatherbacks are present in the California Current and where. But that is not yet possible. The research is not currently extensive enough to be used in fishery management according to the presenter Tomo Eguchi. The presentation is not publicly available at this time as the results were preliminary and has not yet been peer reviewed or published.

2. Reproductive Value Loss Limit: Assessing Maximum Sustainable Incidental Take of Sea Turtles, Alexandra Curtis. Essentially, the presentation provided an overview of a model to try to come up with a formula for achieving a "Potential Biological Removal" level for sea turtles for a given population, similar to what is done with marine mammals. A paper on this subject was published in early 2013. Allowable take is currently evaluated on an incremental basis in each fishery. Instead of calculating an overall take level for a given population that would allow it to recover, take is calculated at a level that alone would not substantially increase its likelihood of extinction. However, when this same process is applied separately to many fisheries, the resulting cumulative impact across fisheries will have a very different impact on the population than any one fishery. The model has not yet been used to predict a PBR for any turtle population, but it could be a promising way to better assess the impacts of human take of turtles. However, if/when a PBR is determined, that would need to be allocated across all impacts and oceans, making it a difficult though perhaps promising tool. Right now it is not available for use in fishery management.

3. Development and Trials of Buoy Gear Off the California Coast, Chugey Sepulveda, Scott Aalbers, and Craig Heberer (NMFS) The presentation summarized two years worth of data using longline buoy gear for targeting swordfish along the Southern California coast and some initial research being conducted in the Pacific Leatherback Conservation Area (PLCA). It was made clear that it is not ready for commercialization in the swordfish fleet. The presentation is not publicly available because the research is preliminary and unpublished.

Key points included: The gear is inexpensive and probably low bycatch compared to the drift gillnet fishery, but the data is too preliminary to derive any conclusions. It is being set during the day, unlike gillnet gear or buoy gear in Florida, which is set at night. The goal is to catch swordfish with minimal bycatch. The gear is tended at all times. It is similar to "mousetrap" gear that is prohibited in California, but the main difference is that the gear is tended and also marked so that if it is lost, it can be tracked back to a specific vessel. The problem with mousetrap gear is that it was not attended, and lost gear was a huge problem. With about 32 sets, 15 swordfish were caught as well as: 2 opah, 7 bigeye thresher shark, 1 common thresher, 1 mola mola, 4 blue shark, no protected species. Two vessels were used.

In 2012, three cruises were conducted north of Pt. Conception in the PLCA between October and December. Six swordfish were tagged using harpoon gear. Six blue sharks were caught with the buoy gear.

4. Deep Set Longline Experiment

NMFS is setting deepset longlines during the day in the PLCA to ostensibly to study swordish and opah. An internal environmental review was conducted which recognized the risk of taking endangered leatherback sea turtles and other protected species. So far it has not.

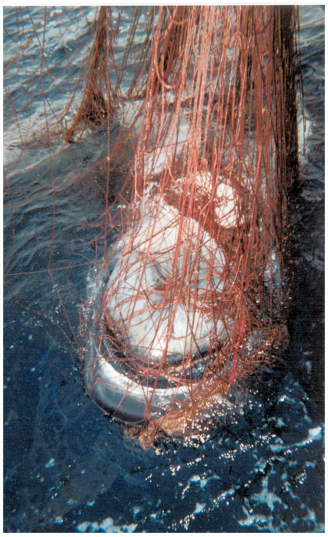

The catch and bycatch to date from two years of data reinforces that bycatch from longlines is high. Here are the totals of total catch and bycatch from the longline "experiment" were caught, and if alive, tagged and released: Swordfish: 4; blue shark, 267; Opah, 47; Pomfret, 13; Albacore, 4; bluefin, 2; mako, 1; dolphin fish, 1; skipjack, 9.

In TIRN's view, the deepset longline research seems counterproductive to fishery management along the U.S. West Coast because extensive research in the Pacific and Atlantic has already found that deepset longlines for tuna interact with leatherbacks. However, the researcher's premise is that setting the longline hooks "deep" during the day may avoid turtle interactions while targeting swordfish. The results so far are inconclusive.

Since longlining has long been banned by the state of California and by the FMP since 2004, it is not clear why this research is being undertaken. The Council should ask if NMFS is planning to propose introducing longlining along the U.S. West Coast despite several recent attempts that were ultimately denied. It seems to TIRN that the research funds could be better spent elsewhere on more sustainable fisheries, such as phasing out the drift gillnet fishery and transitioning fishers to other fisheries or to new opportunities.

High Bycatch of Protected Species and Finfish in California Drift Gillnet Fishery

In addition to the fact that there is insufficient science to support expanding the PLCA and that the fishery is currently operating in violation of U.S. conservation laws, another reason to halt expansion of the fishery into the PLCA is the continued high bycatch of protected species and finfish.

Megamouth Shark, an extremely rare species of deepwater shark, struggles to survive in a driftnet. NOAA photo.

More than 80 percent of fish and sea life caught in California's large mesh drift gillnet fleet is neither targeted swordfish nor thresher shark. Swordfish comprised only 12 percent of the total finfish catch over the past 10 years, and thresher shark, just 5 percent. Even when unintended fish is retained and sold as seafood, 20 to 30 percent of the total catch is tossed back, dead and damaged, including blue sharks, giant ocean sunfish, tunas and rays.

The Council should make note of the fact that the bycatch numbers for protected species and finfish presented by the Team in March 2012 consisted only of "observed take." Because observer coverage in the fishery averages 20 percent or less, and due to biases in the observer coverage, the total estimated numbers of protected species and finfish taken are at least five times higher than the observed levels. The Council should request that the Team present "estimated take" for all bycatch species to better provide a realistic view of the level of bycatch in the fishery.

TIRN is attempting to calculate these numbers for the Council by the March 2013 meeting, but NMFS is better equipped to provide the information. The bycatch reports published by NMFS for the fishery are inconsistent in presenting the data for observed take, estimated take and mortalities, making it very difficult for the public to come up with the correct analysis and totals.

However, based on the reports that are available to the public, it is clear that this fishery remains the highest bycatch fishery per unit of effort along the U.S West Coast (not including Alaska).

Protected Species Take

Over its history, the drift gillnet fishery has entangled 25 species of marine mammals, four species of sea turtles and three types of seabirds. On average more than 150 protected whales, dolphins, seals and sea lions are caught and discarded dead or dying every year. In doing so, the fishery has as part of routine operations violated laws protecting marine mammals and endangered species. As mentioned above, the fishery is now operating in violation of the ESA and MMPA due to takes of sperm whales.

As a result of the PLCA, the incidental take of endangered leatherback sea turtles was significantly reduced from an estimated 112 killed in the fishery between 1990 and 2000 to one observed leatherback taken and released alive between 2001 and 2012. Clearly, the PLCA has been successful in helping protect leatherbacks and ensure the fishery is compliant with conservation laws.

No new science presented by the Team or otherwise supports changing the PLCA. If anything, the science supports a need for stronger protections for leatherbacks from fisheries and other impacts. Since NMFS last denied the expansion of the fishery into the PLCA in 2006, we've learned that the Pacific leatherback population that visits the U.S. West Coast has continued to decline by about 6 percent per year. Increasing the takes of leatherbacks to allow more fishing in the closure area would contribute to further jeopardy of extinction for the Western Pacific population.

The establishment of critical habitat under the ESA for leatherbacks along the U.S. West Coast in 2012 proves that these coastal waters are important to the survival and recovery of the species internationally. Allowing increased takes of these sea turtles in the CA drift gillnet fishery is likely to jeopardize their recovery.

Last year, the Pacific leatherback was named the official marine reptile of California, signaling support for its protection by the state legislature and the governor, not to mention thousands of state residents, school children, scientist, researchers and the public.

The Council should also note that the Pacific loggerhead sea turtle was recently uplisted from threatened to endangered. Critical habitat must be designated for this species, which may include ocean waters along the California coast and where the CA drift gillnet fishery operates. This indicates a need for more, not less, protection of endangered sea turtle species from incidental take in the fishery.

Since the PLCA was instituted, the number of Pacific loggerheads killed in the fishery decreased from an estimated 25 between 1990 and 2000 to as few as three between 2001 and 2012. Allowing increased fishing at any level in the PLCA is likely to increase the takes of this endangered species.

While the PLCA is designed to protect leatherbacks, the time and area closure also indirectly reduces and prevents the take of marine mammals and finfish species, though those benefits have not been quantified by NMFS. The Council should ask NMFS to quantify the benefits of the PLCA to the full range of bycatch species before making any decisions about changing the PLCA.

Collateral Damage – Finfish

The tens of thousands of unwanted finfish indiscriminately captured by the gillnets consist of some of the most exploited and vulnerable fish in the sea: declining shortfin mako shark, disappearing Pacific bluefin tuna, and highly exploited albacore, skipjack and yellowfin tuna.

Fro example, the California drift gillnet fishery is likely to be contributing to the demise of the iconic and once abundant Pacific bluefin by catching an estimated 4,500 Pacific bluefin tuna, mostly juvenile fish, over the past decade. The Council must understand the impacts of the fishery on bluefin before enlarging the fishery.

An estimated 14,200 shortfin mako shark were taken as bycatch in the California drift gillnet fishery over the past decade. This level of constant carnage in the drift gillnet fishery may be taking a major toll on this important but declining shark species. The Council must find out before enlarging the fishery.

Very little is known about California's mysterious and beautifully red-rimmed moonfish, also known as opah. Until they started getting caught as bycatch in high numbers in the drift gillnet fishery, and in longline tuna fisheries, the fish was rarely consumed as commercial seafood. The fact that more than 11,000 of these silvery fish were killed and sold by the drift gillnet fishery over the past decade raises questions about long-term health of the moonfish populations. The Council must understand the impacts of the fishery on opah before enlarging the fishery.

The remarkable giant ocean sunfish, also called common mola, is carelessly captured and discarded by the tens of thousands in this fishery. Gillnets usually don't kill the placid sunfish immediately, but cut into their skin, scrape off their protective mucus and flood their gills with air. The fate of these peaceful sea creatures after fish handlers dump their silvery bodies back into the ocean is completely unknown.

Over the past decade, the numbers of observed sunfish caught per 100 swordfish has nearly doubled from 250 to 150 per swordfish. During that time, more than 100,000 individual sunfish were entangled and discarded overboard. The survival rate for these fish if still alive remains unknown. The Council must better understand the impacts of this high bycatch on sunfish before expanding the fishery.

With the exception of ocean sunfish, blue sharks are caught in greater numbers than any other finfish bycatch species taken in the fishery. Over the past 10 years, more than 14,000 blue shark were entangled and dumped dead and dying back into the ocean by the California drift gillnet fleet.

New studies show that bycatch in commercial fisheries for swordfish and tuna in the Pacific is devastating blue shark populations by as much as 5 percent per year. (Clarke 2012) This is a sharp decline for a shark known for its wide range, abundance and ability to reproduce more quickly than other slow-maturing shark species. Nearly all blue shark entangled by the drift gillnet fishery are discarded at sea dead or dying. A NMFS 2009 analysis of observer coverage in the drift gillnet fishery between 1990 to 2008 found that 63 percent of blue sharks caught were discarded dead.

The Council should also be aware that the great white shark, which is sometimes caught in the fishery, is being considered for listing under the California and U.S. Endangered Species Act. The California Fish and Wildlife Commission on February 6 is expected to make a decision about listing the species as endangered. This would require a new review of impacts to the species in the CA drift gillnet fishery. Any expansion efforts before such an analysis would be premature.

Before making any further decisions about expanding the CA drift gillnet fishery, the Council must require the Team to provide details on the bycatch, status and potential harm to all finfish species.

CONCLUSION

Based on the lack of sufficient science to support any changes to the PLCA, the continued decline of endangered leatherback and loggerhead sea turtles that are taken in the California drift gillnet fishery, the fact that the fishery is currently operating in violation of the U.S.

Endangered Species Act and Marine Mammal Protection Act due to sperm whale takes in 2010, and the continued bycatch of protected species and large volumes of non-target finfish bycatch, it is premature, at best, for the Council to take any further action to explore changes to the PLCA or takes of endangered sea turtles or other protected species or increase fishing effort in the California drift gillnet fishery.

If anything, the Council should direct the HMSMT to evaluate and institute stronger measures to reduce and minimize protected species and finfish bycatch in the fishery; and to consider ways for the fishery to transition to more sustainable gears and for the fishers to transition to other sustainable fisheries, preferably fish that are healthy alternatives to mercury-laden swordfish and shark.

For example, now that the U.S.-Canadian albacore treaty is in limbo, perhaps it is timely to consider moving the swordfish drift gillnetters over to the certified sustainable troll and line albacore fishery, which is generally low in mercury compared to swordfish and shark. This could be part of the negotiations with Canada, to allow the small number of fishers left in the CA gillnet fleet into the fishery. In fact, several already fish for albacore and have the gear and expertise to do so.

In any case, the Council must direct the HMSMT and National Marine Fisheries Service to take the following immediate actions related to the CA drift gillnet fishery:

1. Immediately comply with the ESA and MMPA,

2. Provide estimated bycatch numbers for all protected species and finfish, not just observed take,

3. Provide an analysis of the status of and impacts to all protected species and finfish in the fishery,

4. Provide an analysis of additional measures to reduce and minimize bycatch in the fishery,

5. Provide a detailed history of the fishery management scheme and protective measures in the Hawaii longline fishery if it is to be considered rationale for expanding the CA drift gillnet fishery,

6.Provide update on the proposed uplisting of the great white shark to endangered under state and federal law and take in the fishery,

7. Require NMFS to quantify the protection benefits of the PLCA to the full range of bycatch species before making any decisions about changing the PLCA.

TIRN Comments from February 2012 on Council consideration of changing PLCA

TIRN Summary of HMSMT Meeting in La Jolla, January 2013

In order to provide the Council with a view to the rationale that is likely to be presented by the Team for action at the meeting, TIRN is providing its summary and perspective of the meeting here. TIRN will also provide additional written and public comment at the Council once more definitive proposals are presented.

Please also consider TIRN's comments from the March 2012 meeting, which remain relevant, as well as letters from other constituents that are being submitted in opposition to the expansion of the fishery into the PLCA, changes to the PLCA, and increased turtle takes.

Here are the options that were discussed at the HMSMT meeting in La Jolla. None were prioritized at the public meeting.

1. Reduce the size of the closure of the Southern Boundary north so that the boundary extends directly west from Point Sur (36 degrees 18.5' N lat.) to the current western boundary at 129 degrees W long.

TIRN comment: This would essentially carve out a triangle from the bottom of the closure area. It is not clear how or why this particular configuration would benefit the fishery or reduce risk of turtle interactions. It appears totally arbitrary.

2. Delay the start of the closure period from August 15 to Sept. 1 and/or move up the end of closure period from Nov. 15 to Oct. 31.

TIRN Comment: Fishers at the meeting disagreed as to which would benefit them. No evidence was presented to show how changing the time of the closure would reduce turtle interactions or benefit the swordfish fishery.

3. Combinations of the above and time period changes.

4. Additional alternatives based on scientific consideration.

Another alternative could potentially be developed based on scientific considerations regarding time-area combinations with the most favorable combinations of low leatherback sea turtle interaction rates and high swordfish catch rates. This modeling strategy for proposal development could also be applied to other alternatives as part of evaluating their impacts.

TIRN comment: This was never fleshed out and no science presented to support any such alternative, which may also go beyond the Council's direction.

5. Application of Turtle hard caps

a. Take caps establish a limit on the numbers of turtle interactions on turtle takes that could occur before fishing is prohibited for the remainder of the season.

b. They have been used in the HI surface longline fishery for swordfish since it reopened in 2004, subject to 100 percent observer coverage requirements on SSLL effort. Under an effort limit of 2,120 sets, initial caps of 16 loggerhead and 17 leatherback interactions were adopted, reflecting the anticipated levels of interactions in the Incidental Take Statement. These were recently increased to 26 leatherbacks and 34 loggerheads based on a revised ITS with higher levels of expected effort due to removing the set limit.

TIRN Comment: This increased take level, considering the endangered status of the two sea turtle species, is currently being challenged in federal court as being illegal under the Endangered Species Act. The Hawaii longline fishery has a long and troublesome history marked by closures and court-ordered reform due to violations of the ESA and MMPA. TIRN would caution the Council in using this fishery as a model for the California drift gillnet fishery. For one, the gear is vastly differently, the size and composition of the fleet is different, and the fishing grounds are not comparable. However it is true that this fishery takes turtles from the same populations of endangered turtles as the CA DGN fishery. If anything, this would argue for less, not more, turtle takes.

The Council should require the Team provide a full history and review of the Hawaii longline fishery if its management is to be used as rationale for expanding the CA drift gillnet fishery. Just taking one piece of the management scheme, i.e. turtle hard takes, is not adequate nor a solid rationale for any changes to the PLCA.

c. The turtle take caps could potentially be applied as a precautionary management measure with any change to allow DGN effort in the time-area combinations that were closed since 2001.

TIRN comment - not sure what is meant by this since the time-area closure began in 2001 and did not exist before then. Perhaps it is referring to previous state and federal regulations limiting the fishery due to high bycatch.

The process for opening the PLCA:

1. Exempted Fishing Permit

2. Amendment to the FMP.

Timing -

EFP - two meeting process - June and September (every year).

FMP amendment - would need to be included in bi-ennial planning process.

The Council makes a recommendation; NMFS would issue the permit and has discretion to make decision.

An FMP amendment would be required if a proposal is a "major or controversial action outside the scope of the original FMP." The PLCA is in the original FMP, but is considered "controversial." So the Council would decide which way to go based on the HMSMT recommendations, which are likely to be for an EFP.

Biological Opinion: Any changes would require a new Biological Opinion and and/or rolling the BIOP for the existing fishery into a new one.

TIRN Comment: However, the Team failed to mention that the fishery is currently operating in violation of the ESA and MMPA due to an expired ITS for marine mammals and exceeding PBR for sperm whales. I suggested that they must include this in the report, as seems premature at best to increase effort in a fishery that is currently operating in violation of conservation law.

It was apparent that the overdue BIOP and ITS is not going to be released before the March 2013 meeting.

Observer Coverage: TIRN summary: The team talked about the need for observer coverage in the fishery and the costs. The estimated cost is $1,000 to $2,000 per sea day due to the small size of the fishery. Many vessels are "unobservable" due to the size of the vessel; so current bycatch estimates are not accurate. The cost of 100 percent observer coverage becomes more challenging with the number of vessels. At the same time, with more vessels, you can reduce the number of observers. However, the fishers that were there made it clear that they did not like carrying observers and felt that there was enough data on bycatch, and would rather not have any observer coverage at all. This issue was not resolved nor the costs estimated at this point.

The team's arguments continue to focus on:

1. Decline of the swordfish fleet since the 2001 closure - that the closure was the reason for the decline. TIRN comment: This is an unfounded approach since the fishery has been in decline far longer than that. In fact, consumption of swordfish and shark in the US is down because both the U.S. FDA and EPA have issued warnings advising the majority of U.S. residents (women of child-bearing age and children) NOT to eat swordfish or shark fish due to their toxic level of mercury.

2. A need to expand the fleet to provide more domestic swordfish in order to offset imports. TIRN comment: So far, this remains an unfounded theory that has not been peer reviewed. Another failure in this approach is that it fails to recognize that the U.S. has the authority to require foreign fleets to meet U.S. standards if they want to the sell to our market. But NMFS has never taken action to do this (except in the case of TEDs in the shrimp fishery after favorable decisions under international law). Now nations must be certified as using TEDs before selling wild caught shrimp into the U.S. The U.S. has the authority to set similar standards for swordfish and other fisheries, but had failed to do so.

3. The Hawaii longline fishery uses turtle hard caps and recently increased the number. The drift gillnet fishery should be able to use the same approach. However, fishers and NMFS staff at the meeting argued against the need for 100 percent observer coverage due to costs and inconvenience to the fisher, and the unobservable boats. The fact is that there has been close to zero turtle takes in 10 years so any turtle hard caps have the potential to increase takes of critically endangered animals in the protected area.

End of TIRN summary of Team meeting.

RE: Agenda Item I.2, Drift Gillnet Swordfish Fishery Management

Dear Chairman Dan Wolford and Regional Administrator McInnis:

We the undersigned 36,483 individuals (including 7, 116 California residents; 990 Oregon residents; 1,403 Washington residents; and 119 Idaho residents) urge the National Marine Fisheries Service to halt the current effort to expand the California-based drift gillnet fishery, and shift its efforts toward eliminating the fishery altogether. This fishery entangles and kills over a hundred marine mammals per year, continues to take endangered sea turtles, as well as non-target fish such as blue shark, bigeye thresher shark, striped marlin, ocean sunfish, and others. Despite the current regulations in place, the continued bycatch from drift gillnets is unacceptable. Any proposed expansion of the fishery will also encroach on recently designated critical habitat of the endangered leatherback sea turtle, whose population continues to decline. The National Marine Fisheries Service has the legal responsibility to protect leatherback sea turtles, their habitat, and ensure recovery of the species. Continuing to authorize the drift gillnet fishery, much less considering expanding it, fundamentally contradicts the agency's responsibility to the citizens of the United States.

When these curtains of death are left to soak in ocean waters overnight they entangle some of the California Current's top pelagic predators and migratory species. In order to maintain ocean health and biodiversity of the California Current marine ecosystem, drift gillnets should be eliminated and replaced with fishing methods that are proven to be clean, and NMFS has an important responsibility to identify and promote such methods. To address concerns over imported swordfish, NMFS should be focusing on actions to level the playing field by requiring importing countries to adopt and enforce equally stringent regulations to the U.S., rather than chipping away at U.S. regulations to bring us to the lowest common denominator. Ultimately, we should be talking about using gear types that reduce bycatch, not expanding an inherently unselective fishing method which we know will kill additional non-target fish and threatened and endangered species.

Sincerely,

ICONIC WHALES IN TROUBLE

Sperm whales are truly magnificent creatures, making some of the deepest dives of all whale species. Of the estimated 971 sperm whales in the Pacific West Coast stock, the National Marine Fisheries Service estimated that 16 whales were taken by the drift gillnet fishery in 2010 alone, far exceeding the allowable take of these endangered species under the federal Endangered Species and Marine Mammal Protection Acts.

ABOUT SPERM WHALES:

- Sperm whales can dive for a duration of over an hour and reach depths of over 3,280 feet.
- They are the largest of the toothed whales, with males weighing up to 45 tons and measuring 52 feet in length.
- Sperm whales have the largest brain of any animal, it can take up about 1/3 of the whale's total body length.
- Female sperm whales only produce a calf approximately once every five years.

Examples of bycatch documented from the drift gillnet fishery include:

leatherback sea turtles loggerhead sea turtles
Risso's dolphins
Dall's porpoises
Pacific white-sided dolphins
Northern right whale dolphins Pacific electric rays short-finned pilot whales humpback whales
minke whales
sperm whales
California sea lions
Northern elephant seals
blue sharks
salmon sharks
bigeye thresher sharks striped marlin albacore tuna
mola molas
white sharks
basking sharks
megamouth sharks
short-and-long-beaked common dolphins

Oceana is the largest international advocacy group working solely to protect the world's oceans. Oceana wins policy victories for the oceans using science-based campaigns. Since 2001, we have protected over 1.2 million square miles of ocean and innumerable sea turtles, sharks, dolphins and other sea creatures. More than 550,000 supporters have already joined Oceana. Global in scope, Oceana has offices in North, South and Central America and Europe.

End the Walls of Death

Replace devastating drift gillnets off California with cleaner fishing gear

WALLS OF DEATH

In the Pacific Ocean off California, mile-long driftnets are used to capture swordfish and thresher sharks. But that's not all they catch. When the nets are deployed in the evenings to soak overnight to ensnare their targeted catch, they also entangle large open ocean travelers, including whales, dolphins, seals, sea turtles, numerous shark species and many other ecologically and economically important fish. The nets inflict such devastation to marine life that they earned the name "Walls of Death."

The drift gillnet fishery tosses 20–30% of its fish catch back into the ocean dead or damaged. In the 2010–2011 season, over 27 common molas, fondly called ocean sunfish, were discarded for every swordfish caught.

Common molas are bycatch in the drift gillnet fishery

When a sea turtle, sea lion, or whale swims into the net, they become entangled in the mesh walls, leaving them incapacitated and unable to surface for air. When the nets are pulled from the water onto the fishing boats in the morning, they contain disturbing and unacceptably high numbers of dead and dying species of marine life. This fishery's high level of indiscriminate catch of non-targeted species results in the death of over a hundred marine mammals per year; also killed and injured are endangered Pacific leatherback and loggerhead sea turtles, striped marlin, albacore tuna, blue sharks, bigeye thresher sharks, and great white sharks.

WHAT WE SHOULD DO NOW:

1. Phase out drift gillnets altogether.

2. Replace with cleaner gears such as harpoons which have zero bycatch and consider other cleaner alternatives.

DRIFT GILLNETS & SEA TURTLES

The ocean waters off the coasts of California, Oregon, and Washington are a primary destination for endangered Western Pacific leatherback sea turtles which make a 6,000 mile migration from nesting beaches in Indonesia to the U.S. West Coast specifically to feed on jellyfish. Sea turtles are navigation specialists but encounter many perils on their great migration including capture in drift gillnets at their feeding grounds. With a population decline of over 85% since the 1980s and continued 6% annual decline, they need protective measures to increase their chances of survival.

Data provided by NOAA Protected Resouces/NOAA SWFSC

In 2012, based on new scientific research and as a direct result of Oceana's petition to the federal government, the National Marine Fisheries Service (NMFS) designated 41,914 square miles of ocean waters off the shores of Washington, Oregon, and California as critical habitat for Pacific leatherback sea turtles under the Endangered Species Act. This adds additional habitat protections on top of the previously established Pacific Leatherback Conservation Area (PLCA), where drift gillnet fishing is prohibited annually from August 15 through November 15 to protect leatherback sea turtles that feed off the West Coast. The PLCA extends from shore to the high seas and from Point Sur, California to mid-Oregon.

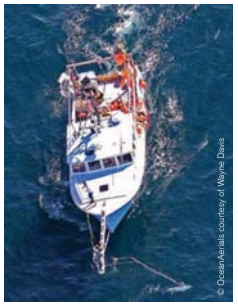

3. Until drift gillnets are phased out, require 100% observer coverage to adequately monitor and account for all bycatch and discards.

4. Until drift gillnets are phased out, institute hard bycatch caps on all marine life taken.

FISHING INDUSTRY AT A CROSSROAD

Historically swordfish off California were skillfully caught with harpoons, allowing fishermen to catch swordfish one by one with virtually zero bycatch. The fishery transformed from the predominant harpoon fishery to primarily a drift gillnet fishery in the early 1980s when driftnets became legal to use and restrictions were placed on the harpoon fishery. Since then, the price of a pound of swordfish caught by harpoon has more than doubled relative to the price of gillnet caught swordfish. For example, in 2008, harpoon caught swordfish yielded $6.26 per pound compared to $2.80 per pound for drift gillnet caught swordfish.

With the introduction of drift gillnets, swordfish landings increased initially, but for a variety of reasons gillnet landings have waned in the last two decades. While California landings of swordfish from drift gillnets have hovered around 500 metric tons annually over the past decade, the harpoon fishery brought in over 1,600 metric tons at its peak in 1979. Furthermore, in 2009 due to concerns regarding high levels of bycatch, the Oregon Fish and Wildlife Commission banned the use of drift gillnets in Oregon state waters, making it illegal for Oregon-based fishermen to use drift gillnet gear off the state's coast. Washington also prohibits drift gillnet gear for swordfish, leaving California as the only West Coast state still allowing this destructive fishing gear that wreaks havoc on our ocean's diverse marine life.

NEXT STEPS:

The drift gillnet fishery is really a declining industry, already phased out in many other coastal states across the west and east coast. For years NMFS has been trying to expand the drift gillnet fishery and the agency is currently looking at how to revitalize California's swordfish fishery. Instead of looking to stimulate the fishery with this destructive gear, fishery managers should focus on revitalizing the harpoon fishery and exploring other clean ways to catch swordfish.

History has shown that catching swordfish with harpoons is feasible, has virtually no bycatch, and results in a higher price per pound for catch at the dock. It is time to remove the "Walls of Death" from our California shoreline and move to cleaner fishing gears to ensure a vibrant, healthy, sustainable marine ecosystem and ocean-based economy into the future.

RE: Comments on Council Agenda Item B.3.d Swordfish Management Data Report and Future Management Recommendations for Briefing Book – February 29-March 7, 2012 Meeting

Dear Chairman Wolford and Council Members,

Turtle Island Restoration Network (TIRN) is writing to urge the Pacific Fishery Management Council (the Council) to take action at this meeting to not proceed further with any efforts to expand the California drift gillnet fishery for swordfish and sharks or to develop a new pelagic longline fishery for swordfish and sharks off the U.S. West Coast.

At the November 2011 Council meeting where expanding the West Coast swordfish fishery was last discussed, TIRN expressed our concern and disappointment that National Marine Fisheries Service (NMFS) is once again pushing to increase Pacific swordfish landings and fishing effort with gears known to have high levels of bycatch of non-target fish such as sharks, billfish and tunas, marine mammals and endangered sea turtles.

Please see attached letter dated October 21, 2011, which describes in detail the reasons against expanding or developing a new West Coast swordfish fishery.

The letter spells out why it is unreasonable and counter-productive for NMFS to seek to expand the swordfish fishery at a time when West Coast states and our nation are seeking to attain sustainable fisheries and ecosystem-based approaches to management that protect and maintain the health and biodiversity of our oceans.

In its current state of operations, the California drift gillnet swordfish fishery continues to capture and kill dolphins and sea lions, and to toss back, dead and damaged, 20 to 30 percent of its catch of fish. The current time and area closures required in the fishery appear to have reduced interactions with endangered sea turtles. However, with observer coverage levels falling far below the required 20 percent, it is not certain that the fishery is adequately protecting these endangered marine species from jeopardy under the Endangered Species Act. Allowing more take of these highly endangered marine species in order to expand the fishery would not be helpful to sea turtle survival and recovery.

Additionally, this fishery is responsible for large volumes of bycatch of blue sharks, ocean sunfish (mola mola), thresher sharks and shortfin mako sharks. Increasing the size of this fishery without appropriate gear or mitigations will increase bycatch of these species. The status of offshore stocks of these shark species and how they interact with inshore populations is poorly known.

Further, it would be unreasonable to continue to invest in and promote controversial federal efforts to develop a pelagic longline fishery for swordfish when the State of California and the Pacific Fishery Management Council have already taken actions to prohibit it due to the high levels of bycatch associated with the fishery and the take of endangered and threatened species.

As stated in the letter, if, however, the Council, NMFS and state agencies are going to spend valuable time and taxpayer money investigating approaches to expand commercial fishing for swordfish on the West Coast, you can expect serious challenges by conservation organizations and others if those efforts are 1) not associated with the phase out and prohibition of drift gillnet gear, and 2) associated with any experimental gear that is similar to the drift gillnet or pelagic longline gear that NMFS has already tried, but failed to advance in recent years.

New and Related Federal and Other Actions

Since we submitted our October letter and since the November Council meeting, the following new and related federal and other actions must be considered in relation to any decisions about expanding or developing a new West Coast swordfish fishery. Here is a summary of those developments. More details will be presented at the Council meeting.

Leatherback Critical Habitat Designated Offshore California, Oregon and Washington Coasts

On February 27, 2012, new regulations take effect that designate nearly 42,000 square miles of ocean as critical habitat for leatherback sea turtles off the coasts of California, Oregon and Washington. The designation does not, in our view, go far enough in protecting leatherback migratory pathways or water quality and the rule fails to consider shipping and other habitat threats. However, it does require that any new federal activities such as energy projects, aquaculture or coastal development do not negatively impact leatherback prey species or foraging grounds.

Allowing an increase in the swordfish fishery has the real potential to harm leatherback habitat as a result of increased vessel activity, entanglement, and energy expenditures required for a leatherback to change course in order to avoid fishing gear when migrating to and from foraging grounds.

Importantly, the designation process helped NMFS pull together all of the data on leatherback migratory pathways, bycatch locations in the drift gill net fishery and observed sightings (see attached map). This data shows that leatherback sea turtles use waters inside the U.S. EEZ beyond the Pacific Leatherback Conservation Area (PLCA) (drift gill net time and area closure) and that they are vulnerable to capture outside of the PLCA.

North Pacific Loggerhead Uplisted to Endangered –Critical Habitat and New Bi-OP Needed

The uplisting of the Pacific loggerhead sea turtle from threatened to endangered last year requires that a new Biological Opinion (Bi-Op) be completed for the existing California drift gillnet fishery and to re-examine incidental take levels and other protection measures. This is likely to trigger provisions for stronger protections for this sea turtle species during El Niño years and at all times due to increasing climate change impacts. In addition, NMFS is now required to consider and establish critical habitat for Northern Pacific loggerheads as a result of the uplisting. No new federal actions should occur in U.S. waters where this species occurs until critical habitat rulemaking and a new Bi-Op are completed.

Leatherback Conservation Area Should Be Enlarged

New and comprehensive science supporting the designation of critical habitat for leatherbacks along the West Coast also supports the fact that these waters, where the swordfish fishery now operates, attracts high concentrations of leatherback sea turtles. Currently, the PLCA covers many of the areas where leatherback interactions have occurred. However, the science also shows that leatherback interactions and satellite telemetry locations occur frequently outside of the PLCA.

Any review of the existing swordfish fishery should consider the expansion of the PLCA in size and duration to ensure adequate protection for leatherback sea turtles and to prevent increased harm. TIRN and our allies will oppose any reduction in the size or duration of the PLCA to accommodate a new or enlarged gillnet or longline fishery for swordfish.

Problems with Existing Drift Gillnet Fishery – Observers, Takes and Violations

Observer coverage in the existing West Coast drift gillnet fishery has fallen well below the 20 percent level required by the 2004 Bi-Op each year since 2006, suggesting that takes of leatherbacks and other sea turtle species and marine mammals may be exceeding allowable levels.

According to the 2004 Bi-Op, one observed interaction with a leatherback in a fishing season equates to nine entanglements and six mortalities over three years. The fishery currently has an incidental take statement for up to 3 anticipated leatherback interactions and 2 anticipated estimated mortalities annually. In October 2009, one leatherback was observed taken in the drift net fishery and released unharmed. This one observed take occurred when the fleet had the lowest observer coverage of any previous year at 13 percent.[1] This suggests that incidental take limits have been reached and perhaps exceeded given this period of low observer coverage.

In addition, we were very concerned to learn that no observers were placed on vessels during January 2009, a month when entanglement of common dolphins, a protected marine mammal species, is typically highest.[2]

We also understand that the one leatherback sea turtle interaction that was observed was entangled outside the PLCA. This was the first observed interaction recorded by NMFS since before 2001 when the PLCA was established. Given this information alone, NMFS should consider whether the size of the PLCA is adequate and whether it should be expanded in size and extended in duration.

The drift gillnet fishery has an incidental take statement for up to five anticipated loggerhead interactions and two anticipated mortalities annually. The Bi-Op equates one observed interaction to 5 entanglements and two mortalities, but only in El Niño years. Given that that one loggerhead was observed injured in 2006/07; and another one in 2001/2002, we are also concerned that for those two seasons, the take limit was met. Given the low observer coverage, it is also possible that the take limits were exceeded.

In addition, these loggerhead entanglements occurred in years that were not designated as El Niño years by NMFS. With such low observer coverage and the declining populations of loggerheads, the Council and NMFS must immediately re-evaluate the El Niño take approach and implement measures to protect loggerheads at all times, including more accurate time and area closures to prevent interactions.

The Council and NMFS should consider the following when reviewing the swordfish and thresher shark fishery:

1. Extend the duration of the PLCA by at least two months, from July to December.
2. Extend the areas of the PLCA to include the Southern California Bight
3. Apply the loggerhead conservation area in the Southern California Bight to all years, not just during declared El Niño events.

Lastly, as the Council is aware, violations have occurred in the fishery as recently as last season when a drift gillnet fisherman was caught offshore of California in a closed area during a closed time with an illegal, over-sized gillnet violating the laws created to protect endangered leatherback sea turtles. The gillnet was more than 6,000 feet long, 900 feet over the maximum length allowed.

State Bans on Drift Gillnet and Longline Fisheries

Oregon banned drift gillnet fishing in its state waters in December 2009. The state also retired all its swordfish longline permits and experimental fishing permits in 2010. Washington State does not allow either gear in its waters. California has had a long-standing ban on longline fisheries in its waters and has opposed federal actions to re-open longline fisheries every time it has been attempted by the NMFS Southwest Region. Similar opposition can be expected if with any new swordfish proposal. See attached fact sheet which provides chronology of opposition from state of California.

Hawaii Surface Longline Fishery Closure, Take Exceedances and New Biological Opinion

When considering the West Coast swordfish fishery, the Council should review relevant federal actions and sea turtle take in Pacific Islands region longline fisheries managed by the Western Pacific Fishery Management Council (WESPAC).

The Hawaii surface longline fishery for swordfish was forced to close in November 2011 for the remainder of the year when it reached the take limit of 16 endangered Pacific leatherback sea turtles, despite the use of circle hooks and finfish bait and other measures designed to minimize interactions and mortality. These leatherbacks originate from the same population that utilizes the U.S. West Coast and interacts with the drift gillnet fishery, according to new Biological Opinion on the Continued Operation of the Hawaii-based Shallow-set Longline Swordfish Fishery dated January 30, 2012 (Hawaii Bi-Op).

Regulations governing the Hawaii-based shallow-set pelagic longline fishery for swordfish set annual limits of 16 leatherback sea turtles and 17 loggerhead sea turtles that can be hooked, injured or killed. Earlier this year, conservation groups successfully defended these sea turtle take limits for loggerheads in court, after the WESPAC and NMFS tripled loggerhead take to 46.

The new Hawaii Bi-Op also revealed that takes of green sea turtles in this fishery were exceeded, triggering the new Bi-Op, which was also required due to the Pacific loggerhead uplisting.

From January to September 16, 2011, there were four observed green turtle interactions in the fishery, when the incidental take limit in the 2008 Bi-Op authorized the take of three green turtles over a three-year period, including one mortality.

Nevertheless, the new Hawaii Bi-Op seeks increased take of these endangered sea turtle species, which we will oppose when the new Fishery Management Plan is released for public review. It seems counter-intuitive to increase allowable takes of an endangered species after its protective status is increased due to vulnerability to extinction.

America Samoa Deep Set Longline Fishery Exceeds Leatherback Takes

In another instance of longline fisheries exceeding sea turtle take limits, in 2011 the American Samoa deep-set longline fishery exceeded its take limits on leatherback sea turtles of one observed interaction every three years. Two leatherbacks were taken in 2011, one injured and one dead. The three-year limit of one olive ridley was also taken.

A new regulation prohibiting deep-set longline gear to be set below 100 meters was finalized in September 2011 for the American Samoa fishery, though this measure was never proven to be effective in reducing sea turtle interactions, according to the rulemaking documents. However, now WESPAC is proposing to introduce a new shallow-set longline fishery for swordfish in this same fishery region, an action that given the history of the deep-set fishery is certain to result in additional takes of endangered and threatened sea turtles.

Given these recent and ongoing violations of the Endangered Species Act by U.S. longline and drift gillnet fisheries, not to mention shrimp trawl, scallop dredge and other gears harmful to protected species, it is difficult to understand or support federal fishery managers that want to expand unsustainable fisheries and allow increase takes of the most vulnerable creatures in the ocean primarily for the benefit of short-term seafood profits and high-end fish consumers who can still afford to dine on high-priced swordfish. We urge the Council to consider these issues when deliberating the West Coast swordfish history.

Spillover Effects – Killing Sea Turtles to Save Sea Turtles

In order to rationalize its promotion of unsustainable fisheries, NMFS is now using the argument that allowing increased endangered sea turtle takes in U.S. waters will actually save sea turtles from fisheries that operate in foreign fleets. In a new Technical Memo (Technical Memorandum NOAA Technical Memorandum NMFS-PIFSC-30 January 2012 Spillover Effects of Environmental Regulation for Sea Turtle Protection: The Case of the Hawaii Shallow-set Longline Fishery), NMFS argues that providing more domestic swordfish will displace an equal amount (1 to 1) of foreign swordfish caught in the Pacific by longliners that don't impose comparable conservation measures, thereby saving sea turtles. We suspect that the technical memo, which is cited extensively in the Hawaii Bi-Op will be used to argue for the enlargement of the West Coast swordfish fishery.

TIRN is not prepared at this time to provide our complete response to the technical memo or the flawed spillover effects argument here, but would like to make several points that we hope that the Council will consider when scrutinizing the data provided by NMFS:

1. The NMFS Technical Memo is founded on a number of unsupported assumptions, not on any actual bycatch or observer or swordfish landings data from any foreign fisheries, as stated on Page 65 of the Hawaii Bio-Op:
   Due to limited reporting of sea turtle bycatch in foreign fisheries within the area, Chan and Pan were not able to make precise estimates of the bycatch numbers of individual species that would be beneficially affected. Based on the similarities of fishing styles and the area of operation, we can estimate the bycatch numbers by species by comparing data from the Hawaii fishery. We note, however, that because the data on foreign fisheries is likely incomplete or inaccurate, foreign fishery bycatch rate estimation is imprecise. In addition, the expected number of sea turtle interactions with foreign fisheries that would have occurred but for the proposed action cannot be confirmed by direct observation. Therefore, for purposes of our spillover effects analysis, we do not believe the projected reduction in mortality numbers based on interactions avoided by foreign fisheries are at a level of precision as those data we analyzed for the direct effects of the proposed action (i.e., interactions observed with 100% observer coverage in the Hawaii shallow-set fishery).

2. Given that much of the swordfish caught in the Pacific is retained bycatch from tuna fisheries, neither effort or production is likely to be reduced by increasing domestic effort or production of targeted swordfish.
3. There is no evidence that if the U.S. swordfish supply did in fact saturate the market, that foreign fleets wouldn't simply sell to other markets where there is a demand for swordfish, casting considerable doubt on the market transfer effect.
4. The U.S. has full regulatory authority to restrict the imports of swordfish and other seafood from fishing nations that do not impose comparable fishing practices. However, it has not chosen to do so. We have urged NMFS to finalize the advanced notice of proposed rulemaking published in 2010 that would impose comparable standards on foreign fleets and establish a level playing field for U.S. fisheries. (See attached Federal Rulemaking and TIRN's comments).

Regulation to Increased Retention of Swordfish in West Coast Deep Set Longline Fishery

Recently NMFS, with support from the Council, published a proposed new regulation that would allow the West Coast deep-set high seas longline fishery to retain more swordfish. The regulation stated its intent as achieving consistency with swordfish retention limits in the Hawaii longline fleet managed by the Western Pacific Fishery Management Council (WESPAC). However, since WESPAC has not yet adopted a new swordfish retention regulation, pending consultation on seabird interactions, the proposed rule was premature, at best. The public comment period on the new seabird Bi-Op just closed today, February 9, 2012. See our comments on this rule prepared on our behalf, attached.

In any case, the proposed rule (NOAA–NMFS–2011–0211 Fisheries Off West Coast States; Highly Migratory Species Fisheries; Swordfish Retention Limits (RIN 0648–BA87) needs to be considered in relation to any action on the West Coast swordfish fishery in terms of the cumulative impacts on swordfish and take of protected marine species. See our attached comments on the rule.

NMFS SW Region Swordfish Workshop

The Council has been given updates on NMFS SW Region workshop on swordfish management that took place last year. NMFS is using their 'results' from the workshop as a platform to make the case that there is broad agreement that a) turtles are fully protected in the U.S., b) swordfish populations are healthy, c) bycatch is fully monitored in the U.S. fishery, and d) changes in management are needed to make the swordfish fishery economically robust. They also assert that the U.S. demand for swordfish is growing, and it is being met by foreign fisheries with lower conservation standards. They argue a larger U.S. swordfish fishery will ultimately save more turtles.

We strongly disagree with these conclusions. TIRN was invited to and attended the NMFS-sponsored workshop. Executive Director Todd Steiner did not agree with the conclusions made by NMFS related to the workshop. In fact, Steiner asserts that no new data was presented at the workshop that changed TIRN's position that the West Coast drift gill net fishery remains contrary to the paradigm of healthy oceans and healthy communities. So we urge the Council to carefully scrutinize how NMFS presents its findings from the workshop.

The End of Sustainable Seafood

Both government and non-governmental organizations in the U.S. and internationally are attempting to market various species of seafood as sustainable. The U.S. government has clear mandates from Congress to make our fisheries sustainable, and yet NMFS continues to promote non-sustainable longline and drift gillnet fishing gear, violating laws and continually eroding the credibility of fishery management agencies.

To fill this gap, non-governmental organizations have attempted to assess fisheries independently with eco-labeling schemes and consumer seafood guides. However these programs are quickly losing their credibility and effectiveness for influencing consumer choice as more and more questionable fisheries are deemed "sustainable."

The recent certification by the Marine Stewardship Council (MSC) of a longline swordfish fishery in Florida and the pending certification of the Canadian longline fishery for swordfish, which operates without effective sea turtle protections, may be the death knell for sustainable seafood labels as a viable approach. The fact that Alaska salmon producers have recently vacated the MSC's program could also spell the end of third-party seafood certification as a viable benchmark for sustainability.

Conservationists, conscious seafood buyers and sellers and responsible fishers are quickly realizing that claims of "sustainable seafood" by government or NGOs makes more promises than it delivers when it comes to actually protecting fisheries, communities and the oceans. The conclusion that we may all come to is that there is no sustainable seafood and that the only way forward is to give seafood a break.

We hope that the Council and particularly members of the State of California, where a new state-funded seafood sustainability initiative was approved in December 2011, will consider the long-term ramifications to fisheries and biodiversity before allowing the expansion of wasteful longline, trawl and other un-sustainable fisheries and, even worse, calling them sustainable.

To demonstrate its commitment to sustainable fisheries, the Council should take a strong stand against expanding the wasteful drift gillnet fishery for swordfish and shark along the U.S. West Coast.

Mercury in Swordfish and Shark

The U.S. Federal Food and Drug Administration (FDA) warns all women of child-bearing age not to eat swordfish or shark due to known high levels of mercury and the risk of damage to developing fetuses. This means that women 18 to 45, or roughly half of the population, should not ever eat swordfish or shark, mackerel and tilefish. That's because these fish species routinely exceeds the FDA action level of 1 part per million methylmercury. These are well established facts based on science from the U.S. FDA and Environmental Protection Agency that federal fishery managers and the seafood industry regularly ignore, deny, minimize or attempt to counter with industry-funded pseudo-science.

The Council must consider the public health impacts and who exactly will benefit and who may be harmed when determining whether to proceed in expanding or developing a new West Coast swordfish fishery. TIRN would be happy to arrange a briefing for interested Council members from public health experts on the latest science related to mercury in fish and the need to do more to warn vulnerable populations about exposure.

Conclusion

Given these comments and the history of the West Coast swordfish fishery, we urge the Council to deny any further discussion or action on expanding the existing fishery or developing a new fishery.

If further action is considered, then Council must evaluate an alternative with an increase in observer coverage in the existing fishery to at least 30 percent, an alternative to phase out and close the drift gillnet fishery, an alternative to restrict swordfish imports and an alternative that addresses other concerns in this letter.

Finally, any changes to the swordfish and shark fishery would constitute a major federal action, requiring a full Environmental Impact Statement and a full range of alternatives, including the phase out of the fishery.

Abstract. The leatherbacks nesting at Bird's Head Peninsula, Papua Barat, Indonesia, account for 75% of the total leatherback nesting in the western Pacific and represent the last sizeable nesting population in the entire Pacific. Sporadic nest counts at Jamursba Medi Beach at Bird's Head have indicated a declining trend from the 1980s through 2004, although a relatively high amount of nesting has recently been documented at Wermon Beach, located 30 km east of Jamursba Medi. We used expanded year-round nesting surveys from 2005 to 2011 at these two primary nesting beaches to obtain more robust estimates of the nesting population size and to evaluate long-term nesting trends. We found a 29% decline in nesting at Jamursba Medi and a 52% decline at Wermon from 2005 through 2011. We found that the estimated annual number of nests at Jamursba Medi has declined 78.3% over the past 27 years (5.5% annual rate of decline) from 14,522 in 1984 to 1,596 in 2011. Nesting at Wermon has been monitored since 2002 and has declined 62.8% (11.6% annual rate of decline) from 2,994 nests in 2002 to 1,096 in 2011. Collectively, our findings indicate a continual and significant long term nesting decline of 5.9% per year at these primary western Pacific beaches since 1984. Mark-recapture with PIT tags, initiated in 2003, resulted in the tagging of 1,371 individual nesting females as of March 2012. Observed clutch frequencies ranged from 3-10 per season with a mean of 5.5 ± 1.6 and, based on nest counts, provide an estimate of approximately 489 females nesting in 2011. The persistent and long term decline we report for the Bird's Head leatherback population follows other dramatic declines and extinctions of leatherback populations throughout the Pacific over the last 30 years. These findings highlight the urgent need for continued and enhanced conservation and management efforts to prevent the collapse of what might be the last remaining stronghold for leatherbacks in the Pacific.

Introduction

Although widely distributed in the Atlantic, Pacific and Indian Oceans and spanning from ~71° N (Carriol and Vader 2002) to 47° S (Eggleston 1971), leatherbacks (Dermochelys coriacea) are currently listed as Critically Endangered globally (IUCN 2012). In comparison to the Atlantic, where several nesting populations have been increasing in recent years (Dutton et al. 2005, Thomé et al. 2007, Turtle Expert Working Group 2007, Stewart et al. 2011), the status of leatherback populations in other oceans is of greater concern. The South African nesting population in the Indian Ocean appears to be depleted after more than 30 years of monitoring (Hughes 1996, Nel 2006) and the status of the other important populations in Sri Lanka and the Andaman and Nicobar Islands is unclear (Andrews et al. 2006, Hamann et al. 2006). In the Pacific, leatherbacks appear to have declined by over 95% since 1980 (Spotila et al. 2000) primarily because of excessive harvest of eggs and females, incidental by-catch in fisheries, and coastal development on nesting beaches (Chan and Liew 1996, Sarti et al. 1996, Spotila et al. 1996, Spotila et al. 2000, Lewison et al. 2004, Kaplan 2005, Bellagio 2007, Sarti et al. 2007, Liew 2011).

In the eastern Pacific, the leatherback nesting population on the coast of Mexico was historically robust and one of the largest nesting populations globally (Marquez et al. 1981, Sarti et al. 1996). However, nesting in Mexico continuously declined over several decades resulting in fewer than 1,000 nesting females per season by the mid 1990s (Sarti et al. 1996, Sarti et al. 2007) and decreasing to an estimated range of 27 to 346 females nesting annually (FNA) between 2002 and 2004 on the four major index beaches in Mexico (Sarti et al. 2007). On the Pacific coast of Costa Rica, nesting has declined from about 1,367 nesting females per season in 1988–1989 to approximately 261 females in 1999–2000 (Reina et al. 2002), and the number of nesting females per season has not significantly increased in recent years (Santidrián et al. 2007). In the western Pacific, Terengganu, Malaysia, represented a major nesting beach with approximately 10,000 nests per year reported in 1956 (Siow and Moll 1982, Chua 1988, Chan and Liew 1996). Unfortunately, a catastrophic decline in the 1970s and 1980s resulted in the collapse and apparent loss of this nesting population (Chan and Liew 1996, Bellagio 2007, Liew 2011).

The western Pacific currently has primary leatherback nesting sites in the Solomon Islands, Papua New Guinea (PNG), and Papua Barat, Indonesia, with nesting to a lesser extent in Vanuatu, all of which are part of a single regional genetic stock (Dutton et al. 2007). Within this regional stock, the north coast of Bird's Head (Vogelkop) peninsula in Papua Barat (formerly the western portion of Irian Jaya), Indonesia, hosts the largest remaining nesting population, accounting for 75% of the total leatherback nesting in the western Pacific (Dutton et al. 2007). Leatherback nesting along the north coast of Bird's Head was first described by Salm (1982), who noted during his initial aerial survey that it was impossible to directly count every nest because of the high density. Nevertheless, it was estimated that there were about 4,000 leatherback and green turtle nests on five main beaches located along the northern coast of Bird's Head (Salm 1982). In recent years, only low levels of scattered nesting have occurred on four of these main beaches, whereas the Jamursba Medi area has continued to support a relatively high level of nesting. Subsequent surveys in 1984 and 1985 determined that Jamursba Medi, which consists of three beaches (Fig. 1), was the major nesting area for leatherbacks in the region with as high as 13,360 nests estimated for 1984 (Bhaskar 1987).

A decline in nesting at Jamursba Medi was initially apparent from nest count surveys between 1981 to 2004 during the main months of the nesting season and from anecdotal reports from villagers (Hitipeuw et al. 2007). Another major nesting beach on Bird's Head, Wermon, is located approximately 30 km east of Jamursba Medi (Bhaskar 1987, Hitipeuw et al. 2007). Jamursba Medi and Wermon beaches (Fig. 1) represent the majority of nesting for leatherbacks in this region (Benson et al. 2007*a*, Dutton et al. 2007, Hitipeuw et al. 2007) and now the largest nesting aggregation in the Pacific (Dutton et al. 2007). Given the nesting decline at Jamursba Medi recorded between 1981 and 2004 and the importance of this population both in the Pacific and globally (Hitipeuw et al. 2007), a more comprehensive program was initiated in 2005 to accurately evaluate and monitor leatherback nesting activities throughout the nesting season at Jamursba Medi and Wermon and to implement appropriate management strategies. The main objective of our study was to evaluate the trends in annual number of nests from 1981 to 2011 in Jamursba Medi and from 2002 to 2011 in Wermon. We also evaluate the spatial and temporal distribution of nests and provide an estimate of the number of females nesting.

The current study provides vital information regarding the population status of the one of the most important leatherback nesting aggregations in the Pacific and allows us to assess management priorities and protection measures. With the establishment of the new governmental regency of Tambrauw, which is in charge of implementing and enforcing the conservation policies in Papua Barat Province, the development of a science-based management plan is a prerequisite for ensuring the implementation of effective policies.

Methods

Study site

Jamursba Medi (0°20′–0°22′ S and 132°25′–132°39′ E) is the principal nesting site for leatherbacks on Bird's Head and is comprised of three beaches (from west to east: Wembrak, Batu Rumah and Warmamedi, respectively, Fig. 1) that together span 17.9 km of coastline. The second nesting site is a 6-km beach located at Wermon (0°41′–0°43′ S and 132°80′–132°86′ E) (Hitipeuw et al. 2007). Jamursba Medi and Wermon are separated by 30 km of terrain composed of cliffs, rocky outcroppings, perennial rivers, and/or estuaries. These beaches are subject to seasonal patterns of erosion and accretion. Changes in the currents brought on by the monsoons that begin in September can cause major erosion at Jamursba Medi that often removes the entire beach until accretion begins again in March (Hitipeuw et al. 2007). This cycle of erosion is not as extreme in Wermon where the beach is generally more suitable for leatherback nesting in the boreal and austral summer (Hitipeuw et al. 2007).

Estimating historical annual nesting abundance and trend

In the current study (2005 to 2011), beaches were surveyed year round on foot by local personnel from the village communities neighboring Jamursba Medi and Wermon. The number of nesting emergences (as determined by characteristic tracks and accompanying nest pits in the sand as evidence of successful nesting) was recorded on a daily basis throughout the year. The proportion of annual nesting activity occurring in each month of the year at each of the beaches was calculated by determining the average number of nests for each month over a seven year period (2004–2011) at Wermon and over a six year period (2005–2011) at Jamursba Medi, and then dividing that average by the average total number of nests per year over the seven or six year period, respectively. These monthly proportions were used to estimate an adjusted total number of nests for each year from partial nest counts between 1984–2004 at Jamursba Medi using the below equation (Hitipeuw et al. 2007):

where N is the estimated number of nests laid for an entire year; Ni is the observed number of nests during a given survey period; and Pi is the proportion of annual nesting period surveyed. This approach facilitated a meaningful trend analysis for this multi-year time series. The resulting yearly estimates were combined with data from the current study in order to generate a long-term nesting trend from 1984 to 2011. We did not include the data from Salm (1982) in the trend analysis because of the level of uncertainty in nest counts from these earlier surveys.

Estimated and observed annual nest numbers at Jamursba Medi (for 27 years) and Wermon (for 9 years) were from April 1 of each given year to March 31 of the next year (e.g., the 2010 nesting season refers to April 2010 through March 2011). This yearly interval was chosen because it corresponds biologically to the nesting seasons at both beaches. These numbers were log-transformed (natural log) and the nesting trend evaluated between 1984 and 2011 at Jamursba Medi using a Generalized Liner Model (GLM). A similar analysis was also performed on a subset of the data from 1993 to 2011, during which monitoring was enhanced at Jamursba Medi. Finally, the more comprehensive year-round survey data from Jamursba Medi (2005–2011) and Wermon (2004–2011) were analyzed separately. The nesting trends from both beaches were compared by including an interaction effect in the GLM. Additionally, if there was no significant different between the trends, the GLM was re-run without the interaction term to test whether there was a significant difference in the mean number of nests between Jamursba Medi and Wermon. All analyses were done using the R software version 2.14.1 (R Development Core Team 2011).

Estimating clutch frequency and the numbers of females

Beginning in 2003, previously untagged females encountered during night beach patrols were tagged with a Passive Integrated Transponder (PIT) (AVID brand) injected into the right shoulder following standard procedures described in Dutton and McDonald (1994). In addition to morning nest count surveys by local villagers, starting in 2005 teams of students and biologists carried out night-time monitoring at the two beaches for the entire peak nesting season on Jamursba Medi from April to September and on Wermon from October to March. For tagging purposes, two team members patrolled the nesting beach from 20:00 to 05:00 hours in order to collect morphological data on nesting leatherbacks and to PIT-tag turtles. On these nights, saturation tagging was conducted, where every female encountered on night patrols is evaluated for tags and untagged females receive a PIT tag (Dutton et al. 2005).

The tagging effort was sporadic from 2003 to 2008 but intensified starting in 2009, when saturation tagging was conducted five nights per week throughout the nesting season and for seven nights a week during several dedicated 14-day periods at the beginning, middle, and end of the main nesting season. Since leatherbacks generally nest every 8–12 days, most nesting females should be encountered once during a 2-week period (Tucker and Frazer 1991, Reina et al. 2002, Dutton et al. 2005, Sarti et al. 2007). This strategy was used to optimize efforts to tag the majority of females present during the main nesting seasons at both Jamursba Medi (May–September, i.e., the boreal summer) and Wermon (October–March, i.e., the austral summer). Saturation PIT tagging was also carried out at Wermon (June–August) starting in 2009 using the same methodology during the boreal summer, but not during the austral summer at Jamursba Medi (October–March) because of limited personnel and difficult access to the beach during the monsoon period.

The PIT-tag data allowed for a preliminary estimation of average clutch interval (CI) and estimated clutch frequency (ECF), which was then used to estimate the number of females nesting. ECF is the average number of nests per season per female and CI is the number of days between consecutive ovipositions (clutches of eggs laid) per female. We calculated ECF per female from the PIT-tag data from 2003 to 2011 with the following assumptions: (1) the number of predicted nests per season was based on the initial and all subsequent sightings of an individual turtle, (2) if the interval between subsequent sightings of an individual was distinctly longer than the typical 9–12 day internesting period (e.g., 18 days or more) observed for leatherbacks, a nesting(s) was assigned between the two consecutive sightings (Rivalan et al. 2006), (3) only successful ovipositions were considered, and (4) only females with a minimum of three documented ovipositions during a nesting season were used in the analysis.

The total number of FNA was estimated for Jamursba Medi and Wermon using two different estimates of ECF. Similar to the analysis of the nesting trend, the yearly interval used in the FNA predictions was from April 1 of one year to March 31 of the next year and was designated by the earlier year. We used the same method outlined in Hitipeuw et al. (2007) in which the total number of nests annually for a given beach is divided by the ECF reported for various nesting populations in the Atlantic and the eastern Pacific. These ECFs ranged from 4.4 nests per female (Sarti et al. 2000) to 5.8 nests per female (Hitipeuw et al. 2007). We also estimated the FNA at Jamursba Medi and Wermon using the ECF predicted in the current study from the PIT tag data collected from 2003 to 2011 (as described above). Additionally, we estimated the number of females nesting during the boreal (April–September) and the austral (October–March) summer seasons in the current study (2005–2011).

In addition to ECF and FNA estimates, the PIT tag data were also evaluated to determine the movement of nesting females between these two beaches within the same nesting season and between the boreal and austral summer nesting seasons.

Results

Long-term nesting trends

Leatherback nesting was observed year round at Jamursba Medi and Wermon, however, there was a unimodal distribution of nesting activity through the year at Jamursba Medi with a peak in June to July and a bimodal distribution at Wermon with peaks during December to February as well as the one also observed from June to July at Jamursba Medi (Fig. 2). The number of nests per month ranged from 22.4 ± 6.9 (mean ± SD) in January to 575.7 ± 75.8 in June at Jamursba Medi and from 58.9 ± 19.4 in September to 198.8 ± 26.6 in January at Wermon (Fig. 2). The annual number of nests observed at Jamursba Medi ranged from 2,626 (in 2005) to 1,596 (in 2011) with a yearly mean of 2,122 ± 409 nests over this seven-year period. The annual number of nest observed at Wermon ranged from 1,497 (in 2005) to 1,080 (in 2009) with a mean of 1,304 ± 167 nests per year (Table 1). On average, 59.9% of all nesting occurred at Jamursba Medi and the other 40.1% at Wermon.

Trend analysis for nest count estimates between 1984 and 2011 at Jamursba Medi indicates an overall significant decline of 78.3% over the 27-year period (GLM, $r^2 = 0.65$, $p < 0.0001$; Table 1, Fig. 3), ranging from 14,522 (in 1984) to 1,596 (in 2011) (Table 1). The results also indicate a 64.0% decline between 1993 and 2011 (GLM, $r^2 = 0.74$, $p < 0.001$) at Jamursba Medi based on monitoring data for this period. There was also a 62.8% decline at Wermon from 2,994 nests in 2002 to 1,096 in 2011 (GLM, $r^2 = 0.78$, $p < 0.01$; Table 1, Fig. 3). In comparison, during our current study (2005–2011), nesting declined 29.0% at Jamursba Medi (GLM; $r^2 = 0.92$, $p < 0.01$), and 52.2% at Wermon (GLM; $r^2 = 0.52$, $p < 0.01$). There was no significant difference between the annual rate of decline at Jamursba Medi and Wermon (ANOVA, $F = 3.49$, $p = 0.07$), but Wermon has significantly fewer nests (18% less) than Jamursba Medi (ANOVA, $F = 45.3$, $p < 0.001$). Collectively, the data from the previous and current studies (1984–2011) indicate an average rate of decline of 5.9% per year of

Estimated number of females nesting annually and seasonally

Based on the two published ECFs used by Hitipeuw et al. (2007), we estimate the number of FNA to have changed from a high of 453–597 in 2005 to a low of 275–363 in 2011 at Jamursba Medi and a high of 258–340 in 2005 to a low of 189–249 in 2011 at Wermon (Table 2). Collectively for the two beaches, we estimate a total of 464–612 FNA during the most recent year of the study (2011).

We also obtained an ECF for Bird's Head leatherbacks from observed nesting of 193 PIT-tagged individuals between 2003 and 2011 at both Jamursba Medi and Wermon. Our ECF ranged from 3 to 10 with a mean of 5.5 ± 1.6 days. Using this ECF, we estimated 477 FNA in 2005 to 290 FNA in 2011 at Jamursba Medi, and 272 FNA in 2005 to 199 FNA in 2011 at Wermon (Table 2). Collectively for the two beaches, we estimate a total of 489 FNA during the most recent year of the study using our ECF for Bird's Head leatherbacks.

A total of 1,371 nesting females were PIT-tagged from 2003 to 2011. Re-sightings of some females indicated movement of nesting females between Jamursba Medi and Wermon during the boreal summer nesting season. A small number of nesters (0.5% [n = 1] in 2009, 2.56% [n = 5] in 2010, and 2.9% [n = 6] in 2011) were observed at both beaches during the boreal summer nesting season. We were not able to evaluate the extent of beach interchange during the austral summer due to the logistical challenges of monitoring Jamursba Medi during these months. Furthermore, turtles tagged during the main boreal summer (April–September) were different individuals than those nesting during the main austral summer (October–March) season. No turtles were ever observed to nest during both boreal and austral summer nesting seasons.

Based on our ECF, we estimate that more females nested at the Bird's Head beaches each

For comparison purposes the adjusted number of nests for the entire year was calculated for data from 1981–2004, whereas actual year-round data were available for 2005–2011 at Jamursba Medi and from 2004–2011 at Wermon.

Discussion

Annual nesting and population trend

Leatherback nesting at Bird's Head occurs year-round in contrast to many other beaches both in the Pacific and the Atlantic where nesting is seasonal, occurring either in the austral summer as in Papua New Guinea (Benson et al. 2007*b*, Steckenreuter et al. 2010) and in Pacific Mexico and Costa Rica (Chaves et al. 1996) or in the boreal summer as in the Caribbean and eastern Atlantic (Godley et al. 2001, Dutton et al. 2005, Troeng et al. 2007). However, in Papua Barat, Indonesia, the temporal distribution of nesting activity differs between the beaches of Jamursba Medi and Wermon even though they are only 30 km apart. The nesting distribution at Wermon is bimodal (Fig. 2), with peaks during both the boreal and austral summer nesting seasons, whereas peak nesting only occurs at Jamursba Medi during the boreal summer. A bimodal seasonal nesting distribution has also been found for leatherbacks in French Guiana where nesting occurs primarily in the boreal summer, with a small pulse of nests laid in the austral summer (Chevalier et al. 1999). This temporal variation may be related to multiple demographic stocks using the same nesting beach at different times of the year (Dutton et al. 2007). Our PIT-tag recapture results support this hypothesis suggesting that there are two temporally distinct nesting groups in Bird's Head, with some females nesting during the boreal summer and different ones nesting during the austral summer. There are no records of 'transitional' females whose nesting season spanned the time period between the boreal

Annual nest numbers shown for Jamursba Medi include estimates for 1984–2004 and observed numbers for 2005–2011. Beaches were not monitored from 1986–1992 and during 1998. and austral nesting seasons. Satellite tracking studies also demonstrate that females nesting during the boreal summer at Jamursba Medi and Wermon tend to depart around September and migrate to foraging areas in the northern hemisphere, whereas the Wermon austral summer nesters depart by late April and migrate to forage in the southern hemisphere (Benson et al. 2007*a*, Benson et al. 2007*b*, Benson et al. 2011, Bailey et al. 2012). Further, there may be multiple foraging groups that nest within a specific season. Results from stable isotope analysis of tissues sampled from Jamursba Medi females during the boreal summer identified two groups corresponding to animals foraging in the eastern Pacific and those foraging in the western Pacific (Seminoff et al. 2012). Dutton et al. (2007) have proposed that a spatio-temporal demographic structuring occurs among Bird's Head leatherbacks and that they are members of a regional (western Pacific) metapopulation that appears to be part of a single genetic stock based on mtDNA analysis. Genetic analyses are currently underway to provide a better understanding of this metapopulation (Dutton, unpublished data).

Our results, together with those from previous studies reviewed by Hitipeuw et al. (2007) indicate a significant and continuous decline in the population of leatherbacks nesting at Jamursba Medi (1984–2011) and Wermon (2002–2011). This has significant conservation implications since 75% of leatherback nesting in the western Pacific occurs at Bird's Head (Dutton et al. 2007), and recent aerial surveys indicated that Jamursba Medi and Wermon are the two main nesting beaches in the region (Benson et al. 2009). When evaluating the magnitude of the decline, it is of particular importance to note that there were relatively high nesting numbers in 1984 and high nest count variability between 1984 and 1985. The number of nests reported by Bhaskar (1985) for 1984 (14,522; Table 1, Fig. 3) was significantly greater than for any other year reported. Interestingly, it was followed by a sharp decline in 1985 with only 3,000 nests reported (Bhaskar 1987). It is not clear how comprehensive Bhaskar's surveys were in 1984 and 1985, and the estimates should therefore be viewed with caution due to potential variation in sampling effort resulting from two primary factors: (1) their efforts were focused on night patrols to tag nesting females and there was less emphasis on day time nest counts and (2) a large proportion of the leatherback nests at that time were disturbed by fishermen who were collecting eggs. On the other hand, a sharp decline in the number of nests during the mid 1980s may be valid, and the decline may have been partially due to local harvesting of eggs and turtles. Betz and Welch (1992) indicated that large numbers of eggs were being harvested from Jamursba Medi based on their visit to that beach in 1991. Many of the local villagers have said that from 1980 through 1993, fishermen would visit the beaches seasonally (from May to August, during seasonally calm weather at Bird's Head) and ship the eggs to nearby markets (Tapilatu, personal observation). The fishermen bartered with the local villagers from Saubeba and Warmandi to obtain permission to collect leatherback eggs. Approximately 4 to 5 wooden boats were observed visiting the beach weekly and returning with 10,000–15,000 eggs per boat (Betz and Welch 1992). During the egg collection season, the beaches would become crowded with temporary dwellings that housed egg collectors, and camp fires were common every night. In addition to taking leatherback eggs, fishermen would also set gillnets for sharks, which resulted in 2–3 female leatherback deaths per week (Bakarbessy, personal communication). Thus, Bhaskar's (1985) report of relatively high nesting numbers in 1984, as well as anecdotal reports of extensive egg harvesting and female deaths in shark gillnets support the hypothesis that the nesting population was severely impacted during the 1980s. This is consistent with information from local villagers who say that fewer turtles nest now than in the 1980s (Hitipeuw et al. 2007).

In response to the continued decline, the Sorong government enacted laws in 1993 that banned egg collection and protected nesting females (Bupati Sorong 1994). Additionally, regular nesting surveys began at Jamursba Medi in 1993. Although annual fluctuations were evident, there was an overall decline in nesting from 1996 to 2004. Our results indicate that this decline has continued through to 2011 (Table 1, Fig. 3). Our analysis of all the available datasets indicates an overall population decline of 78.3% at Jamursba Medi from a high of 14,455 nests in 1984 to a low of 1,532 nests in 2011. Nesting numbers at Wermon were unknown until recently; surveys in 2002 to 2004 indicated that there were relatively large numbers of nests on Wermon (World Wildlife Fund 2003, Hitipeuw et al. 2007). The first comprehensive surveys carried out by the World Wildlife Fund at Wermon in 2004 found almost as many nests laid on Wermon as on Jamursba Medi (Table 1, Fig. 3). It was hypothesized that the decline at Jamursba Medi may have been offset by an increase at Wermon (Hitipeuw et al. 2007). However, our findings are not consistent with this hypothesis and indicate that nesting at both beaches has declined significantly, and at the same approximate rate. However, the movement by nesters between beaches that we documented might contribute to the small peak in nesting during the boreal nesting season at Wermon. Indeed, the boreal nesting season at Wermon most likely represents "spill-over" from neighboring Jamursba Medi. If this is the case, the spill-over appears to be restricted to Wermon, since aerial survey showed no evidence of significant nesting at other beaches in the region (Benson et al. 2009). The extent of exchange between beaches during the austral summer season is unknown, since PIT-tag data on nesting females were not collected at Jamursba Medi during this time period.

Estimated clutch frequency and females nesting annually

Our estimated clutch frequency (ECF) of 5.5 ± 1.6 (mean ± SD) clutches per female per season is similar to other published estimates of ECF from leatherbacks in the eastern Pacific including Mexico (5.5 ± 1.9; Sarti et al. 2007), Playa Grande, Costa Rica (5.6 ± 1.2; Reina et al. 2002), and estimates reported for Atlantic leatherbacks in St. Croix (5.8; reviewed in Hitipeuw et al. [2007]) and Culebra, Puerto Rico (6.7 ± 2.7; Tucker and Frazer 1991). The maximum observed clutch frequency at Jamursba Medi and Wermon was 10 clutches compared to 12 clutches for Mexican beaches (Sarti et al. 2007) and similarly 12 clutches for St. Croix (Dutton et al. 2005). Considering that not all nesting events may have been observed along the entire distribution range or even within Jamursba Medi and Wermon, and that females may move between beaches, the actual ECF could be slightly higher than the current estimate and the estimated of number of nesting females would consequently be lower. Regardless, the results indicate a continual declining trend in the number of leatherbacks nesting annually at both Jamursba Medi and Wermon and that the overall Bird's Head leatherback population has been reduced to approximately 500 females nesting annually (FNA).

Conservation implications

Despite the decline in nesting numbers, Bird's Head remains the largest leatherback nesting aggregation in the Pacific, if only because the other populations are severely depleted or extinct. There may be a variety of reasons why this population has not collapsed in comparison to other Pacific rookeries, which may be facing potential extinction as suggested by Spotila et al. (1996, 2000). The nesting beaches on Bird's Head are in remote locations with a limited number of local residents in the area, thereby (1) limiting the historic levels of direct exploitation of eggs and females which resulted in the collapse of other rookeries in Malaysia (Chan and Liew 1996, Chua 1988, Liew 2011) and Pacific Mexico (Marquez et al. 1981, Sarti et al. 2007, Sarti et al. 1996), and (2) preventing the development of areas adjacent to the nesting beach, which has impacted nesting habitats in Malaysia, Costa Rica, and Mexico (Chan and Liew 1996, Spotila et al. 1996, Sarti et al. 2007). However, the occasional harvesting of eggs at Jamursba Medi and Wermon, and the occasional harvesting of eggs and adults females on minor nesting areas on Bird's Head still need to be evaluated and addressed (Tapilatu, unpublished data).

The long-distance migratory habits of Bird's Head leatherbacks increase the probability of fisheries interactions as they travel through multiple fishing zones and encounter multiple types of fisheries (Benson et al. 2011, Bailey et al. 2012). The impact of commercial fisheries (Frazier and Brito Montero 1990, Nishimura and Nakahigashi 1990, Eckert 1993, Wetherall et al. 1993) and artisanal fisheries (Chu-Chen 1982, De Silva 1982, Polunin and Nuitja 1982, Siow and Moll 1982, Suwelo et al. 1982, Eckert 1993, Starbird and Suarez 1994, Suarez and Starbird 1996, Alfaro-Shigueto et al. 2007, Finkbeiner et al. 2011) on Pacific leatherbacks has been well-documented. Furthermore, some females nesting during the austral summer season migrate to waters off eastern Indonesia (Benson et al. 2011) where they may be subjected to relatively high mortality by traditional leatherback hunters from the Kei Kecil Islands (Starbird and Suarez 1994, Suarez and Starbird 1996). It was reported that the Kei islanders successfully hunted and killed 135 leatherbacks between November 2003 and December 2007 (SIRAN and World Wildlife Fund, unpublished reports). However, the use of multiple foraging grounds by the Bird's Head leatherbacks may also buffer the population to some extent against potentially severe impacts of fisheries, directed take, and environmental perturbation in the marine environment (Dutton 2006, Benson et al. 2011), and protection of key foraging areas could further mitigate these threats. For example, the Maluku Tenggara government recently designated a Marine Protected Area (MPA, ~150,000 ha) in waters surrounding the Kei Kecil Islands (WWF Indonesia 2012) in response to proposed temporal closures of a marine foraging ground for leatherbacks (Benson et al. 2011). Elsewhere, a large area (10,877,950 ha) in US waters in the northeastern Pacific has recently been designated critical habitat due to its importance as a distant foraging area for western Pacific leatherbacks (Wallace 2012).

Finally, the extent to which environmental factors have contributed to the decline of Pacific leatherback populations is unknown but could be significant. Multi-decadal climate oscillations and global climate change could have a variety of impacts including (1) increased nesting beach temperatures resulting in reduced hatching success and highly biased sex ratios, and (2) rising sea level and alteration of ocean current circulation that would affect beach erosion, beach topography, and hatchling and juvenile dispersal patterns and juvenile recruitment (Saba et al. 2008, Van Houtan and Halley 2011, Gaspar et al. 2012, Saba et al. 2012).

Regardless of the underlying causes, the current number of nesting females offers a glimmer of hope that this declining population is still large enough that it could recover if effective management measures can be implemented to address the major threats immediately. The management program at Jamursba Medi and Wermon has included experimental evaluation of small-scale hatcheries since 2006 (Tapilatu and Tiwari 2007, Tiwari et al. 2011) and relocation of doomed nests (i.e., nests that would be lost to erosion) to stable sections of beach. The hatcheries are used to mitigate low hatching success due to (1) predation of eggs and hatchlings by introduced pigs and dogs (Bhaskar 1987, Maturbongs 2000, Hitipeuw and Maturbongs 2002, Suganuma et al. 2005, Suganuma 2006), (2) beach erosion (Bhaskar 1987, Hitipeuw et al. 2007), and (3) elevated sand temperatures (Tapilatu and Tiwari 2007). Preliminary results indicate that nest relocation significantly enhances hatching success (Tapilatu and Tiwari 2007). Maximizing hatchling production at Bird's Head nesting beaches is paramount for the recovery of western Pacific leatherbacks (Tiwari et al. 2011).

Involvement of the local community members is a pre-requisite for the development of a stable long-term conservation program on these beaches. Through an intensive and collaborative effort between conservation organizations and the communities adjacent to Jamursba Medi and Wermon, villagers now participate side-by-side with biologists to patrol the beaches, maximize hatchling production, and protect in situ nests and nesting females (Hitipeuw et al. 2007). As evidence of their dedication to leatherback conservation, the local communities are actively addressing the threat of coastal development by asking the Papua Barat Provincial government to re-route the proposed trans-Papua Barat road 5–10 km inland from Jamursba Medi. Future efforts should focus on maintaining and enhancing co-management approaches and a traditional conservation ethic within the local communities and the new regency government to ensure the sustainability of a long-term conservation program.

However, beach conservation alone, while a necessary pre-requisite, is unlikely to tip the scales in favor of the recovery of this population. Under some scenarios complete protection at the nesting beach would compensate for fisheries-related mortality (e.g., 5% per year) with the population growing rapidly (Spotila et al. 1996). However, it has been suggested that annual fisheries-related mortality of leatherbacks in the Pacific has been significantly higher than 5% per year (Spotila et al. 2000, Alfaro-Shigueto et al. 2011). Furthermore, climate-driven oceanographic processes may further influence survival and population recruitment (Van Houtan and Halley 2011). Therefore, it is imperative to adopt a holistic approach (Dutton and Squires 2011) that addresses threats at all life history stages. A broad suite of management and conservation measures should be implemented at the nesting beaches and in national and international waters, to help reverse the decline of what might be the last remaining stronghold for leatherbacks in the Pacific, in a renewed effort to defy predictions of their extinction.

Acknowledgments

We thank the beach patrollers at Jamursba Medi and Wermon beaches for their assistance with the nesting beach monitoring activities during 2005–2012. The authors thank the Sorong and Tambrauw governments, World Wildlife Fund (WWF) for Nature–Indonesia Program, the Natural Resources Conservation Agency (BBKSDA) of Papua Barat, the Indonesia Forestry Ministry, The State University of Papua (UNIPA) Marine Science and Biology Department, and the communities of Saubeba, Warmandi and Wau for logistical support at the nesting beaches. The Research and Technology Ministry Republic of Indonesia (RISTEK), BBKSDA Papua Barat and the Tambrauw Government provided research permits for work at the nesting beaches. We thank Creusa 'Tetha' Hitipeuw, Ronni Tethool and staff from the WWF Sorong office who helped enormously with logistical support as well as Betuel Samber of BBKSDA, Scott R. RE: Proposed Changes to the Pacific Leatherback Turtle Conservation Area

Dear Mr. Wolford and Mr. McInnis,

The California Association of Harbor Masters and Port Captains (CAHMPC), a 66 year old organization of harbors, ports, marinas, and their supporting businesses would like to offer supportive comments on proposed changes to the Pacific Leatherback Turtle Conservation Area (PLCA).

It is our understanding the PFMC is to review the effectiveness of the PLCA as it relates to the drift gillnet swordfish fishery and the regulations that govern it, as well as review draft proposals to adjust the time and shape of the PLCA to increase swordfish fishing opportunity while at the same time maintaining the conservation effects of the PLCA We further understand that some of the proposed changes are "adaptive management" results of new information on the migration patterns and other habits of the turtles learned in recent years.

While we fully support the conservation goals and effects of the PLCA, we also recognize that the swordfish fishery is an important one, not just to the fishermen and ports and harbors that they operate from, but from the standpoint of providing a popular and well-regulated source of seafood for the public. It would certainly be in everybody's best interest, including the turtles, that the demand for swordfish be met by U.S. fishermen operating under the most strict regulations in the world in order to protect turtles and other bycatch, rather than by foreign, and largely unregulated fishing fleets operating with little or no regard to the effects on turtles or other unwanted catch.

Therefore, it is hoped that the PFMC in its deliberations take into account the needs of both the turtles and the fishermen where positive results can be achieved for both, as we believe to be the case with these new proposals. Thank you for consideration of our comments.

Sincerely,

Steve McGrath

RE: Swordfish Management report on potential changes to the turtle conservation area and take limits

TO: Pacific Fisheries Management Council

Dear council members and to whom it may concern,
I am not shocked to hear, but saddened, that NMFS would have the nerve to ask for more fishing area allocated to such a profoundly destructive fishery. I thought it was clearly stated last year to end this fishery. To find an sustainable alternative method of fishing Swordfish such as buoy gear, or promote the harpoon fishery that is free of by catch.

NMFS's continued attempts to modify this fishery is a great example of how our government authority sides with the industry instead of acting to protect our ocean environment. This is a no brainier. It was common sense 30 years ago. This fishery never should have started, being there was a viable, sustainable, fishery in use. The harpoon fishery has been around for years & years. Go back to that!

California, join with Oregon & Washington with a BAN on driftnets! Why should you be any different? Unite us please. Show the world that you can be environmentally sound too. The whole world is looking at you. Don't be foolish. This is shameful…

The tuna purse seine fleet must have 100% observers. Driftnets are far more harmful than purse seines. They have nice cameras for cheep these days…

Please council, I beg of you, demand that NMFS end this fishery here and now. That not one more whale be killed on our coast by driftnets. That not one more dolphin be killed, ever again, by a net on our coast. Most of all, that not 1 more turtle will ever be killed in a driftnet. Please tell the NMFS to come clean! Do not blemish the name, SUSTAINABLE. It's time to turn the tide & think SUSTAINABLE.

Thank you for the moment of your time.
I hope and pray you do the right thing.

RE: Agenda Item I.2, Potential Changes to Pacific Leatherback Conservation Area and Take Limits

Dear Chairman Wolford and Council Members:

Please accept the following comments on behalf of the Natural Resources Defense Council (NRDC), in regard to Agenda Item I.2, potential changes to the Pacific Leatherback Conservation Area and the use of take limits for turtle bycatch in the swordfish drift gillnet fishery.

1. Increasing U.S. Swordfish Catch is Unlikely to Help Sea Turtles via a "Transfer Effect"

Industry and other stakeholders have advocated the idea of a "transfer effect" in the global swordfish fishery, wherein increased American swordfish catch would offset foreign swordfish catch. Because American swordfish fisheries tend to be cleaner in terms of bycatch—especially with respect to protected species like sea turtles—replacing foreign-caught swordfish with American-caught swordfish would, the theory goes, result in a net reduction of turtle bycatch worldwide. See, e.g., PFMC Agenda Item E.1.b, Supplemental SWFSC PowerPoint, September 2011; PFMC Agenda Item E.2.d, Supplemental Public Comment PowerPoint 2, September 2011; see also PFMC Agenda Item I.2.b, HMSMT Report, March 2013, at 1.

Basic microeconomics, however, suggests that increasing the American catch of swordfish will not result in a corresponding decrease in the foreign catch of swordfish. Increasing the American catch of swordfish will simply push out the supply curve for swordfish, resulting in a new consumption equilibrium at a higher quantity and lower price. Depending on the slopes of the supply and demand curves, each new pound of American-caught swordfish will equilibrate out at something close to one new pound of global production of swordfish.

Even if it were true that higher American catches displaced a corresponding amount of imported foreign-caught swordfish from the U.S. market,[1] global swordfish fishing effort still would not decline. In that situation, the foreign fishermen whose catch is displaced from the American market would simply find a buyer in another nation, such as Canada, Japan, England, Spain, China, and Taiwan. Assuming the American market pays the highest price for swordfish, the foreign fisherman would receive a price that is somewhat lower than what he received before, but so long as this price is above his cost of production, he will continue to fish for swordfish and global effort will not decrease. The only foreign fishermen who would stop fishing if Americans stop buying are those whose marginal costs of production fall between the price paid by the American market and the price paid by the next-most-lucrative market—a vanishingly small fraction of foreign fishermen. So even if an increased American catch somehow did displace a corresponding amount of foreign imports, the fishermen whose catches have been displaced would still find it worth their while to fish for swordfish, even if they have to sell to Canada or Spain for a slightly lower price per pound.

To summarize, increasing the U.S. swordfish catch has very little to do with reducing the worldwide take of sea turtles. In all likelihood, increased U.S. effort would simply result in increased global effort and increased turtle encounters. NRDC urges the Council to avoid using this "transfer effect" theory to justify an increase in U.S. swordfish catch. If the Council wishes to help sea turtles, NRDC recommends asking NMFS to enforce the import provisions in federal law for seafood, rather than increasing U.S. swordfish catch.

2. Take Caps Should Not Be Used Without Full Observer Coverage

NRDC also wishes to emphasize that turtle take caps, if to be used at all, would have to be combined with 100% observer coverage. To minimize costs, electronic monitoring could potentially be used in the place of human observers, but only to the extent that electronic monitoring is demonstrated—in rigorous peer-reviewed trials—to be equally effective as a human observer. The other suggested way of minimizing costs, using probability-based methods to extrapolate from lower observer coverage, would simply be inviting problems, and NRDC urges the Council to avoid going down this road. See PFMC Agenda Item I.2.b, HMSMT Report, March 2013, at 7. The sperm whale take in 2010 demonstrates why: probability-based methods, when applied to infrequent events, tend to produce an underestimate for several years running, as occasional encounters are missed by observers due to incomplete coverage. Then when an encounter is finally observed, the probability-based method produces a sudden spike in predicted number of encounters for that year, and stakeholders and managers express frustration with what is viewed as an overestimate. This lack of granularity, in a situation demanding high-resolution data, is likely inappropriate under the law and is certainly a poor management choice. The Council should exercise foresight and avoid the consternation created on all sides by probability-based methods, when applied to low-frequency events like sea turtle takes.

3. Participation Data in the HMSMT Report Conflict with the HMS Safe Document

Finally, NRDC would note that the data reported in Tables 6 and 7 of the HMSMT Report for this Council meeting appear to conflict with the narrative description of similar data in the HMS Safe Document. Compare PFMC Agenda Item I.2.b, HMSMT Report, March 2013, at 13-14 (reporting 19 active drift gillnet vessels and 14 logbooks submitted in 2011), with HMS Safe Document, Monitoring and Enforcement, available at https://docs.google.com/document/pub?id=1YN8GqfeqBpmYgAXVWr9-EScIvrwVSVT5PrUdhC5eOI0 (reporting 49 drift gillnet vessels with swordfish landings and 24 logbooks submitted in 2011). While this is a relatively minor point, clarification of the data would be helpful to both stakeholders and the Council, in evaluating the current status of the fishery.

[1] This would require the American demand for swordfish to be highly inelastic (demonstrably false), and would require a preference for domestically-caught seafood (likely true).

We hope these comments are helpful, and thank you for your consideration.

Provide Guidance on Potential Changes in the Boundaries and Timing of the Pacific Leatherback Turtle Conservation Area and Incidental Sea Turtle Take Limits for the Drift Gillnet Fishery.

1. Take no action on the specific options presented in the HMSMT report and Supplemental Report to open select times and areas of the PLCA.

2. Task the HMSMT with evaluating a potential modification to the PLCA as follows: For only the triangle area identified in Figure 1 of the Supplemental HMSAS report: Access to this portion of the PLCA would be authorized only for vessels with both an onboard observer and VMS, meaning vessels unable to meet requirements to carry observers, or vessels without VMS would be precluded. Analysis should include an expectation of future effort levels in this area under these constraints, and evaluation of both present and past catch and turtle bycatch and interaction rates in this portion of the PLCA. The outer boundary of this triangle area shall be defined by a single straight line approximating the 100 mile contour. Provide this analysis to the Council in early 2014.

3. Request that NMFS continue to evaluate the prospect of utilizing recent research advancements in sea turtle movement patterns as presented in the NMFS report (Agenda Item I1), to develop adaptive management strategies for the PLCA that would allow for adjustments to times and areas to minimize sea turtle interactions. Couple this evaluation with the HMSAS recommendation to also examine sea temperature and other biological and oceanographic data. Task the HMSMT with evaluating tools that may be necessary to ensure compliance with these flexible management measures; including the following:
- Whether the present observer coverage (20 percent goal) is adequate to accurately estimate bycatch in the present-day DGN fishery.
- A VMS requirement for the DGN fishery.

Provide this report to the Council in early 2014.

4. Continue exploring the possibility of managing the DGN fishery with hard caps on incidental sea turtle take and other listed species, modeled after the Hawaii shallow-set longline fishery, and report to the Council on progress in early 2014.

5. Request that NMFS continue evaluating the efficacy of deep-set longline gear, deep set buoy gear, and other alternative gears for effectiveness in harvesting target species and reducing bycatch and interactions with leatherback turtles and marine mammals, toward the goal of developing viable alternatives to DGN gear, and report to the Council on progress in early 2014.

This motion was moved by Ms. Yaremko and Seconded by Mr. Brizendine. The motion carried unanimously. Please see the Final March 2013 Minutes and Voting Log for Finality.

RECOMMENDATIONS FOR INTERNATIONAL MANAGEMENT ACTIVITIES

This agenda item concerns possible Council recommendations for highly migratory species in international management arenas and any associated domestic fishery ramifications. At its meeting, three issues are scheduled for Council consideration. First are matters associated with ongoing negotiations for a possible reciprocal fishing regime in 2013 under the U.S.-Canada Albacore Treaty. Second, the Council should consider the implications of a recently-completed Pacific bluefin tuna assessment showing a significant negative downturn, which could involve possible recommendations to U.S. delegations to the Western and Central Pacific Fisheries Commission (WCPFC) and Inter-American Tropical Tuna Commission (IATTC), in addition to possible domestic regulation considerations. Lastly, the Council will consider the results of the annual WCPFC meeting and provide guidance on further development of a precautionary management framework for North Pacific albacore tuna.

U.S.-Canada Albacore Treaty

The fishing regime, described in Annex C of the U.S.-Canada Albacore Treaty was not renewed for 2012. The regime governs reciprocal access to each country's Exclusive Economic Zone by albacore vessels from the other country, so Canadian vessels were unable to fish in U.S. waters and vice-versa. At the November 2012 meeting, the Council made further recommendations the Department of State and National Marine Fisheries Service on this matter (Attachment 2). The Council Executive Director received a response from Assistant Secretary Kerri-Ann Jones, Department of State, dated December 11, 2012 (Attachment 3) and Samuel Rauch III, Acting Assistant Administrator, National Marine Fisheries Service (Attachment 4). The Council Executive Director also received a January 21, 2013, letter from Denis Stevens, Consul General of Canada in Seattle, describing his views on the Albacore Treaty (Attachment 5).

A bilateral meeting between the Governments of the United States and Canada occurred February 13-14 in Vancouver, B.C. to discuss possible terms for a renewed fishing regime in 2013. The results of that meeting will be reported to the Council in supplemental materials.

Under Agenda Item I.3.b, the National Marine Fisheries Service (NMFS) Southwest Fisheries Science Center (SWFSC) will brief the Council on the ongoing work of the Bilateral Working Groups on Data and Socioeconomics, which were established to provide mutually agreed upon data to support negotiations.

It is possible that at least one more bilateral meeting will be held before the 2013 fishing season to conclude discussions and possible agreement on a fishing regime for 2013.

Pacific Bluefin Stock Assessment

The International Scientific Committee for Tuna and Tuna-Like Species in the North Pacific Ocean (ISC) completed a stock assessment for Pacific bluefin tuna in 2012. The assessment was not completed for the ISC's regular plenary meeting in July 2012 so the ISC held an intercessional plenary meeting December 19-21, 2012, by webinar. Attachment 6 is the report of that meeting. The ISC found that the Pacific bluefin stock is subject to overfishing and heavily overfished. Fishing mortality for 2007-09 ($F_{2007-09}$) is above all of the potential target and limit biological reference points (F_{MAX}, F_{MED}, $F_{20\%}$). The base case assessment model estimates spawning stock biomass at 3.6 percent of its unfished biomass. The ISC noted that conservation measures adopted by the WCPFC and IATTC, "if properly implemented and enforced, are expected to contribute to the recovery of the stock" (emphasis added). The ISC requested advice from the WCPFC on the choice of reference points for the stock to facilitate the provision of scientific advice.

The WCPFC conservation and management measure for Pacific bluefin in 2013 focuses on reducing juvenile fishing mortality, particularly around Japan and the Korean peninsula. IATTC Resolution C-12-09 establishes a Pacific bluefin tuna commercial catch limit for the Convention Area of 10,000 mt for 2012-2013. NMFS published a proposed rule to implement domestic requirements on December 12, 2012 (77 FR 73969). The public comment for the proposed rule ended on January 11, 2013.

The NMFS SWFSC will brief the Council on the results of the stock assessment under Agenda Item I.3.b.

Precautionary Management Framework for North Pacific Albacore Tuna

The WCFPC held its Ninth Regular Meeting held in Manila, December 2-6, 2012. Executive Director Donald McIsaac and Staff Officer Kit Dahl attended on behalf of the Council. Council Member Marija Vojkovich attended in her capacity as Commissioner to the U.S. Section. Attachment 1 is a letter from Michael Tosatto, Regional Administrator, National Marine Fisheries Service Pacific Islands Region, describing the outcomes of the meeting.

An issue of great importance to the Pacific Council in the WCPFC arena is the development of a precautionary management framework for North Pacific albacore tuna.

The WCPFC Northern Committee (NC) has proposed the development of a precautionary management framework for North Pacific albacore in their work plan. The objectives of the precautionary approach-based management framework include: (1) recommending appropriate reference points; (2) agreeing in advance to actions that will be taken in the event each of the particular limit reference points is breached (decision rules); and (3) recommending any changes to Conservation and Management Measure 2005-03 for North Pacific Albacore. The NC intends to complete these tasks by 2014 when the next North Pacific albacore stock assessment is scheduled.

In June 2011 the Council tasked the Highly Migratory Species (HMS) Management Team and HMS Advisory Subpanel with beginning development of a proactive management framework for North Pacific albacore, coincident with the initial advancement of the precautionary framework concept in the NC. In March 2012 the Council directed the HMSMT to work with the HMS Advisory Subpanel (HMSAS) and Scientific and Statistical Committee (SSC) HMS Subcommittee to further develop information to allow the Council to provide input on the development of the precautionary management framework at the June 2012 meeting. The HMSMT and HMSAS reported to the Council on this task at the June meeting. (See Agenda Item E.2.b, HMSMT Report, Supplemental HMSMT Report 2, Supplemental SSC Report, and Supplemental HMSAS Report, June 2012.) The Council was also briefed in September 2012 about the outcomes of the September 3-6, 2012, NC meeting including work on the precautionary management framework.

According to the minutes of the 83rd IATTC meeting (2012), IATTC scientific staff recommended establishing an ad hoc working group to develop an operational definition of the "current levels" of effort specified in Resolution C-05-02 and to amend Resolution C-05-02 as regards reports of catch and effort in the eastern Pacific Ocean. Neither of these recommendations was acted upon. Canada put forward IATTC-83 J-1 Rev 2, a proposed Resolution on North Pacific Albacore to address the latter recommendation but due to lack of time the proposal was not considered. The 85th IATTC meeting is scheduled for June 3-14, 2013, at a venue to be determined.

Council Action:

1. Consider recommendations for future negotiations on a U.S.-Canada Albacore Treaty fishing regime for 2013
2. Consider recommendations for further domestic and international management measures in response to the Pacific bluefin tuna stock assessment
3. Provide guidance for the development of the precautionary framework for the North Pacific albacore tuna management, including biological reference points and decision rules

Dear Chairmen Palacios, Olson, and Wolford:

I am writing to inform you of the outcomes of the Ninth Regular Session of the Western and Central Pacific Fisheries Commission (WCPFC or Commission), held in Manila, December 2-6, 2012. By way of this letter, I would like to share NMFS' initial assessment of the regulatory actions that will be needed to implement the recent decisions of the Commission.

Conservation and management measure for tropical tunas
The Commission adopted CMM 2012-01, "Conservation and Management Measure for Bigeye, Yellowfin and Skipjack Tuna in the Western and Central Pacific Ocean" as a successor to the existing measure for tropical tunas. Under the new measure, WCPFC Members, Cooperating Non-members and Participating Territories (CCMs) are obligated to implement specific provisions for the year 2013 only. For the United States, those obligations include a number of requirements for the purse seine fishery that are similar to those under CMM 2011-01, and for the longline fishery, a bigeye tuna catch that is identical to the annual limits for the years 2009-2012 (3,763 mt).

NMFS intends to promulgate regulations under the authority of the Western and Central Pacific Fisheries Convention Implementation Act (WCPFC IA) to implement both the purse seine and longline elements of the new management measure for 2013. Since the Western Pacific Fishery Management Council's Amendment 7 to the Fishery Ecosystem Plan for Pelagic Fisheries of the Western Pacific, regarding arrangements with the U.S. territories will soon be transmitted for Secretarial review, we will need to consider that amendment and implementing regulations.

Conservation and management measure for whale sharks
The Commission adopted a conservation and management measure that prohibits the intentional setting of purse seines on whale sharks. NMFS intends to implement this prohibition through regulations under the authority of the WCPFC Implementation Act.

Conservation and management measure for seabirds
The Commission revised its management measure for seabirds (currently CMM 2007-04). The main changes in the new measure relate to mitigation measures required to be used by longline vessels in the Convention Areas south of 30° South. The United States does not have any seabird mitigation requirements that apply in that area, but as we have advised the Councils in the past, the Councils could consider developing such measures if warranted by anticipated changes in longline fishing grounds. The new management measure also includes minor revisions to the mitigation requirements required to be used north of 23° North. NMFS does not intend to take any regulatory action to implement those revisions, but we encourage the Councils to review the revised measure and assess whether changes to our domestic requirements would be appropriate.

Conservation and management measure for Pacific bluefin tuna
The Commission adopted a revised management measure for Pacific bluefin tuna. The main provisions of the measure, which call for effort and catch limits in fisheries that target Pacific bluefin tuna, are applicable only in 2013. Since the United States does not have any fisheries in the Convention Area that target Pacific bluefin tuna, NMFS does not intend to take any regulatory action to implement the revised measure.

IATTC-WCPFC area of overlap
The Commission adopted a plan for management of the area of overlap between the Inter-American Tropical Tuna Commission's (IATTC) and WCPFC's respective Convention Areas, including an interim approach that calls for each CCM that is a member of both organizations to choose to apply in the overlap area the decisions of one organization or the other for a period of not less than three years. As the United States is a member of both the WCPFC and the IATTC, this decision could lead to regulatory implications for the United States. Although the majority of the provisions in the decision were recommended to the WCPFC by the IATTC through recommendations adopted at an extraordinary meeting of the IATTC in October, NMFS will confirm with the IATTC that their action is also final. NMFS is analyzing this decision and its impacts on the regulations for both Convention Areas. Regulatory action may be needed to implement this decision.

Vessel Monitoring System (VMS)
The Commission agreed on terms and conditions for the application of the Commission VMS to the national waters of CCMs. This decision will allow NMFS to exchange VMS data with the Commission VMS program and to receive notification when non-U.S. vessels on the Commission VMS enter the U.S. EEZ. The Commission also adopted a specific date for application of VMS requirements to vessels operating in the northwest quadrant of the Convention Area.

Other decisions

In addition to the measures described above, the Commission made a number of decisions that dealt with procedural and other matters that require no regulatory action by the United States. These decisions included extending the Commission's compliance monitoring scheme for another year, extending the Commission's charter notification scheme for another three years, adopting a specific date for application of vessel observer requirements to fresh-fish vessels operating in the area north of 20° North, forming a working group to develop a Commission catch documentation scheme, and adopting a road map for developing management objectives and associated reference points.

Re: U.S. – Canada Albacore Treaty Annex C Negotiations

Dear Dr. Jones and Mr. Schwab:

At its November 3-7 meeting, the Pacific Fishery Management Council (Pacific Council) reiterated our recommendation reported to you in our June 26 letter with respect to the Department of State (DOS) and the National Marine Fisheries Service (NMFS) moving forward as soon as possible to negotiate a fishing regime for the 2013 fishing season under the U.S.-Canada Albacore Treaty. As of this writing, no bilateral meeting between the two governments has been scheduled. We again strongly urge that the DOS and NMFS schedule a meaningful bilateral meeting within the next two months, precursed by resolution of any remaining essential information or data issues. Further, we ask that planning for the meeting take the issues below into consideration.

When negotiations on the fishing regime occur, or by other means, the U.S. should address the issue of attribution of Canadian catch made in U.S. waters. This could be important if conservation measures adopted by the Inter-American Tropical Tuna Commission or the Western and Central Pacific Fisheries Commission establish national limits based on historical catch by fleet or fishing area. As in the 2009 exchange of notes, "In the event that an international fisheries management organization … adopts measures for international management of North Pacific albacore using a national catch allocation system, the Parties agree that the portion of any national allocation received by Canada and the United States attributable to the catch taken in the EEZ of the other country shall be reallocated by each country to the country in whose EEZ that catch was taken, or shall otherwise implement the national allocations in a manner that ensures respective future fishing opportunities under international management reflect total catches in each country's EEZ."

In any renewed fishing regime, the level fishing effort (measured by number of vessels or days fished) permitted by each national fleet in the other country's Exclusive Economic Zone (EEZ) should take into account cross-border effort levels before 1998. After 1998, fishing effort by Canadian vessels in U.S. waters increased, leading to conflict between vessels from the two countries.

In bilateral negotiations, the U.S. should do their best to separate the issue of reciprocal access to respective EEZs for the purpose of fishing from the issue of port access. Even in the absence of a fishing regime, U.S. vessels would still like to enter Canadian ports to deliver to processors, pick up foreign crew, and conduct vessel maintenance. In 2012, U.S. commercial albacore vessels were denied port privileges in Canada for these purposes. Port access is especially important in light of the Comprehensive Economic and Trade Agreement (CETA) currently being negotiated between Canada and the European Union. If successfully concluded, this agreement could give Canadian processors a competitive advantage in access to the European market for albacore.

Finally, we ask that you work with us to ensure that the scheduling of bilateral meetings facilitates continued Council engagement. In this regard, I note that the Pacific Council will meet March 6-11 and April 6-11, 2013. To maximize Pacific Council input, we ask that you avoid scheduling bilateral meetings during these times when the Pacific Council will be meeting. We ask that you contact us for additional details of potential scheduling conflicts that would impair meaningful engagement of the Pacific Council in the negotiation process.

We look forward to an announcement on the schedule for these negotiations. Please contact me if you wish to discuss a schedule that optimizes Pacific Council engagement.

Sincerely,

D. O. McIsaac, Ph.D.

Dear Dr. McIsaac:

Thank you for your letter of November 20, 2012, communicating the Pacific Fishery Management Council's views on the Treaty between the Government of the United States of America and the Government of Canada on Pacific Coast Albacore Tuna Vessels and Port Privileges (the Treaty), including support for working as quickly as possible towards a new reciprocal fishing regime to begin in 2013.

We are working with NOAA Fisheries, the full range of U.S. stakeholders, and the Government of Canada to identify next steps to prepare for effective negotiations to achieve that outcome. We share the Council's view that discussions with Canada should resume as soon as possible. While we had proposed that the U.S. delegation concur with Canada's request to meet in January 2013, it appears that key U.S. stakeholders wish to await outcomes from the two subsidiary working groups established under the Treaty process.

In this regard, we acknowledge that any arrangement for reciprocal fishing beginning in 2013 will depend in part on the history of fishing under the Treaty, particularly by Canadian vessels in U.S. waters. We anticipate that the Data Working Group will be finalizing its work relating to the history of such fishing later this month, and at that time the Economic Working Group may be able to offer analyses of the implications of those levels of fishing. Both of these outputs will help guide the U.S. delegation as we work toward a new reciprocal fishing regime.

We recognize that the Council has made clear its expectation that lack of data should not preclude progress toward a new fishing regime. Given the support from the Council and multiple U.S. sectors, including processors, port services and states, the Department agrees that re-establishing a regime reflective of the full range of U.S. interests is a worthwhile goal.

We are certainly aware of the importance that Canada places on active implementation of the Treaty. The Government of Canada has reached out to us at senior political levels, both in advance of and subsequent to the 2012 albacore fishing season. Failure to move forward could have serious implications for a broad range of other fisheries matters that our nations face in common.

While only a few months have passed since the conclusion of the 2012 fishing season, the objective of re-establishing a reciprocal fishing regime has been under consideration since before the conclusion of the previous regime at the end of the 2011 season. Since the last set of talks earlier this year, the U.S. delegation has been working internally and informally with Canada to lay the groundwork for renewed discussions toward a future regime. In this time, we have identified a number of elements that require specific consideration. In particular, we are engaged in a continuing review of Canada's proposals from the most recent bilateral Treaty consultation in Portland, OR and we have encouraged U.S. stakeholders to develop their ideas into concrete proposals that might constitute a foundation for a 2013 regime.

In this regard we welcomed the Council's identification of the elements it sees are integral to a satisfactory outcome, including catch attribution and a reference period for levels of Canadian participation in the reciprocal fishery. Regarding the issue of port access, we understand the benefits as outlined in the Council's letter but remain uncertain about the degree to which Canada may wish to show flexibility on that issue, given their apparent position that port access was linked to successful implementation of a reciprocal access regime.

Thank you again for the substantive engagement by the Council through its work and as part of the U.S. delegation to the negotiations of a reciprocal fishing regime under the Treaty. If we can be of any assistance please do not hesitate to be in contact with David Hogan, Deputy Director of the OES Office of Marine Conservation at 202-647-2337 or HoganDF@state.gov.

Dear Dr. McIsaac:

Thank you for your letter regarding the Treaty Between the Government of the United States of America and the Government of Canada on Pacific Coast Albacore Tuna Vessels and Port Privileges. We have reviewed the Pacific Fishery Management Council's views and have discussed them with our colleagues at the U.S. Department of State Bureau of Oceans and International Environmental and Scientific Affairs (OES). We also note the recent OES response to you from Dr. Kerri-Ann Jones.

We share the Council's view that our work with Canada should resume as soon as possible. We also welcome the Council's reaffirmation of its support for the successful negotiation of a new reciprocal fishing regime to begin in 2013. With that goal in mind, we have been working diligently with our Canadian counterparts within the context of the data and economic working groups that were established to inform current and future negotiations under the Treaty. The products we will soon receive from these working groups will facilitate our bilateral discussions and will allow us to assess matters such as the levels of historic fishing effort mentioned in your letter.

We will continue to work with OES to facilitate continued engagement by the Council on these important matters.

Re: Canada-United States Pacific Albacore Tuna Treaty

Dear Mr. Mclsaac:

I am writing to share my views with the Council on several aspects of the Canada-United States Pacific Albacore Tuna Treaty.

I would first off like to express our appreciation of the interest and seriousness with which the Council has addressed Treaty issues during its meetings over the past 18 months. We are also pleased to note the recent correspondence between the Council and Dr. Kerri-Ann Jones of the U.S. State Department, which indicates that both the Council and State Department appear to share our desire to resume negotiations in order to reach agreement on a new fishing regime.

We share the view of the Council and the State Department that, while any agreement needs to be based on a solid understanding of the current realities of the fishery and how changes have occurred over time, the lack of perfect data should not be a cause for delaying negotiations. On the basis of this understanding, we are pleased that renewed negotiations will be underway shortly – discussions have been scheduled for February 13-14 in Vancouver, British Columbia.

At this time I would like to take the opportunity to highlight many of the positive aspects of the Treaty, before recounting our recent negotiating efforts and addressing some of the misinformation that has been presented to the Council in recent months.

This bilateral Treaty, in place since 1981 at the request of the United States, has supported a prosperous and sustainable albacore fishing industry on both sides of the border for over three decades. Many of the albacore fishing groups off the Pacific Northwest coast are made up of both Canadian and American harvesters. In fact, the original intention of the Treaty was to ensure the continued access of harvesters to albacore on their traditional fishing grounds along the Northwest coast.

While Canada recognizes that the nature of the fishery has evolved, we strongly believe that many in industry on both sides of the border have become reliant on the benefits accorded under the Treaty and that many of the difficulties experienced in the absence of bilateral access in 2012 (e.g., the difficulties associated without having automatic access to Canadian ports for the purposes of crew exchanges and landings for American albacore vessels) highlighted some of the less obvious benefits of the Treaty.

The treaty has also provided a forum for increased collaboration on scientific and management related issues within both the Inter-American Tropical Tuna Commission and the Western and Central Pacific Fisheries Commission. Close cooperation between our two countries within these international organizations is essential to ensuring the responsible management of albacore.

Clearly Canada was disappointed that a fishing regime could not be negotiated for the 2012 fishing season, and in our view this was not due to a lack of effort to address several areas of concern expressed by the American harvesters, including, but not limited to, issues of fleet etiquette, fleet capacity and joint scientific work.

As you may recall, following the November 2011 negotiating session in Vancouver, British Columbia, three Working Groups were established to work through some of the issues leading to these concerns. Despite a lot of good work being accomplished in the Data and Economic Working Groups in a short time period, Canada was informed in March 2012 that the official United States position was no fishing in 2012.

Notwithstanding this, in May 2012, the delegations met again informally in Portland, Oregon, at which time Canada tabled a number of proposals aimed at addressing concerns of the American fishing industry: notably on fishing behaviour, capacity, and the transfer of licences. These proposals are attached and we remain open to discussing how best to address the concerns expressed by U.S. industry.

We have also reviewed issues raised by the Council in its previous correspondence and Canada is willing to show flexibility in a number of these areas. The important step at this time is for the Parties to return to the negotiating table and to have meaningful discussions to resolve the outstanding areas of concern.

As I am sure the Council is aware, the global economy has changed dramatically over the past decade. The Government of Canada is committed to providing Canadian workers, businesses and investors with the tools, access and support they need to succeed in global markets. Given the slow progress of the work at the World Trade Organization, the United States and Canada, like many of our trading partners, have pursued the development of bilateral trade arrangements in order to better position ourselves in key markets. In response to the concerns expressed regarding any competitive advantage Canada might enjoy due to a potential Canada – European Union Comprehensive Economic and Trade Agreement, it is important to remain mindful that the United States currently has significant duty-free access to the EU market even in the absence of a free trade agreement for its albacore products. Given Canadian trade of albacore tuna to the EU is minimal, any alleged advantage Canada might see in the near future does not accord with reality.

In closing, I would like to highlight that the Canada-United States Pacific Albacore Tuna Treaty has always been an example of the strong bilateral fisheries relationship between our two countries. As you know, this relationship touches a significant number of fisheries on both Coasts. Although issues come up from time to time, our ability to discuss and work through differences has ensured that these fisheries are sustainably harvested in a manner that benefits fishers on both sides of the border.

Consistent with this spirit, I am encouraged by the Council's recommendations to the State Department to return to the negotiating table. I am also confident that when the Council reviews Treaty developments during its upcoming meetings in March and April, that it will do so with the same balanced perspective that has been inherent in Council positions to date.

In the interest of transparency, I kindly ask that you circulate this letter to Council members and, if possible, post it on the Council website so that it can be viewed by others with an interest in the Treaty.

Sincerely,

Denis Stevens
Consul General of Canada in Seattle

Proposed Revisions to Annex C
Canadian Proposal – May 23, 2012

5 (bis)

1. Taking into consideration the Proposal to Encourage and Facilitate Improved Tuna Fleet Behaviour (Code of Behaviour) adopted by the Parties (or fishing association entities of the Parties as the case may be), any vessel owner or vessel captain engaged in fishing pursuant to the Fishing Regime may complain to an in-season contact representing the vessels of his Party of any alleged violation of the Code of Behaviour by the crew of any vessel of the other Party as soon as may be practicable. The complaint should include the following information:

   - the name, radio call sign or vessel identification of the vessel whose crew is alleged to have violated the Code of Behaviour
   - the nature of the alleged violation
   - the date and location where the alleged violation took place.

2. The in-season contact will forward the complaint to all other in-season contacts designated by both the Parties one or more of whom will take responsibility to further investigate the complaint and liaise with one or more in-season contacts designated by the other party.

3. Should the in-season contacts involved in the investigation of the complaint reach a consensus on the nature of the violation and any possible sanction, this consensus will be forwarded by the in-season contact designated by the party of the alleged violator to the violator, to the fishing association representing the alleged violator, to the fishing association of the complainant and to the authorities of each of the parties designated by the Party to receive complaints under this section. The association of the alleged violator will be responsible for imposing any sanction on the alleged violator, failing which, the designated authorities of the parties shall further consult to arrive at a conclusion respecting the alleged facts and whether a sanction may be imposed by either of the parties consistent with their rules and regulations, including those related to licensing.

4. Should the in-season contacts involved in investigating the complaint fail to reach a consensus, the complaint will be forwarded by the in-season contacts involved in the investigation to the designated authorities of the parties referred to under 3. for further action.

5. It is desirable for any complaint filed, investigation conducted and sanction imposed to be carried out as soon as possible after the date of the alleged violation and, in any event, during the course of the fishing season in which the alleged violation took place.

Proposal for Jointly Funded Scientific Research on North Pacific Albacore
Proposal by Canada – May 23, 2012

- Funds collected by AFRF and CHMSF from US and Canadian fishermen, respectively, using existing mechanisms

- Funds to be held in trust by each body for research purposes

- Research priorities identified by the ISC Albacore Working Group in the stock assessment document will form the basis for acceptable areas of research

- Research proposals developed jointly by US and Canadian scientists will be brought forward for funding. Proposals will include a detailed budget that identifies costs and source of funds (AFRF, CHMSF) by component.

- Proposals will be assessed by the Data WG.

- Proposals can be single or multi-year; proponents will be required to report results and conclusions, including a budget report, to the Data WG annually.

Proposals to Encourage and Facilitate Improved Tuna Fleet Behaviour

The issue of crowding and aggressive behaviour is an issue across both Canadian and United States fleets.

In response, the British Columbia Tuna Fishermen's Association has developed a number of proposals to encourage and facilitate improved tuna fleet behaviour with a focus on:

- improved communication between United States and Canadian fishermen
- increased awareness of all albacore fishermen of the critical importance of proper behaviour on the grounds.

The British Columbia Tuna Fishermen's Association proposes the following:

EDUCATION

- to work with United States counterparts to revise the existing British Columbia Tuna Fishermen's Association Code of Conduct.
    - to seek agreement on a revised Code of Conduct from the Western Fishboat Owners Association and the American Albacore Fishing Association.
    - to add the revised Code of Conduct to Canadian and United States tuna logbooks
- to attach a copy of the International Collision Regulations to the Canadian and United States tuna logbooks
    - Most if not all Canadian skippers have a Fishing Masters Certificate, granted by the Canadian Ministry of Transportation. Certification ensures that the skipper has a comprehensive working knowledge of the International Collision Regulations.
- to offer a program to teach appropriate fishing behaviour to Canadian skippers based on the Code of Conduct, and would be pleased to explore the possibility of a joint education programme with their American counterparts.
- to distribute a wheelhouse window sticker to every Canadian tuna fisherman, for placement on the inside of the window facing the helmsman. The sticker will be worded to be a constant reminder to Canadian skippers that they are guests in American waters, and that access to American waters is contingent upon their behaviour.

INFORMATION

- to develop a reporting program to inform both fleets of the fishing conditions in Canadian waters. This could take place in the form of a weekly update to the Western Fishboat Owners Association and the American Albacore Fishing Association providing a synopsis of the fishing opportunities available north of the border. Such a report will encourage communication between fleets and will spread the fleet out over more of the coast, resulting in reduced effort in American waters.

DISPUTE RESOLUTION

- to encourage Canadian fishermen to monitor and use VHF channel 72 to communicate with US fishermen on the grounds. Getting in the habit of communication with other vessels about their course, their fishing activity and their intentions is crucial to safe fishing. Talking to others when there has been a close call, whether caused by inattention or other factors, is critical to pre-empting the escalation of tension on the grounds.

- to form a joint United States / Canada Dispute Resolution Committee when communication on Ch. 72 has not been effective in addressing a problem. The committee could be comprised of an equal number (5 or 6?) of respected and experienced senior American and Canadian tuna fishermen, retired or active, who will be available in-season to receive complaints and contact their counterparts to deal with those complaints. Any complaints received would be brought to both the skipper's and the vessel owner's attention immediately, to be dealt with promptly.

    - Continued joint efforts should occur to determine an appropriate process through which complaints which are not resolved on the grounds can be effectively dealt with.

The British Columbia Tuna Fishermen's Association looks forward to discussing these matters with our American friends.

1 INTRODUCTION AND OPENING OF THE MEETING

1.1 Introduction

The International Scientific Committee for Tuna and Tuna-like Species in the North Pacific Ocean (ISC) was established in 1995 through an intergovernmental agreement between Japan and the United States of America (USA). Since its establishment and first meeting in 1996, the ISC has undergone a number of changes to its membership, charter and name (from the Interim Scientific Committee to the International Scientific Committee) and has adopted a number of guidelines for its operations. The two main goals of the ISC are (1) to enhance scientific research and cooperation for conservation and rational utilization of the species of tuna and tuna-like fishes that inhabit the North Pacific Ocean during a part or all of their life cycle; and (2) to establish the scientific groundwork for the conservation and rational utilization of these species in this region. The ISC is made up of voting Members from coastal states and fishing entities in the North Pacific as well as coastal states and fishing entities with vessels fishing for highly migratory species in the region, and non-voting Members from relevant intergovernmental fishery and marine science organizations, recognized by all voting Members.

At the twelfth Plenary session of the ISC (ISC12) held in July 2012, ISC members agreed to hold an intercessional Plenary meeting in order to resolve outstanding issues. These issues include finalizing the ISC Operations Manual, as well as adopting the Pacific bluefin tuna assessment and related scientific advice.

1.2 Opening of the meeting

The intercessional meeting of the ISC was convened via webinar at 2pm (HST) on 19 December 2012 by the ISC Chairman, G. DiNardo. A roll call confirmed the presence of delegates from Canada, China, Chinese Taipei, Japan, Korea, Mexico, and USA. Representatives from the Inter-American Tropical Tuna Commission attended as observers (Annex 1).

2 ADOPTION OF THE AGENDA

The proposed agenda of the session was considered and adopted with no changes (Annex 2). S. Shoffler and L. Katahira were assigned lead rapporteur duties. A list of meeting documents is contained in Annex 3.

There was a recommendation that ISC address WCPFC-SC8 requests, as well as concerns about ISC reporting requirements, during this session. The ISC Chair reminded Members that the WCPFC-NC is the only body that can directly task the ISC, and this relationship is outlined in the existing Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) between ISC and WCPFC.

The ISC Chair reported that all requests and concerns were discussed in detail at the 9th Regular Session of the WCPFC Commission (WCPFC9) in December 2012. Since WCPFC-NC8 endorsed the request made at WCPFC-SC8 for the ISC to conduct additional analyses associated with the striped marlin stock assessment, the BILLWG conducted the analyses and presented them for review at WCPFC9. The Chair also reported that a potential solution to the concern over SC reporting requirements raised during WCPFC-SC8, while unfounded, has been developed. The ISC would forward assessment reports to the SC as soon as they are approved and the Plenary concluded. Members were satisfied with the progress and agreed to suspend further discussion on these topics until ISC13.

3 PACIFIC BLUEFIN TUNA STOCK ASSESSMENT

Y. Takeuchi summarized results of the stock assessment conducted by the ISC Pacific Bluefin Tuna Working Group (PBFWG) (ISC/IM12/Annex 4). The Stock Synthesis software (version 3.23b) was fit to the stock assessment input data in a likelihood-based statistical framework. Maximum likelihood estimates of model parameters, derived outputs, and their variances were used to characterize stock status and to develop stock projections. A single pan-Pacific stock of PBF is assumed. The model used quarterly catch-at-length data; 14 fisheries defined by gear, location and season; and with abundance indices from longline fleets and a troll fleet. The PBFWG recognized there are substantial uncertainties in the current stock assessment. In particular procedures used to standardize CPUE and weight the input data, as well as method to estimate selectivities. The influences of these uncertainties on stock dynamics were considered using alternative models and characterized by 20 trial runs. While no single model provided a good fit to all sources of data considered reliable, there was a general agreement among models in terms of key model results. All plausible models depicted large long-term fluctuations in spawning stock biomass (SSB) and a highly depleted stock that has been declining for over a decade. Model estimates of current biomass are at or near the lowest level; however there is no evidence of reduced recruitment. Estimated age-specific fishing mortalities on the stock in the recent period (2007-2009) relative to 2002-2004 (the base period for the current WCPFC conservation and management measure 2010-04) show 4,17, 8, 41 and 10% increases for ages 0,1,2,3 and 4+, respectively (Figure Ex-5). Although no target or limit reference points have been established for the Pacific Bluefin tuna stock under the auspices of the WCPFC and IATTC, the current F (average 2007-2009) is above all reasonable target and limit biological reference points (BRPs).

The PBFWG offers the following conservation advice:

- PBF is currently (2010) near historically low biomass levels and experiencing high exploitation levels above BRPs. Extending the status quo (2007-2009) fishing levels is unlikely to improve the stock condition.
- Based on projection analyses the recently implemented WCPFC (entered into force in 2011) and IATTC (entered into force in 2012) conservation and management measures, if properly implemented and enforced, are expected to contribute to the recovery of the stock.
- Additional Japanese domestic regulations aimed at reducing fishing mortality are projected to further contribute to the recovery of the stock.

The ISC Chair thanked the WG for their hard work and noted that it produced a report in very short order. It was also noted that additional revisions are required before the stock assessment report can be released. Plenary agreed that the assessment report would be distributed within 60 days and an Executive Summary of the assessment report be posted on the ISC website by January 7, 2013.

Plenary discussed the stock assessment and sought clarification on CPUE series used in the assessment; in particular, whether EPO CPUE associated with the purse-seine fishery had been used. The PBFWG Chair clarified that the assessment did not use CPUE from the EPO purse-seine fishery due to issues concerning the representativeness of standardized CPUE from this fleet to stock abundance. The WG recognized the importance of the information particularly as it relates to the development of a spatially explicit PBF assessment model. In the meantime, the WG decided to rely on CPUE series in the WCPO as measures of PBF abundance in the North Pacific Ocean.

It was noted that the report needs more detail on how CPUE time series were standardized and the process used for weighting CPUE and size composition data. Plenary noted that the report also needs more detail on the steepness parameter in the stock-recruit relationship, particularly the rational and analysis that supports the adopted value (0.999) used in the assessment.

Plenary noted that a Kobe plot was not included in the assessment report. The ISC Chair indicated that Kobe plots are standard "calculations" in any stock assessment, and the PBFWG will need to complete that calculation for review and adoption at ISC13. To initiate discussions on the topic, a Kobe plot using 20% of expected unfished SSB as the biomass reference point and 20% SPR as the F reference point was computed (not included) and reviewed. In the plots the recent Kobe trace (2010) was located in the in the upper left quadrant, indicating a stock that is both overfished and experiencing overfishing, consistent with the stock status determination in the stock assessment report. In addition, most of the Kobe trace (1952-2010) was restricted to the upper left quadrant, indicating that the stock had been in an overfished and overfishing state for most of the assessment period. Since the Kobe traces do not resemble the usual pattern observed in most Kobe plots (usually starting out with a relatively healthy stock before showing signs of stress) the validity of the computed trace, as well as possible explanations for the observed pattern, were discussed There was no resolution on this matter, therefore Plenary tasked the PBFWG with completing the calculations and recommending a Kobe plot(s) for PBF that is consistent with the current assessment for review at ISC13. Plausible explanations for Pacific bluefin tuna being in an overfishing and overfished state for most of the assessment period should also be presented at ISC13.

Stock Status

Based on the reference point ratios, overfishing is occurring (see F-based ratios in Table 1) and the stock is heavily overfished (see depletion ratios in Table 1). Model estimates of 2010 spawning stock biomass (SSB) are at or near their lowest level and SSB has been declining for over a decade; however, there is no evidence of reduced recruitment.

Table 1. Computed F-based biological reference points (BRPs; F_{max}, F_{med}, and $F_{20\%}$) for Pacific bluefin tuna relative to $F_{2002\text{-}2004}$ and $F_{2007\text{-}2009}$, estimated depletion rate (ratio of SSB in 2010 relative to unfished SSB), and estimated SSB (mt) in year 2010 for 20 model configurations (Runs). Run 2 is highlighted as it represents the base case model for the PBF stock assessment. F-ratio based BRP values less than 1 indicate overfishing.

Conservation Advice

The current (2010) PBF biomass level is near historically low biomass levels and experiencing high exploitation levels above all potential biological reference points (BRPs). Extending the status quo (2007-2009) fishing levels is unlikely to improve the stock condition.

Recently implemented WCPFC[1] (entered into force in 2011) and IATTC[2] (entered into force in 2012) conservation and management measures combined with additional Japanese voluntary

[1]This refers to WCPFC CMM 2010-04 which specifies that "total fishing effort by their vessels fishing for Pacific bluefin tuna in the area north of the 20 degrees north shall stay below the 2002-2004 levels for 2011 and 2012, except for artisanal fisheries. Such measures shall include those to reduce catches of juveniles (age 0-3) below the 2002-2004 levels, except for Korea. Korea shall take necessary measures to regulate the catches of juveniles (age 0-3) by managing Korean fisheries in accordance with this CMM. CCMs shall cooperate for this purpose." [2]This refers to IATTC Resolution C-12-09 which specifies that "1. In the IATTC Convention Area, the commercial catches of bluefin tuna by all the CPCs during the two-year period of 2012-2013 shall not exceed 10,000 metric tons; 2. The commercial catch of bluefin tuna in the commercial fishery in the Convention Area shall not exceed 5,600 metric tons domestic regulations aimed at reducing mortality[3], if properly implemented and enforced, are expected to contribute to the recovery of the stock. Based on those findings, it should be noted that implementation of catch limits is particularly effective in increasing future SSB when strong recruitment occurs. It is also important to note that if recruitment is less favorable, a reduction of F could be more effective than catch limits to reduce the risk of the stock declining.

The ISC requires advice from the WCPFC regarding which reference point managers prefer so that it can provide the most useful scientific advice. Until which time a decision is rendered, the ISC will continue to provide a suite of potential biological reference points for managers to consider.

Future work

To finalize the PBF stock assessment report by February 21, 2013, Plenary tasked the PBFWG with the following:

1. Clarify how the WG dealt with data weighting of the size composition data and how CPUE standardizations were conducted;
2. Clarify justification for the adopted steepness value used in the assessment;
3. Move figures to the back of the executive summary

The Plenary also requested that the PBFWG Chair work with the ISC Chair to develop a strategy for prioritizing and completing the following tasks for presentation and review at ISC13:

1. Conduct additional projection scenarios with recruitment levels consistent with the lower values estimated in the 1980s;
2. Pending approval from the WCPFC-NC, conduct reference point research similar to that being conducted for North Pacific albacore and swordfish (see item 4 WCPFC-NC8);
3. Conduct fishery impact analyses to determine the extent to which gears are contributing to the overfishing and overfished status;
4. Develop and recommend Kobe plot(s) based on results from the current Pacific bluefin tuna stock assessment. Provide plausible explanations for PBF being in an overfished condition throughout the entire assessment period.

4 WCPFC-NC8

ISC reviewed the NC8 (Nagasaki, Japan; September 2012) request to provide information for determining appropriate reference points for both North Pacific albacore and swordfish (ISC/IM12/PLENARY/01). Plenary endorsed the requests and tasked the ALBWG and BILLWG, respectively, with completing the assignments and presenting the results for review at ISC13. Plenary also agreed that conducting similar work for Pacific bluefin tuna and striped marlin would be appropriate and the ISC Chair agreed to seek approval on this matter from the NC. If accepted the results would be presented and reviewed at ISC13. The Plenary also agreed that it would be beneficial to address reference point considerations for these species even if no positive feedback is received from the NC.

5 ADMINISTRATIVE MATTERS

5.1 Updates to the ISC Operations Manual

ISC has been working to update its Operations Manual (ISC/12/Plenary/05) in order to clarify roles and tighten procedures. Members were asked to consider these changes and consider adopting the revised Operations Manual (July 2012). ISC12 Plenary generally endorsed the updates, but asked for more time for Members to review the changes. It was agreed that the changes would be finalized at the 17-21 December 2012 intercessional Plenary meeting including edits to the section on Best Available Scientific Information (BASI) that recommend ISC support and adopt the use of BASI whenever possible (ISC/IM12/PLENARY/02). The December Plenary adopted the changes to BASI and the ISC Chair agreed to incorporate additional changes submitted by Members for other sections of the Operations Manual for circulation prior to ISC13. The ISC Chair was asked to report on the progress of ISC membership documentation that was discussed at ISC12. It was reported that the Office of the Chair is still researching this matter and will provide a full report at ISC13.

5.2 Plenary Observers

Recently an environmental non-governmental organization (eNGO) requested to participate as an observer in the November 2012 PBFWG Workshop in Honolulu, Hawaii. Because working group participants are appointed by Members and must possess credible scientific and fisheries qualifications and actively contribute to the WG proceedings, their request was denied. Because ISC may receive additional requests from other NGOs, including industry groups, to observe ISC Plenary meetings, the ISC discussed if and how Observers can participate in the meetings, as specified in the ISC Operations Manual under Procedures. (ISC/IM12/PLENARY/03)

Plenary agreed that observers should be able to participate at Plenary and that the ISC Chair would develop rules and procedures for their participation. It was noted that because ISC is an RFO (regional fishery organization) it is not under the same dictate as RFMOs (Regional Fishery Management Organization) that require transparency for management decision making. Plenary agreed that the rules and procedures would include the following:

- Advocacy documents are not appropriate for a science organization and ISC will not accept them.
- Plenary may include a single short comment period for observers with comments limited to technical questions about ISC assessments and procedures; they will not include presentations or positions by observers.
- Observers will be subject to rules of conduct.
- Observers wishing to attend Plenary meetings will have to apply to the ISC Chair well in advance of the meeting (at least 60 days), and any Member can oppose the application.

The ISC Chair will prepare rules for review and adoption by Members in time for them to be implemented for ISC13. Plenary noted that by allowing observers additional costs, in the form of added space and administration, will be incurred. This cost will likely be borne by the Member hosting the Plenary meeting.

5.3 ISC Review Update

The ISC Chair discussed the status of the independent ISC Function Review, and indicated that the final report is expected to be complete by late February 2013. The report will note that ISC is unique in its science role in the Pacific Ocean, provide recommendations for incorporating BASI and a process for standardizing reports, and recommend procedures to elevate the stature of ISC in the scientific community.

5.4 Delegation Updates

The Chair noted some changes to the ISC delegations specifically that Dr. Xiaojie Dai now heads the China delegation. It was noted that Heads of Delegation contact information was circulated to all Delegation leads.

5.6 Other Matters

The Chair noted that several countries had not yet provided complete data for the blue shark assessment and that data should be provided to the Chair of the SHARKWG immediately.

6 CLOSE OF MEETING

The meeting closed at 8pm (HST) on 20 December 2012.

Report to the Pacific Fishery Management Council on the Canada-United States Pacific Albacore Treaty Negotiations, February 13-14, 2013, Vancouver, B.C., Canada

1. Delegations

The U.S. delegation was led by David Hogan, Office of Marine Conservation, Department of State. Council member Buzz Brizendine and Council Staff Kit Dahl represented the Pacific Fishery Management Council. Other U.S. delegation members were Mark Helvey and Craig D'Angelo, National Marine Fisheries Service Southwest Region; Brad Wiley, NMFS Office of International Affairs; Vicki Nomura, NOAA Office of Law Enforcement; Brian Corrigan, U.S. Coast Guard; Chip Bissell, American Albacore Fishing Association; Peter Flournoy, American Fishermen's Research Foundation; Doug Fricke, Washington Trollers Association, Barbara Fricke, Rick Goche, Oregon Albacore Commission; Shawn Ryan, Oregon Albacore Commission; Rod Moore, West Coast Seafood Processors Association; and Steve Moore, American Albacore Fishing Association.

The Canadian Delegation was led by Sylvie LaPointe, Department of Fisheries and Oceans Canada, and included representatives from Foreign Affairs and International Trade Canada, the British Columbia Provincial Government, the British Columbia Tuna Fishermen's Association, and the Canadian Highly Migratory Species Foundation.

2. 2012 Season Catch Information

Canada provided the following information on catch and effort by their vessels in 2012. A total of 175 vessels participated in the fishery in 2012; 170 vessels fished in the Canadian exclusive economic zone (EEZ) and 62 fished on the high seas. Based on expanded logbook reporting (with 99 percent of logbooks returned) the estimated catch is 2,058 mt in the Canadian EEZ and 471 mt on the high seas.

The U.S. reported 13,761 mt based on fish ticket data entered in the PacFIN database to date. When all fish tickets are entered and fully reconciled the true figure will likely be higher; still this represents the highest catch since 2004.

3. Intersessional Work

The delegations heard reports on the work of the bilateral Data Working Group and Socioeconomic Working Group.

4. Review of November 2011 and May 2012 Meetings and 2010-12 Fisheries

Canada said the current negotiation should be viewed as an extension of the meetings in November 2011 and May 2012 aimed at negotiating a fishing regime for 2012. Those negotiations did not reach agreement so there was no regime in 2012. Canada expressed the hope that the additional information developed in the interim would result in an agreement for the 2013 fishing season.

The U.S. reviewed past issues and concerns as they affect negotiations for a regime for 2013. David Hogan emphasized that the evolution of the fishing regime after 1998 strongly influences the U.S. view. The U.S. is concerned about the balance of benefits from the treaty as that relates to equity. He said the U.S. will be looking at basing any agreement on a regime on conditions as they were prior to 1998 when the amount of fishing effort by Canadian vessels in the U.S. EEZ was lower than it has been more recently. He touched on issues around the increase in Canadian vessels' fishing capacity and the impact of the leasing and sale of Canadian permits to fish in U.S. waters under the Treaty. He noted the concerns raised by U.S. harvesters about the behavior of Canadian vessel operators. U.S. harvesters had expressed the view that Canadian operators are used to fishing much closer together, because of their experience in Canadian salmon fisheries, while U.S. albacore fishermen generally adhere to rules of conduct where vessels stay at least 2 miles apart. He emphasized the consensus shared by U.S. harvesters as being opposed to any fishing regime. While the Department of State is willing to reach agreement on a regime in 2013 based on a broader set of interests, the majority harvesters' position is having a big impact on the tenor of the negotiations. Because of this, the basis for an agreement has changed since the last meeting in Portland, Oregon in 2012.

Canada expressed their frustration at not yet receiving any concrete proposals from the U.S. to form a basis for negotiation. She asked U.S. fishermen to describe their experience of the 2012 season. In response several members of the U.S. delegation described conditions resulting from the lack of Canadian access in very positive terms.

5. Discussion of Elements of a Future Regime

The U.S. provided some initial thoughts on elements of a reciprocal fishing regime for 2013, with consideration of a contingent longer-term arrangement. With respect to the number of vessels permitted access to the U.S. EEZ in 2013, the U.S. said they want to have a better picture of the fleet profile prior to 1998. Recognizing the limits on data about Canadian effort and catch in the U.S. EEZ prior to 1995, the U.S. will compile available information to provide a profile for the next negotiation.

Canada stated their preference for a regime covering a longer time period but would engage in discussion about a contingent 1-year agreement. Canada circulated descriptions of five elements of a regime and reviewed them.

After a U.S. delegation meeting on the morning of February 14, the parties again met and the U.S. responded to the Canadian proposals. Both parties thought some notional agreement could be reached on the elements of a regime but it would take a second meeting to agree on the specifics.

The meeting adjourned at midday on February 14. The U.S. committed to providing written counter-proposals for the next bilateral negotiation meeting, which is likely to occur in March or April. Canada expressed concern that more progress couldn't be made at this meeting. Canada outlined three objectives for the outcome of negotiations: 1) Any agreement should be simple, so as to minimize possible loopholes; 2) An agreement should be a package with the elements discussed at this meeting linked; 3) If the fishing regime is only for 2013 than it should only contain short-term arrangements rather than a mix of 1-year and longer-term elements.

Re: U.S. – Canada Albacore Treaty Annex C Negotiations

Dear Dr. Jones and Mr. Schwab:

At its June Council meeting in San Mateo, California, the Pacific Fishery Management Council (Pacific Council) considered, among other matters, issues surrounding the expiration in 2011 of the fishing regime described in Annex C of the U.S.-Canada Albacore Treaty (Treaty), which governs reciprocal access to each country's exclusive economic zone (EEZ) by albacore fishing vessels from the other country. Potential action by the Pacific Council included reconsideration of the Pacific Council's position on reciprocal fishing in 2012 and any recommendations for a fishing regime that might begin in 2013 or beyond.

The Pacific Council considered reports from U.S. management entities on the May 23-24, 2012 bilateral negotiation session in Portland, Oregon, as well as their perspectives on current events; written statements from its scientific and stakeholder advisory bodies; testimony from representatives of the Province of British Columbia, the Canadian Highly Migratory Species Foundation, and the British Columbia Tuna Fishermen's Association; and testimony from seven individuals representing U.S. commercial fishing, processing, research interests, and the general public. This letter communicates the Pacific Council's recommendations, in the context of the current state of bilateral negotiations regarding execution of Treaty provisions.

After considering all current information and input on possible Pacific Council action, the Pacific Council reaffirmed its March 13, 2012 recommendation to suspend reciprocal access in 2012 to allow for the exchange and assessment of relevant information and data, and the development and negotiation of alternatives to address the concerns about long-term reciprocal access privileges under the Treaty. However, the Pacific Council strongly recommends the Departments of State (DOS) and the National Marine Fisheries Service (NMFS) do what is necessary to enable negotiations to move forward expeditiously, and reach a successful conclusion such that a replacement regime is in place for the 2013 fishing season.

Completing the exchange of information relevant to the issues frustrating agreement on a new fishing regime is essential to negotiations, and should be accomplished as soon as possible. To this end, the Pacific Council asks the DOS and NMFS to schedule a meeting in the very near future to finalize any outstanding work of the joint working groups on fishery and socioeconomic data formed by the governments of Canada and the U.S.. These two working groups should provide: 1) accurate and reasonably comprehensive data on the amount and location of catch and landings made by vessels from the two nations, 2) the change in vessel characteristics over time, and 3) the socioeconomic impact of reciprocal access and how it has changed over time. Such information will help in evaluating the merits of stakeholders' concerns about the impact of reciprocal access on U.S. albacore vessels. While assembling critical data is very important and we urge completion of the necessary materials, failure to reach absolute finality on some relatively minor elements of this task should not prevent agreement on a new reciprocal fishing regime to begin in 2013.

For negotiations to succeed, it is beneficial to develop a U.S. proposal that responds to the proposals put forward by the Government of Canada at the May 23-24, 2012, bilateral meeting, in response to three concerns tabled by the U.S delegation at the November 30-December 1, 2011 bilateral meeting in Vancouver. B.C.: 1) the number and size of Canadian vessels permitted to fish in the U.S. EEZ, 2) the interaction between U.S. and Canadian vessels on the fishing grounds, and 3) the benefits that accrue to the U.S. as a result of Canadian vessels fishing in U.S. waters, in an equity context with quid pro quo fishing by U.S. vessels fishing in Canadian waters. The Council recommends the DOS and NMFS convene a meeting of the U.S. delegation as soon as possible so that a bilateral negotiation session can occur by early fall.

The Pacific Council recommends that the DOS and NMFS consult with their Canadian counterparts and develop a meeting schedule consistent with the points outlined above, as well as the possibility that more than one bilateral meeting may be necessary to successfully negotiate a new fishing regime. The Pacific Council believes an aggressive schedule is needed to reach agreement on a new fishing regime beginning in 2013, and requests that you actively manage for the necessities to achieve this important goal.

We would appreciate your response in the near future describing your plans for reaching an agreement on a new fishing regime under Annex C of the Treaty. We note the deadline for advance materials for our next Pacific Council meeting is August 23, 2012. The Pacific Council stands ready to assist as appropriate.

Thank you for your attention to this important matter.

Sincerely,

D. O. McIsaac, Ph.D.

Agenda Item I.3.b
Supplemental HMSAS Report
March 2013

Highly Migratory Species Advisory Subpanel Report

U.S.-Canada Albacore Treaty

The majority of the Highly Migratory Species Advisory Subpanel (HMSAS) supports no fishing regime for the 2013 albacore season under the U.S.-Canada albacore treaty. There will be a minority report.

At the last Council meeting in November 2012, the HMSAS discussed the U.S.-Canada Albacore Treaty and determined most indications from the 2012 season showed a benefit to the U.S. albacore fleet in the absence of the Canadian albacore fleet in the U.S. Exclusive Economic Zone (EEZ). Benefits cited were the lack of crowding on the grounds, increased market opportunities, better access to port facilities with moorage and a per vessel increase in catch. However, as of November 2012, the HMSAS industry stakeholders had not been able to determine the overall attitude of the fleet since many were just winding down the albacore season.

After four months, much more information and reactions were gathered from the fleet, the Treaty Data and Economic Working Groups and other sources which led to a decision by the HMSAS that benefits to the U.S. fleet surpassed expectations in the absence of the Canadian fleet.

U.S. fishermen benefitted from better catches without crowding; ports and local businesses benefitted from the additional 4,000 tons of fish landed at U.S. ports by U.S. fishermen, and smaller coastal vessels benefited by having more opportunity to fish close to shore that were overcrowded until 2012 by the additional Canadian fleet fishing in the U.S. EEZ. Having the additional 4,000 tons of albacore landed in U.S. ports alone injected millions of dollars into local economies that in the past were taken out of the country and into Canadian ports.

The HMSAS discussed possible ramifications if the fishing shifted northward into the Canadian EEZ. Most of the harvesters felt that it would be an acceptable tradeoff of increased harvest in the U.S. EEZ compared to the loss of potential harvest from the Canadian EEZ. The HMSAS is concerned over Canada's implied threats of retaliation in other fisheries and disruptions of commerce.

Continued suspension could verify economic gains of 2012. A significant and growing portion of the fleet expressed that 2012 is representative of the future of the U.S. albacore fishery and have expressed support for complete termination of the treaty.

The HMSAS recommends continued suspension of the fishing regime in 2013.

HMSAS Minority Opinion

Minority opinion from Doug Ross of Jessie's Ilwaco Fish Company:

When the U.S.-Canada Albacore Treaty was created, the U.S. albacore fleet was the main beneficiary.

As happens in nature, the fishery has changed and the Canadian fleet became the main beneficiary of this treaty. Now, the U.S. albacore fishery, seeing no immediate benefit, wants to end the treaty.

I don't believe in burning bridges. I would rather see the treaty continue, with the terms negotiated to a more fair and equable benefit to both sides.

The albacore fishing has changed over the years (they are HMS). At one time there was a strong albacore fishery in Canada and in the Mid Pacific. I don't want to see the U.S. albacore fishery lose this opportunity for fishing in the future.

Council Recommendations for the Inter-American Tropical Tuna Commission (IATTC)

The IATTC meets the first week in June and this will be the last chance for the HMSAS to comment on the Canadian proposal that was submitted to the IATTC in September of 2012 to amend the 2005 albacore resolution concerning albacore effort control (attached).

The Canadian proposal to amend the existing resolution C-05-02 relating to limiting effort on North Pacific Albacore in the EPO, if accepted by the U.S., would have the U.S. reaffirm Canada's position that the U.S. albacore fleet cannot replace Canadian effort in the U.S. EEZ. It is a concern of the HMSAS that the U.S. has not refuted the Canadian position. If the U.S. agrees to the proposed amendment, the U.S. is basically saying we cannot replace Canadian effort or catch that occurred in the U.S. EEZ.

The HMSAS would like the State Department to reaffirm the long standing position of the U.S. that any historic Canadian catch or effort in the U.S. EEZ is credited to the U.S. fleet in any future international management regimes.

HMSAS Comments on Pacific Bluefin Tuna

The HMSAS has reviewed the December 2012 stock assessment by the International Scientific Committee (ISC) for Pacific Bluefin Tuna and the 2013 "Draft of the Conservation and Management Measure for Pacific Bluefin Tuna" of the Northern Committee (NC) and has the following comments.

Under the ISC 2012 Summary & NC draft proposal, Japanese vessels engaged in fisheries that target zero (0) age fish will voluntarily reduce their fishing effort and catch. The level of F is to be decreased below the 2002-2004 levels, particularly on juvenile age classes. The Japanese artisanal fishery includes catches of Pacific Bluefin in the Sea of Japan and off certain coastal areas of the Islands of Shikoku and Kyushu of the Japanese archipelago. At present this artisanal fishery is exempted from the measure to reduce fishing mortality of the stock.

Korean vessels are exempt from the requirement in the NC draft to reduce catches of juveniles below the 2002-2004 effort levels.

These exemptions will adversely impact the Pacific Bluefin spawning stock, and the effective conservation and management of the Pacific Bluefin resource throughout the North Pacific.

Therefore, HMSAS requests the PFMC to take the position that the 2013 "Draft" proposal be modified as it applies to the artisanal Pacific Bluefin fisheries of Japan and of the Korean fisheries so as to limit the targeting of Pacific Bluefin of age zero (0) and age one (1) years.

Precautionary Management Framework for North Pacific Albacore Tuna

The Situation Summary for Agenda Item I.3.b indicates that the Council tasked the HMSMT and HMSAS with identifying preferable international and domestic management measures that would be implemented in response to the decision rules proposed under the WCPFC Northern Committee (NC) precautionary management framework for North Pacific albacore.

At the moment, as we understand it, there was a proposal brought forth to the NC to adopt a precautionary based management plan. From the record it does not appear that the NC acted on this proposal. When reviewing the statements of the various NC countries, the statement of the NC did not indicate whether any future management measures will be based on catch limits (TACs), days at sea, number of vessels, or some other type of approach. It put forward a number of requests to the ISC relating to a final determination of biological reference points (BRPs) that are a key element of any management approach.[1]

[1] "1. For the purposes of determining potential limit reference points for a precautionary approach management framework for North Pacific albacore, Northern Committee (NC) requests advice from the ISC on the following:

[1]i) Is the stock-recruitment relationship known? and in particular a reliable estimate of the steepness parameter (h) for the stock?

[1]ii) Are the key biological (natural mortality, maturity) and fishery (selectivity) variables reasonably well estimated?

[1] 2. To determine the suitability of candidate reference points identified by the ALBWG in its 2011 stock assessment, NC8 further requests that the ISC provide advice with respect to the following:

[1]a) For each of the following levels of F, expected yields, with measures of variability of these expected yields, under high, low and historical average recruitment scenarios, over the course of 10 years projections (and, in addition, 25 year projections for $F_{SSB\text{-}ATHL}$), the probabilities of breaching (in at least 1 year of the projection period) the Interim Management Objective (average of the 10 historical lowest years of SSB) and each of the depletion levels $SB_{10\%}$, $SB_{20\%}$, $SB_{30\%}$ and $SB_{40\%}$;

[1]i) $F_{SSB\text{-}ATHL}$

[1]ii) F_{MAX}

[1]iii) $F_{0.1}$

[1]iv) F_{MED}

[1]v) $F_{10\%}$, $F_{20\%}$, $F_{30\%}$, $F_{40\%}$, $F_{50\%}$

[1]b) A determination of whether or not under different levels of fishing mortality (average $F_{2006\text{-}2008}$, average $F_{2002\text{-}2004}$) that the above candidate reference points will be exceeded.

These NC requests will be addressed in the coming year and used to formulate management approaches. However, it is unclear what if any management framework will emerge from the NC, nor the parent organization, the WCPFC. The WCPFC Science Committee held a workshop in Busan, Korea, in 2012 to discuss tuna management approaches. In this workshop alternative BRPs and management approaches were put forward for consideration for use by the WCPFC.

It must also be understood that IATTC, which is the governing organization for the eastern Pacific, appears to be advancing on a different management approach than WCPFC predicated on effort management, although the organization has not yet specified a desired management approach.

The HMSMT presents an outline of aspects of management that could be used, but moving beyond a rudimentary examination of options may be premature and deleterious to U.S. national interests given the uncertainty of what will emerge from the responsible RFMOs.

The supplemental HMSAS report of June 2012 (Agenda Item E.2.b) expressed concerns about the assignment including the risk that it could reveal U.S. strategy in future international negotiations. The HMSAS also cautioned against contemplating unilateral, domestic action until it is clear that all countries will abide by any requirements put in place including the adoptions of fair and equitable enforcement measures by all participating countries.

The HMSAS requests that the Council delay any further deliberations on management regimes for the U.S. albacore fishery given the high degree of uncertainty. We also fear that a suggested approach by the Council prior to full development of the RFMOs' proposals could be misconstrued as an official U.S. position.

The existing schedule of the NC calls for completion of a management position by 2015. The albacore stock assessment that will be complete in 2014 is intended to provide management advice on limit and target reference points. The International Scientific Committee has found albacore stocks to be stable and not subject to overfishing. This indicates that there is no emergency situation that requires an immediate management regime.

Another example of why the HMSAS suggests that the HMSMT defer further action on the domestic North Pacific albacore management plan is demonstrated by the Canadian September 14, 2012, letter to the IATTC (see attachment). By going to the attached resolution, and looking at the third paragraph of the preamble, it states:

> "Taking note that the IATTC staff has recommended that a working group be established to develop an operational definition of current effort, including a baseline reference period."*

[1] c) To provide the influence of the environmental variation such as regime shift and decadal change on F_{SPR} and empirical based reference points.

This Canadian letter request indicates that fishing effort has not been defined. This further exemplifies that the Council is asking the HMSMT to move ahead of the ISC if the Council goes forward with a domestic management regime proposal.

The U.S. albacore harvesters expressed concern about the growth of the international albacore fleets to the Council about 12 years ago, and they remain concerned. The HMSAS requests that the Council assist U.S. fishermen in working toward reducing access of new effort into the EPO by foreign fishing fleets. The U.S. albacore fishery is a small and stable part of the international fishery and wishes to continue in operation.

The HMSAS would like to point out one additional issue to the Council. The supplemental HMSMT report references Marine Stewardship Council (MSC) conditions for biological reference points and control rules. The HMSAS finds it inappropriate to reference MSC requirements. MSC has no standing in law and is not relevant to the U.S. management system. MSC is a business contractual relationship, and one of many. It may be likely that certified fisheries in time may adopt a different certification, or none at all. Should that be the case then the MSC standards are of little significance to management.

In summary, the HMSAS repeats its request that the Council defer any discussion of a domestic management regime at this time given all of the activities at the international level. We support the adoption of biologically relevant target BRPs and a management regime that is capable of enforcing the control rules. Albacore stocks are healthy according to the 2011 ISC stock assessment and effort is stable according to the HMSMT report delivered in Agenda Item J.3.b in April of 2007.

INTER-AMERICAN TROPICAL TUNA COMMISSION

La Jolla, California (USA)
25-29 June 2012

PROPOSAL IATTC-83 J-1 REVISED

SUBMITTED BY CANADA

RESOLUTION ON NORTH PACIFIC ALBACORE TUNA

The Inter-American Tropical Tuna Commission (IATTC or Commission), having responsibility for the scientific study of tunas and tuna-like species in the Convention Area~~fishes of the eastern Pacific Ocean~~, and for the formulation of recommendations to ~~the Contracting Parties, cooperating non-Parties, fishing entities and regional economic integration organizations~~its members and cooperating non-members (CPCs) with regard to the conservation and management of these resources;

Observing that the ~~best scientific evidence on~~2011 stock assessment of North Pacific albacore ~~tuna~~ from the International Scientific Committee for Tuna and Tuna-like Species in the North Pacific Ocean (ISC) indicates that the ~~species~~ stock is not being overfished nor is it in an overfished state;

~~either fully exploited, or may be experiencing fishing mortality above levels that are sustainable in the long term, and~~

Taking note that the IATTC staff has recommended that a working group be established to develop an operational definition of current effort, including a baseline reference period; ~~be developed;~~

~~said that the stock assessment for Northern Pacific albacore tuna suggests a need for management measures to avoid increases in fishing mortality, and~~ Recognizing the importance of working with the Commission for the Conservation and Management of Highly Migratory Fish Stocks in the Western and Central Pacific Ocean (WCPFC), as provided for in Article XXIV of the Antigua Convention, in order to manage and conserve North Pacific albacore ~~tuna~~ throughout its migratory range;

~~, and~~ Recalling further Article 22(4) of the WCPFC Convention that provides for cooperation with the IATTC regarding fish stocks that occur in the convention areas of both organizations;

Recognizing Article IV of the Antigua Convention calling upon members of the Commission to apply the precautionary approach, as described in the relevant provisions of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Code of Conduct, as well as the 1995 United Nations Fish Stocks Agreement, for the conservation, management and sustainable use of fish stocks covered by the Convention; and,

Considering the ongoing work within the ~~Northern Committee of the~~ WCPFC towards the development of a precautionary approach framework for North Pacific albacore, which ~~will~~should include target and limit reference points, ~~as well as pre-agreed decision rules~~ should those reference points be breached;

The IATTC therefore resolves that:

1. The total level of fishing effort ~~for~~ for on North Pacific albacore tuna in the Eastern Pacific Ocean not be increased beyond current levels.

2. The CPCs shall take necessary measures to ensure that the level of fishing effort by their vessels ~~fishing for catching~~ fishing for North Pacific albacore tuna is not increased;

3. All CPCs shall report to the Director all catches of North Pacific albacore in the Convention Area every six months. All CPCs shall further report to the Director all effort for fishing vessels targeting North Pacific albacore in the Convention Area. ~~to the Director all catches and effort for fisheries catching North Pacific albacore in the Convention Area regardless of target species.~~ Catches and effort shall be reported by gear type. Catches shall be reported in terms of weight. These reports shall be submitted to the Director by July 31st, and January 31st of each year, and shall cover fishing activity in the previous year. ~~Fishing effort shall be reported in terms of the most relevant measures for a given gear type, including at a minimum for all gear types, the number of vessel days fished. These reports shall be submitted to the Director by May 1st and December 1st of each year.~~

~~1.~~4. All CPCs shall report to the Director by January 31st, 2012, a list of their specific fisheries or fleets that they have determined to be fishing North Pacific albacore in the Convention Area, and a description of how they are implementing the limit on effort described in paragraph 2 along with any corresponding monitoring mechanisms, that they have established.

~~2. All CPCs shall report all catches of North Pacific albacore tuna by gear type to the IATTC every six months.~~

5. 54. The Director shall, in coordination with the IATTC scientific staff and the IATTC Scientific Advisory Committee, as well as the ISC and other scientific bodies conducting scientific reviews of this stock, ~~scientific staff and the IATTC Scientific Advisory Committee,~~ monitor the status of North Pacific albacore ~~tuna~~ and report to the Commission on the status of the stock at each annual meeting.

6. ~~;~~6. The ~~Scientific Advisory Committee~~Director shall, in coordination with the IATTC scientific staff and the IATTC Scientific Advisory Committee, ~~shall~~ review work undertaken within the WCPFC towards the development of a precautionary approach framework for North Pacific albacore that includes target and limit reference points ~~and pre-agreed decision rules~~, and make recommendations in respect of such a framework for consideration by the Commission.

7. 75. The CPCs shall consider future actions with respect to North Pacific albacore ~~tuna~~ as may be warranted based on the outputs from paragraphs 5 and 6~~the results of such future analysis~~.

8. 8. The Commission shall continue efforts to promote compatibility between the conservation and management measures adopted by the IATTC and the WCPFC in their goals and effectiveness with respect to North Pacific albacore.

~~4.~~

~~5. 6. The CPCs call upon the members of the WCPFC to consider, at the earliest opportunity, taking such action as may be necessary to ensure the effective conservation and management of North Pacific albacore tuna throughout its range including, in particular, measures to ensure that fishing effort on the stock in the WCPFC area does not increase and, as necessary, measures to reduce fishing effort to levels commensurate with the long-term sustainability of the resource.~~

~~6. 7. The Commission through the Director shall communicate with the WCPFC and request them to take similar measures.~~

~~7.~~

9. 89. The provisions of paragraph 2 shall not prejudice the rights and obligations under international law of those coastal CPCs in the Convention Area whose current fishing activity for North Pacific albacore is limited, but they have a real interest in fishing for the species, and that may wish to develop their own fisheries for North Pacific albacore in the future. ~~The provisions of paragraph 2 shall not prejudice the rights and obligations under international law of those coastal CPCs in the EPO Convention Area whose current fishing activity for nNorthern Pacific albacore tuna is limited, but that~~

~~have a real interest in, and history of, fishing for the species, that may wish to develop their own fisheries for Nnorthern Pacific albacore tuna in the future.~~

10. 10. The Commission, through the Director, shall communicate this Resolution to the WCPFC Secretariat.

11. 11. This Resolution replaces Resolution C-05-02.

HIGHLY MIGRATORY SPECIES MANAGEMENT TEAM REPORT ON DEVELOPMENT OF THE PRECAUTIONARY FRAMEWORK FOR NORTH PACIFIC ALBACORE

As noted in the Situation Summary, the Council tasked the HMSMT and HMSAS with identifying preferable domestic management measures that would be implemented in response to the decision rules proposed under the WCPFC Northern Committee (NC) precautionary management framework for North Pacific albacore. The HMSMT and HMSAS met in June 2012 on this topic. The HMSMT presented a proposed template of options and recommended that its future development include the broadest possible range of potential management alternatives. A summary of the June presentation to the HMSAS is attached. The HMSAS expressed concerns about the assignment including the risk that it could reveal U.S. strategy in future international negotiations. The HMSAS also cautioned against contemplating unilateral, domestic action until it is clear that all countries will abide by any requirements put in place including the adoptions of fair and equitable enforcement measures by all participating countries. (See Agenda Item E.2.b, Supplemental HMSAS Report, June 2012.)

The HMSMT also notes that the Marine Stewardship Council's public certification report for the American Albacore Fishing Association North Pacific Albacore Pole & Line and Troll/Jig Fishery (Intertek Moody Marine, December 24, 2012) specifies conditions that must be met in four years: 1) appropriate limit and target reference points are set and 2) well-defined harvest control rules are in place to ensure that the exploitation rate is reduced as limit reference points are approached. Specifically:

1. The limit reference point is set above the level at which there is an appreciable risk of impairing reproductive capacity, and the target reference point is such that the stock is maintained at a level consistent with B_{MSY} or some measure or surrogate with similar intent or outcome.
2. Well-defined harvest control rules are in place that are consistent with the harvest strategy and ensure that the exploitation rate is reduced as limit reference points are approached, the selection of the harvest control rules takes into account the main uncertainties, and available evidence indicates that the tools in use are appropriate and effective in achieving the exploitation levels required under the harvest control rules.

The HMSMT is prepared to continue work along the lines of the previously developed template but seeks guidance from the Council on what information would be most useful. According to the NC work plan, the precautionary management framework will be completed in 2014. At this time there is no new information on how it intends to implement decision rules under their precautionary management framework. The HMSMT seeks guidance from the Council on completing this task.

Template for Considering Domestic Management Options for North Pacific Albacore

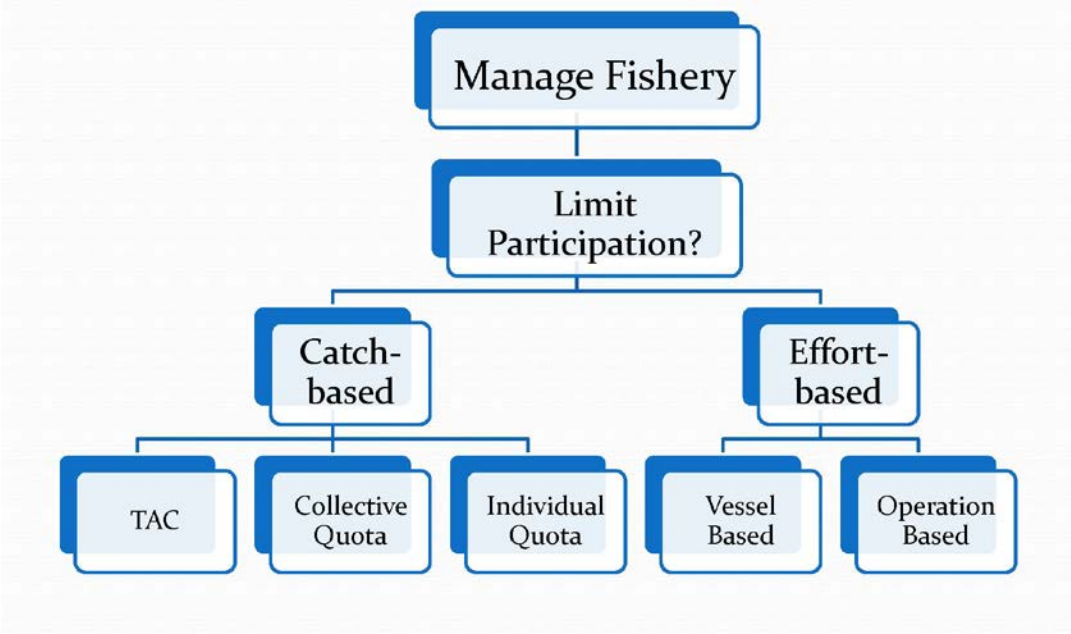

Management Framework

- Build on the principles of the precautionary approach based management framework for North Pacific albacore, including agreed upon biological limit and target reference points and decision rules should those reference points be exceeded
- Organize domestic management alternatives into a decision document template which would be available to meet a future need to manage the U.S. fishery

Developing a template

- Consider pros and cons of alternative management approaches before a crisis requires a quick decision
- Identify supporting data for various approaches
- Use a decision tree to describe alternatives
- Encompass a sufficiently broad range of management options to offer flexibility at time of decision, without locking in a negotiating position
- Pare infeasible alternatives from consideration (e.g. targeting albacore by sex)

Management decision tree

Limit participation, catch or effort?

- Participation limit: "Who gets to fish?"
- Catch limit: "How much catch is allowed, and who has permission to catch it?"
- Effort limit: "How much effort is allowed, and how is it restricted?"

Participation Limits

- Limit number of permits or vessels?
- Exclusion criteria
  - Catch history

  - Participation history
  - Gear type
  - Bycatch concerns

Catch-based Measures

- Fishery-wide quota (international or domestic TAC)
- Collective quota (domestic)
- Individual quota (domestic)
- Biologically-based limit (age, size, or other discernible feature)

Effort-based Measures

- Vessel-based
  - Limit entry
  - Limit capacity
  - Restrict gear
  - Limit days
- Operational (Time-and-area closures)
- Biological-based (spawning areas, stock distribution by size or age, etc)
- Operationally based (distance from shore, gear selectivity, etc)

Participation Limit Pros and Cons

- May arbitrarily exclude productive participants in the fishery (e.g., basing participation on catch history could penalize new entrants with high future potential)
- Creates winners and losers based on participation rules
- Constrains adaptability of fishery to changing conditions which favor different forms of participation

Catch-based Measure Pros and Cons

- Without adequate monitoring, catch-based measures may result in high grading, with fishing mortality that greatly exceeds landings
- Restricting catch to larger, older fish would penalize U.S. fleet
- Insufficiently fine allocation of allowable catch across participants may result in a race to fish, suboptimal price and quality, and an early-season product glut
- May be easier to monitor and enforce compared to effort based measures

Effort-based Measure Pros and Cons

- Capacity, gear or day restrictions reduce profitability
- Time-and-area restrictions may inadvertently eliminate best fishing opportunities
- Monitoring and enforcement is problematic
- Limiting fishing power reduces fleet's ability to fully exploit favorable conditions
- Effort limits can lead to capital stuffing, if fishers are able to adopt technical changes to increase fishing power which are not limited by gear standards

Domestic Allocation

- If there is a U.S. TAC and no allocation (allocate to whole fishery) then the resulting open access fishery could cause a "race for fish"
- To avoid a race for fish the TAC would have to be allocated to individual participants or subgroups of participants in the fishery
- Allocate by state, subregion, cooperative, fishery, time, individual, or other level?

- Base allocation on history of participation, auction, or other approach?
- How will Canadian catch in the U.S. EEZ portion of the fishery be considered?

Agenda Item I.3.b
Supplemental HMSMT Report 2
March 2013

HIGHLY MIGRATORY SPECIES MANAGEMENT TEAM REPORT ON RECOMMENDATIONS FOR INTERNATIONAL MANAGEMENT ACTIVITIES

US – Canada Albacore Treaty

Considering the need to comply with the Inter-American Tropical Tuna Commission (IATTC) and Western and Central Pacific Fisheries Commission (WCPFC) conservation measures for north Pacific albacore, accurate catch data must be provided by albacore fishing nations as prescribed in the conservation measures. There is uncertainty regarding the accounting of catch prior to 1995 in US and Canada waters by each respective nation's fleet. As in November 2012 (Agenda Item J.1.b, Supplemental Highly Migratory Species Management Team [HMSMT] Report), the HMSMT recommends that the Council request that the US Delegation to the Treaty negotiations seek clarification on how catch is accounted for and will be attributed by nation in reporting to the IATTC and WCPFC.

Pacific Bluefin

The HMSMT recognizes that the work of the International Scientific Committee for Tuna and Tuna-like Species in the North Pacific Ocean (ISC) is critical to inform the Council on the status of north Pacific HMS stocks. ISC input to the Council is also important for domestic management and for advising the US delegations to the IATTC and WCPFC regarding international management of the HMS stocks of relevance to the Council. The HMSMT recommends that the Council express support for the work of the ISC.

The HMSMT received a summary of the Pacific bluefin tuna stock assessment recently completed by the ISC Bluefin Working Group. The results show that the biomass is near historically low levels. Although the international RFMOs have not agreed upon specific reference points for bluefin tuna, the ISC believes that the stock is experiencing overfishing and is overfished based on all commonly used reference points for tuna stocks. Projections show that if fishing mortality is not reduced, the stock condition is unlikely to improve. Both the IATTC and WCPFC have current conservation measures to limit fishing effort and restrict catch. Based on projections, reducing effort to 2002-2004 levels, limiting the catch of age 0-3 bluefin to 2002-2004 levels, and limiting EPO commercial catch as specified in the conservation measures should allow the stock to rebuild over a 35-year period.

The HMSMT recommends the Council:

1) monitor the catch of US commercial fisheries that catch bluefin in order to ensure that the 500 mt commercial catch limit for the US in the EPO is not exceeded;

2) advise the US delegations to the IATTC and WCPFC to push for all nations to comply with the conservation measures in place throughout the range of Pacific bluefin tuna; and
3) advocate the WCPFC provisions in place for "artisanal" and Korean fisheries be replaced with stronger data reporting requirements and limits in effort and catch.

North Pacific Albacore Management Framework

The HMSMT has held several meetings and submitted reports regarding development of a management framework for north Pacific albacore in support of international and domestic management of north Pacific albacore. Efforts to develop a domestic management framework are outlined in the HMSMT's supplemental report for this agenda item. The Council has the opportunity to provide input to the Northern Committee (NC) in advance of their September 2013 meeting when they plan to discuss reference points and harvest control rules. With Council guidance, the HMSMT could update our prior work in advance of the June 2013 Council meeting to provide the Council with information to make recommendations to the US delegation to the NC9. At this time the HMSMT is not aware of IATTC plans for considering albacore management at their June 2013 Commission meeting. If the IATTC agenda does include albacore management, the Council may wish to review prior HMSMT recommendations in the following reports:

- June 2012 HMSMT Report Agenda Item E.2.b
- June 2012 Supplemental HMSMT Report 2 Agenda Item E.2.b
- November 2012 Supplemental HMSMT Report Agenda Item J.1.b.

Report on Activities of the Data Working Group and Economic Working Group

In late 2011, a Data Working Group and an Economic Working Group were established to address data and economic concerns related to the Canada-U.S. Albacore Treaty negotiations. The Data Working Group developed a data exchange template to facilitate sharing of data on U.S. and Canadian albacore vessel catch, effort and landings to the U.S. and Canada. A populated version of the data exchange template was finalized in January. Data Working Group Chair Steve Teo reported on Data Working Group activities at the January 2013 HMSMT Meeting.

The Economic Working Group began work in fall 2012 to produce a profile report on the albacore fishery as it operated in the U.S. and Canada under the Treaty's reciprocal fishing regime, which was completed in early February 2013. The profile report includes figures, tables and discussion of catch, landings and effort data from the data exchange template along with albacore trade data for Canada and the U.S. The report was provided as input to the February Treaty negotiation meeting. Data Working Group Chair Steve Teo and Economic Working Group Chair Stephen Stohs provided briefings on the activities of the two working groups for the February negotiation meeting.

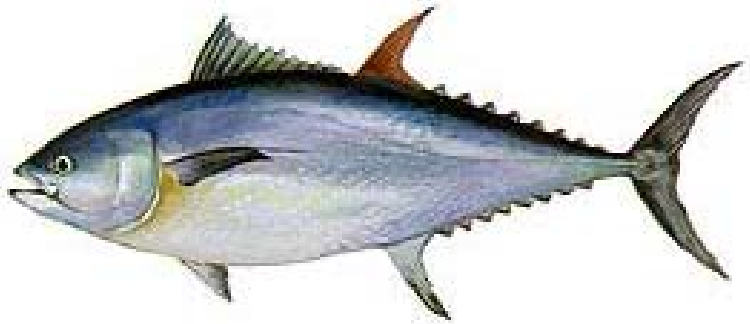

Activities of the ISC and Summary of the Pacific Bluefin Tuna Stock Assessment

- Albacore WG meeting March 19-26, Shanghai China: information gathering for 2014 north Pacific albacore assessment
- Shark WG meeting April 16-24, Shimizu Japan: north Pacific blue shark stock assessment
- WG and Plenary meetings July 6-22, Busan Korea: conservation advice provided for blue marlin and blue shark based on assessments; research and assessment priorities reviewed for 2014 and beyond

Pacific Bluefin Tuna Assessment

- Prior to the ISC 12 Intercessional Plenary Session, the last full Pacific bluefin assessment was conducted in 2009 followed by an update in 2010.
- ISC expressed concern for the stock as $F_{(2002\text{-}2004)}$ was found to be high with respect to most commonly used BRPs. In particular, Fs on juvenile fish were considered too high.
- New assessment was conducted in November 2012 in Honolulu, HI.
- Assessment will undergo independent CIE review.

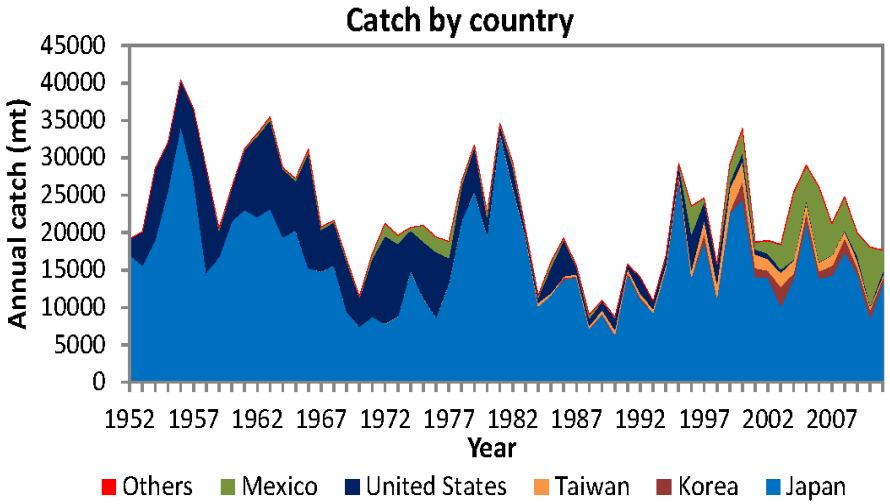

Methodology

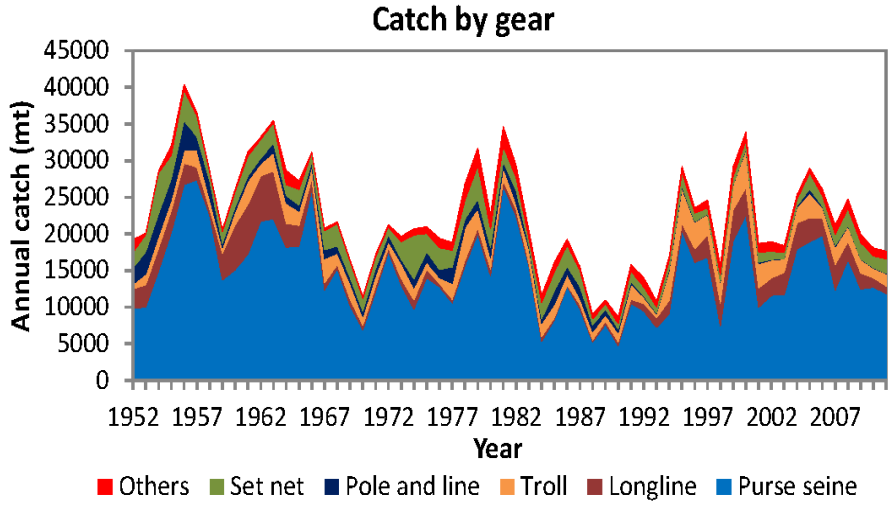

- Stock Synthesis v3.23b
- Seasonal, length-based, age-structured, forward-simulation model
- Projections used to estimate trends in future SSB relative to several reference points assuming 4 different catch and F scenarios

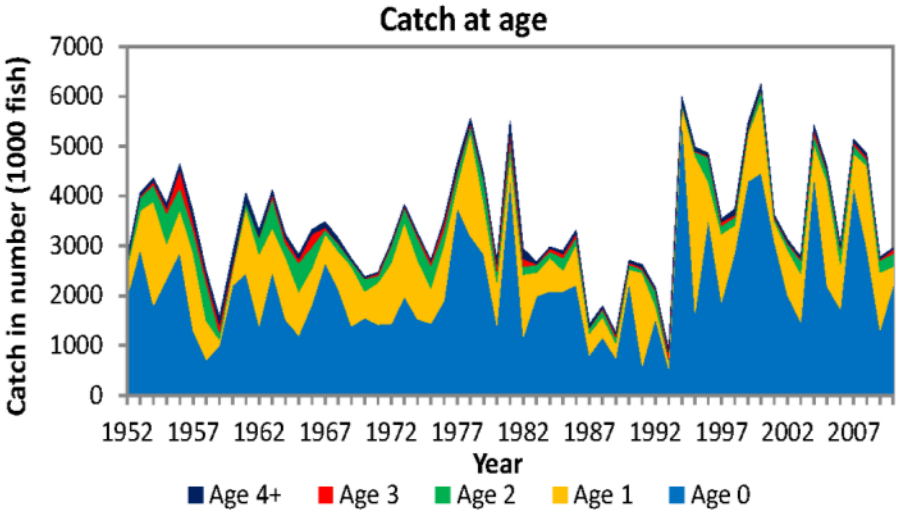

Input Data

- 14 fisheries defined by gear, location, season, and/or size composition of the catch: 2 EPO (Mex, US), 10 Japan, 1 Taiwan, 1 WPO other (Jpn, Kor ps)
- Quarterly Catch for each fishery (1952-2010)
- Quarterly length compositions (14, 11 fit)
- CPUE indices (5)
- Conditional age-length data from otoliths fit outside the model (Shimose and Takeuchi 2012)

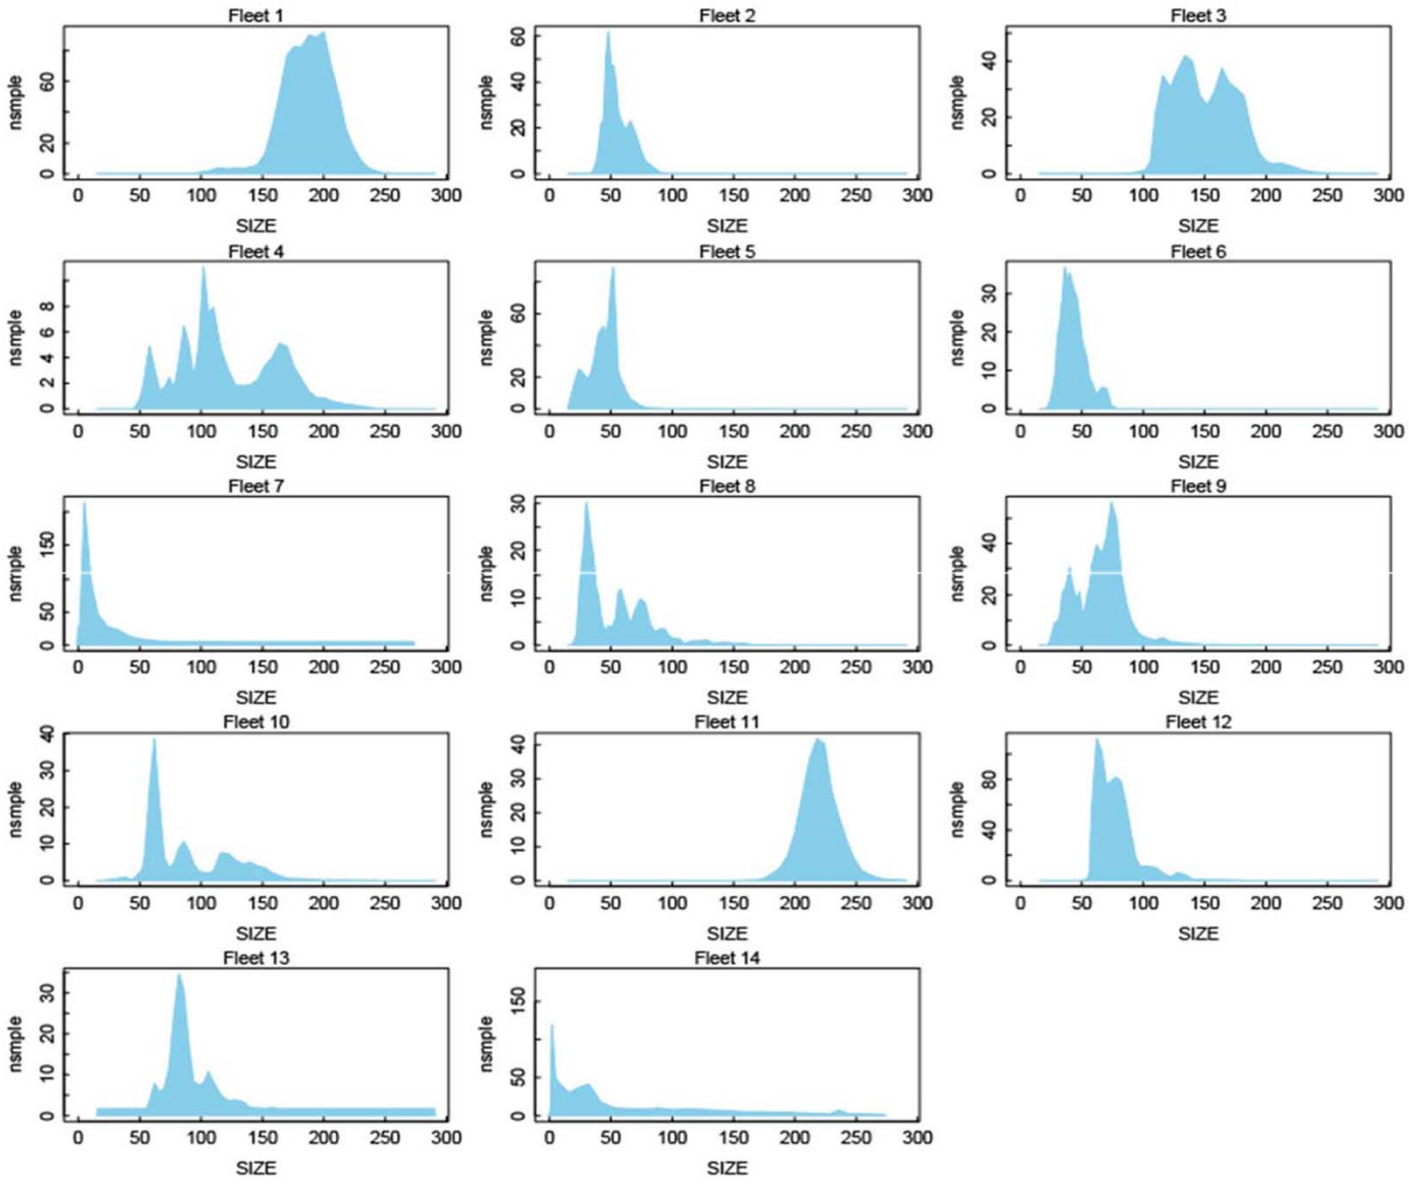

Catch History

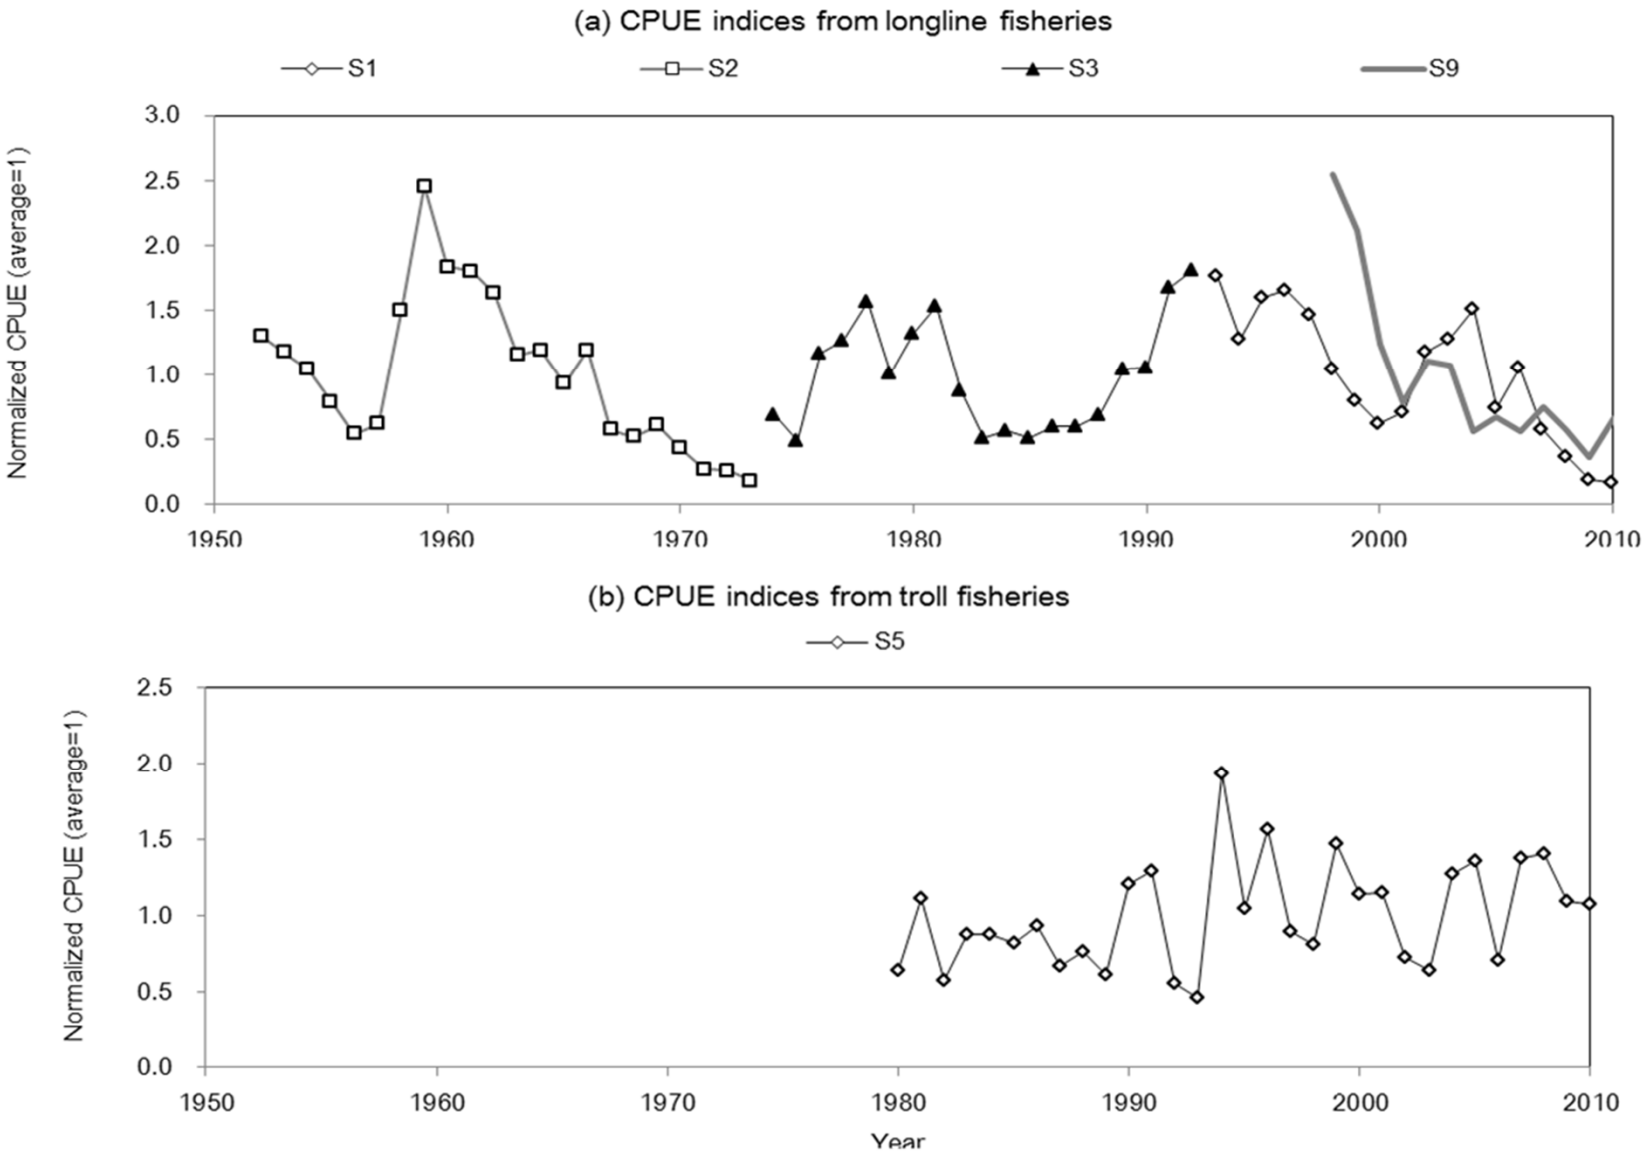

Length Compositions

Abundance Indices

Base Case Model Assumptions

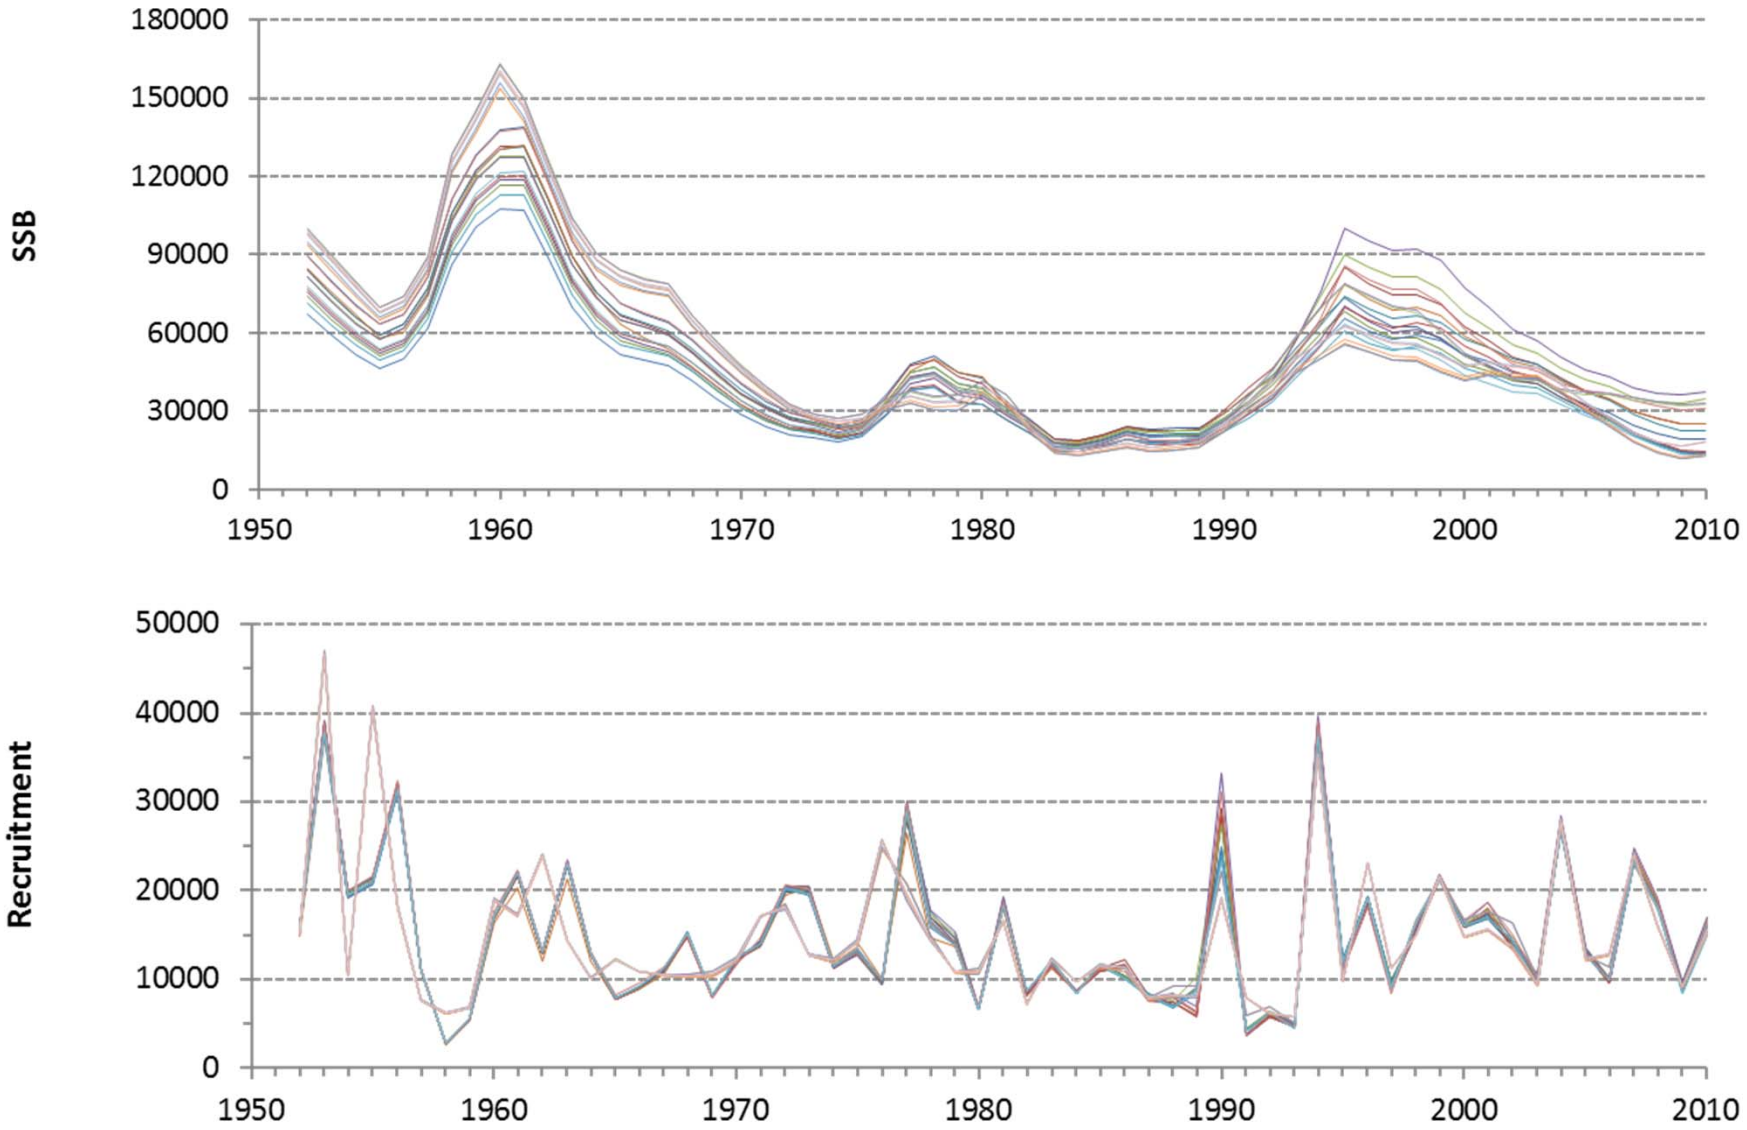

Many sensitivity runs conducted to explore alternative assumptions

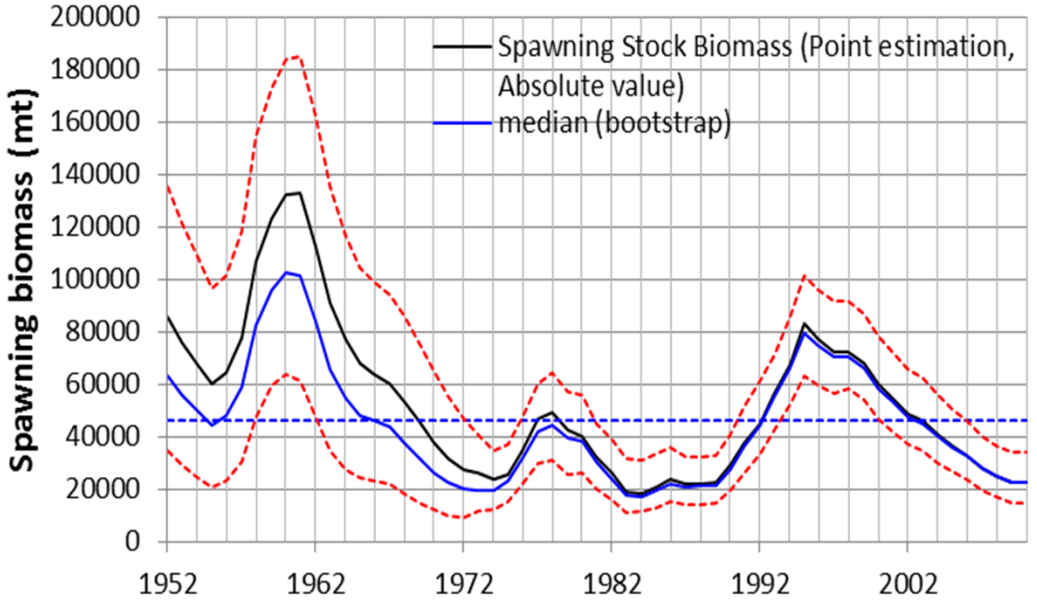

- Basic
  - Data from 1952 – 2010
  - Single stock, well mixed
  - Sexes combined
  - Movement not explicitly modeled
- Stock-recruitment
  - Beverton and Holt model
  - Steepness (h) = 0.999
- Biological
  - Spawning at beginning of April
  - Recruitment in July-Sept
  - M= 1.6, 0.386, 0.25 $year^{-1}$ for ages 0, 1, 2+
  - Maturity (Tanaka 2006):
    0.2, 0.5 and 1 at ages 3, 4 and 5+
  - 20 years is maximum age
  - Sex combined L-W relationship (Kai 2007)

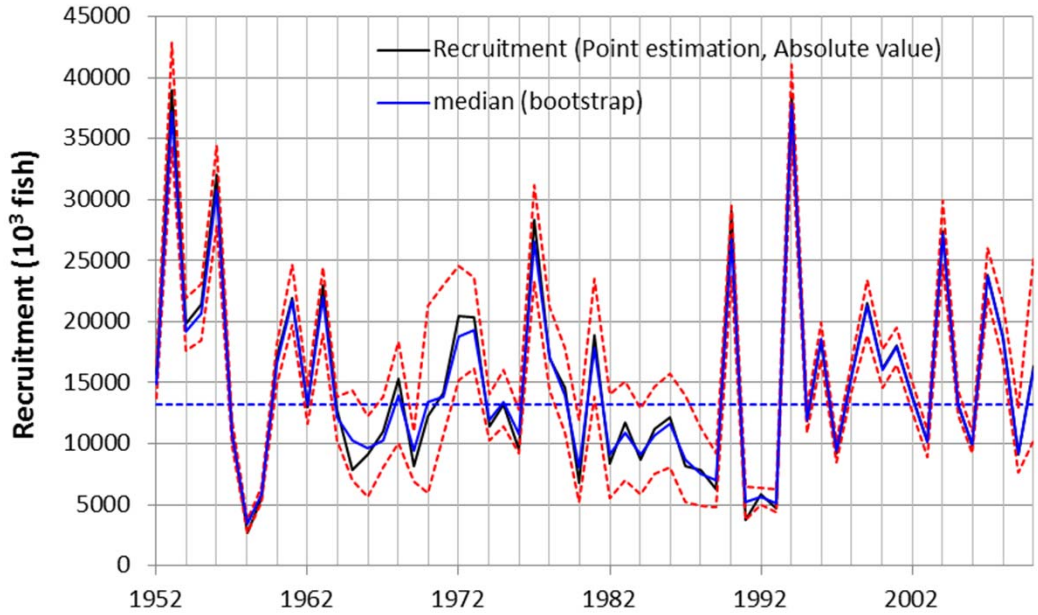

Model Results

- Model Fit Diagnostics
  - CPUE
  - Length composition data
  - Likelihoods
- Model Parameter Estimates
  - Estimated selectivity patterns
- Stock Assessment Results
  - Biomass
  - Recruitment
  - F-at-age

20 model configurations showed consistent results

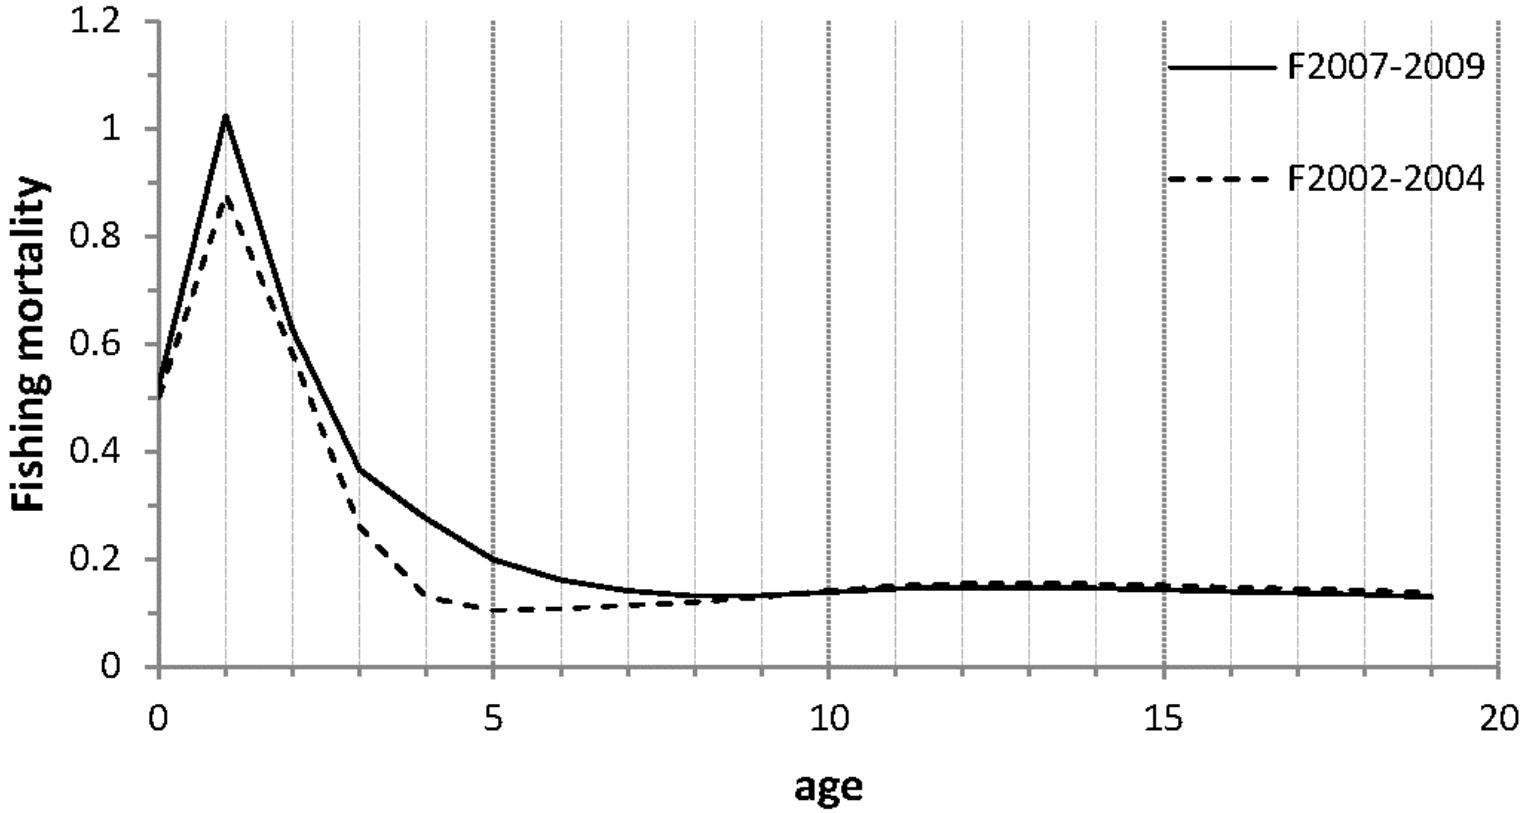

Estimated SSB and Recruitment, Run 2

2010 SSB ~ 22,606 t
Median SSB ~ 46,122 t

2006-2010 avg R ~ 15.6 M fish
Median R ~ 13.2 M fish

Fishing Mortality

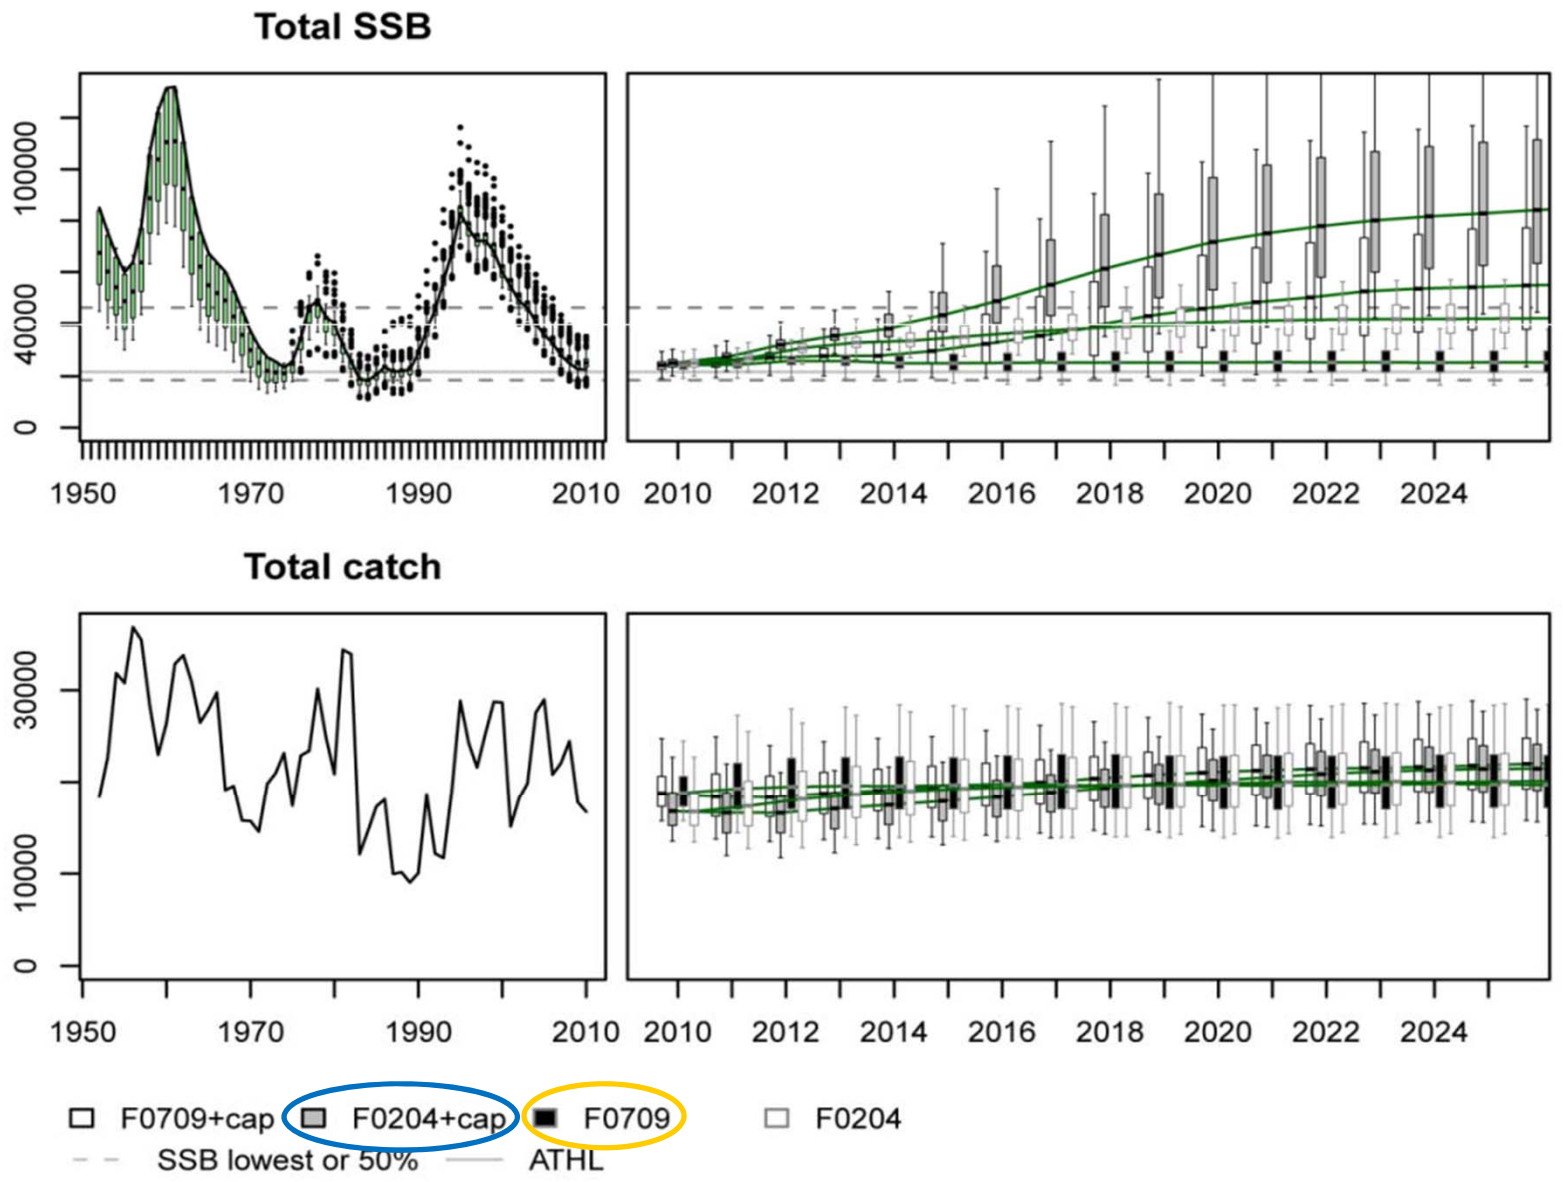

Estimated age-specific fishing mortalities in the recent period relative to 2002-2004 show 4 – 41% increases

Ratios of commonly used F reference points to current (2007-2009) and 2002-2004 F. Values below 1.0 indicate that F exceeds the reference point.

	F_{max}	$F_{0.1}$	F_{med}	F_{loss}	$F_{10\%}$	$F_{20\%}$	$F_{30\%}$	$F_{40\%}$
F_{0204}	0.57	0.40	0.91	1.19	0.85	0.58	0.43	0.33
F_{0709}	0.48	0.34	0.73	0.95	0.68	0.47	0.35	0.26

Future Projections

General Assessment Considerations

- Like any assessment, there is uncertainty in the estimates of biomass (total and SSB) and fishing mortality
- Trends in SSB & recruitment were robust to the different plausible assumptions tested by the WG
- Results are highly robust that fishing mortality has increased ($F_{2007\text{-}2009}$ is greater than $F_{2002\text{-}2004}$)

Stock Status Conclusions

- The current (2010) PBF biomass level is near historically low biomass levels and experiencing high exploitation levels above all potential biological reference points.
- Continuing status quo (2007-2009) fishing levels is unlikely to improve the stock condition.
- Based on the projection analyses, the recently implemented WCPFC and IATTC conservation and management measures, if properly implemented and enforced, are expected to contribute to the recovery of the stock.
- There is no evidence of reduced recruitment; however, if future recruitment declines, then further reductions in F may be needed.

Dear Mr. Hogan,

I am writing a personal letter in reference to the Canadian Albacore Treaty to give you a single fisherman's prospective. I have fished albacore since the 1980's and have watched the Treaty evolve from 1981. I am on the AAFA Board of Directors and have been involved in Treaty negotiations as long as you have.

In the beginning there was but a very small Canadian fleet of small salmon boats that would come to fish in our waters. As the Canadians made their salmon fisheries more restrictive, the Canadian fleet in our waters grew year by year until sometime in the mid or late 1990's there were, I estimate a fleet of 300 or 400 small boats fishing albacore in our waters. It was most disruptive to say the least. The Treaty has been amended twice to keep the problem of the Canadians disrupting the U.S. Albacore fleet. The amendments haven't worked to keep them in check. Many boats in the U.S. Albacore fleet have no other fishery to move into and are fully dependent on making a living during the time the albacore are in our waters; I am one of those vessels. The Canadian fleet overcrowds the few areas the fish congregate in.

The 2012 season showed the fleet just how much of a hindrance the Canadian fleet has been. The U.S. captains are unanimous in saying the fishing grounds were much more peaceful and production was up for individual vessels without the Canadian fleet.

When the fishing regime was only suspended for 2012, the Canadians slammed the door on port access for albacore boats, threw several boats out of port, and even seized a load of fish off another. The U. S. gave full port access to Canadian boats as they always had. Does this sound like they are trying to stay flexible and trying to work things out?

I must tell you the most troubling point that has come to light. The State Dept. has told us we must agree to a fishing regime because of "much broader fisheries issues". The State Dept. will not explain what those issues are; we might have a bit more open ear if they would be honest with the main stakeholders; the fishermen. We are trying to preserve the last open access fishery on the West Coast. The Albacore Treaty is a standalone issue. Fraser River Salmon has been the only issue mentioned. There is no interaction between albacore and salmon fisheries; why is Fraser River Salmon even being mentioned?

The Canadian government is protecting and fighting for their fishermen. Why aren't we getting the same treatment from our government? The way most of the fishermen see it, our government is working to help the Canadian fishermen, rather than protect the U.S. fishermen's interests. Mr. Hogan, I have no doubt you are getting a lot of pressure from higher ups to force us to agree to let the Canadians fish in our waters. I am more than sure you understand our concerns. The government is playing politics with our livelihoods. I personally think the way the government is representing the U.S albacore fleet in the Treaty negotiations is disgraceful.

This whole process has been so troubling to me I had to contact you with my thoughts. This letter to you is only my personal opinion and in no way represents the view of AAFA or any other association.

Respectfully,

Steve Rittenberg

Dear Mr. Hogan,

We appreciate the opportunity to voice our concern about the US-Canada Albacore Treaty. In the past two years, McAdam's Fish LLC has purchased eight Albacore fishing boats. Two of the boats, the Tommy John and the Charlotte M, were already participating in the fishery. The additional six boats were based in the Gulf of Mexico as Shrimpers, or out of commission. One of our biggest concerns as we expand the fleet is our competition within US waters. In 2011, our Captains complained to us numerous times about the disruptive fishing techniques employed by the Canadian fleet. Personally, I am still shocked that I face competition by foreign vessels within US waters.

McAdam's Fish LLC is making a substantial investment in this fishery. The investment includes the hiring of over forty US tax paying workers. If the US-Canada Treaty is dissolved, we will feel more comfortable continuing to expand our fleet. There are very few fisheries left in the US that have the ability to expand and prosper like the Pole and Line Albacore Fishery. US boat owners should have unhindered access to take advantage of that opportunity, instead of having to compete with extremely aggressive Canadian vessels.

Please let me know if you have any questions, or if I can help in any way.

Best regards,

Rob McAdam

Re: U.S. Canada Albacore Treaty

Dear Mr. Hogan,

The members of the Westport Charterboat Association are engaged in recreational fishing for Albacore off the Washington coast. This fishery is a major part of our livelihoods. In recent years, interactions between our fleet and Canadian vessels fishing in our EEZ have increased. At times we have been forced to leave an area by those interactions.

We fully support the position taken on the Albacore Treaty by U. S. fishermen, particularly the American Albacore Fishing Association (AAFA) and the Western Fishboat Owners Association (WFOA). The Treaty allows for far more benefit to Canadian fishermen than U.S. fishermen and, in our view, subverts the intent of the Magnuson Act.

We urge you to continue the curtailment of the fishing regime as was done in 2012.

Respectfully yours,

Mark Cedergreen

Dear Dr. Jones:

Englund Marine Supply has been supplying commercial fisherman since 1944. We stock marine parts and fishing gear catered to most West Coast fisheries including the jig and pole albacore fleet.

The recent dispute over the U.S./Canada Albacore Treaty has put us in a difficult situation since we have customers on both sides of the issue. Typically, we stay out of conflict between fishermen, but find ourselves in a position to weigh-in on this particular conflict.

Although we appreciate the additional business the Canadian fleet brings during the season we must support our U.S. fleet. When fishing associations such as WFOA, AAFA, and Washington Trollers Association all adamantly support suspending the fishing regime for 2013 we must listen. The individual fisherman and vessels that comprise these associations represent an extremely large group of customers that are critical to the success of our company. These U.S. fishermen contribute to the economy on a year-round basis.

We ask that you please support U.S. fishermen with regards to the 2013 fishing regime.

Sincerely,

K Englund

Kurt Englund, President

Dear Mr. Hogan,

I am a 3rd generation Albacore fisherman. Both sides have been fishing Albacore and salmon since the 30's. I myself started in 1973, when I was 7 years old. The CAN average annual catch of Pacific Albacore from 1975-1993 was 187 tons per year. Going further back in history from 1952-1967 the CAN average catch was even less at 39 tons per year. The CAN Albacore fleet was next to non-existent. Prior to 1993 when there was some commercial quantities of Albacore there was some value to US boats to have access to CAN. This access had zero impact on the CAN Albacore fleet as it was non-existent. Likewise CAN vessels had no negative impact on US vessels. The Treaty worked! The Canadians didn't care about Albacore as they had a robust Salmon industry. In the mid 90's things started to change rapidly. Due to over harvesting in the 80's, buying out Salmon permits, re-allocating their salmon to their First-nations people and Sport fishing. The Canadian Commercial salmon seasons were receiving drastic cutbacks. The Canadians needed to find other fishing opportunities and found that in fishing Albacore, mostly in the US EEZ. Ironically, some of the Canadians that have sold their salmon permits in the buyback, can fish in the US EEZ, but not in their CAN EEZ. At least some of their salmon buyback programs was partially funded by US taxpayers. We bought their salmon permits so they can catch our Albacore, and not their Albacore? Really? Yup, we did! Now. From 2005-2010 The average CAN Albacore catch is 5800 tons which over 4000 tons comes out of the US EEZ. A % 3100 increase. That's 31 times! This is a huge negative impact on US Albacore Harvesting sector. For the last 10 years there has been 4000 tons a year of Albacore removed from US waters by CAN harvesters. That 4000 tons not available to US Albacore fishermen, 4000 tons not available to US processors and 4000 tons worth of economic value not contributing to the US economy. The now huge CAN albacore fleet renders any US access into CAN waters worthless due to competition on the grounds by their fleet. This is seen in the latest study that showed since 2000 the ratio of CAN effort as measured in fishing days, in US EEZ to US effort in CAN EEZ at 40-1. For 1 day a US vessel fished in CAN, a CAN vessel fished 40 days in the US. 2012 was the 1st year in many years US fishermen, including myself was able to fish without the negative impact of the CAN Albacore fleet. As I predicted, most US Fishermen believe that our production was 20-30 percent greater based on the amount of fish seen and available. I myself estimate I caught 30+ percent more without the CAN boats. That is a 30% increase in revenue for the US. economy. 30% more Albacore landed in the US, available for US processing. Canada has denied CAN port access to US albacore boats, threatened peaceful passage of Alaska fishing vessels through the inside passage to Alaska. They seized a US albacore vessels load of Albacore being offload to a CAN buyer. That fish likely would have been processed and re-exported back into the US. In previous agreements with Canada had started a King Salmon fishery in the Stikine and Taku rivers that was not viable. This also threatened those salmon runs and eliminated A US fishery on those stocks that was viable. This fall the US Coast Guard gave permission for a CAN albacore vessel to travel through the US EEZ with Albacore aboard. The US continued to allow access of CAN vessels into US ports. The US has been a good neighbor. CAN has not. Canada has in the past and present, exercised malicious economic and environmental terrorism at no financial gain other than leverage to blackmail the US out of valuable resources. They destroyed their commercial salmon fishery. In return the US funds their Salmon buyout, and gives them $30+million in foreign aid via the US Albacore fishery. US albacore fishermen are solely paying for that foreign aid! If the US Government believes that CAN albacore industry is entitled to US aid. They can pay for it. Not US albacore harvesters and the US business we support. For 15 years prior to 2012, the treaty has resulted in the outsourcing over $30 million worth of economic activity for the US. Considering the retail value ,potently could be closer to $60-80 million. For over 10 years this treaty has resulted to a foreign fleet removing product from the US EEZ to the detriment of US fishermen, processors and coastal communities. This has violated the spirit of the 200 mi EEZ. which is to protect American fishermen and processors from competition from foreign fleets inside the US EEZ.. We just had an election where President Obama rightfully criticized his opponent for outsourcing jobs. Now his State department is going to outsource US fishing and processing jobs to CANADA. Over the unanimous objections of the US Albacore industry. To the detriment of the US economy. This is very wrong!!!
Mr Hogan, as my representative. I cannot Authorized you to enter the US into any Albacore fishing agreement with Canada under the Treaty of any kind.

Sincerely Rodney McVicker F/V Sundancer

Dear Mr. Hogan,

The purpose of my letter is to address the indirect effects of the Canadian albacore treaty on two aspects of our summer and winter business. From early July until November, Cloudburst Fishing Co. Inc. supplies live bait (anchovies) to the U.S. albacore fleet operating on the Northern California West Coast. In recent years we have listened to a steady increase in complaints concerning the Canadian fleet crowding U.S. boats out of productive fishing areas. Some fishermen we supply bait to, vacate our local grounds when competition becomes too extreme. That customer base becomes unavailable to us for the remainder of the season.

During the winter we build custom albacore fishing equipment to supplement our summer fishery. Compared to previous years, we have seen an upswing in albacore gear orders after this 2012 season. We attribute this to less crowding and better fishing for U.S. boats. If we can see a positive upswing in our business, U.S. fishermen must also see similar results without Canadian competition on U.S. fishing grounds.

Please allow U.S. fishermen to work unimpeded in U.S. waters and disallow foreign fishing fleets access to U.S. fishing grounds. Thank you for listening.

Respectfully yours,

Dear Mr. Hogan,

Humboldt Fishermen's Marketing Association, founded in 1955, represents the United States Fishing fleet out of the Port of Eureka, as well as other Northern California ports. Most of our fishermen's boats are medium sized trollers (40 – 65 feet) fishing salmon in the spring and albacore in late summer and fall. Our members fish albacore off the coasts of California, Oregon and Washington. These fishermen report a steady increase in the Canadian fleet with both larger and more numerous boats each season. Because of the increased congestion and less than exemplary behavior on the part of Canadian fishermen, our fleet repeatedly gets forced off of fish schools and off of productive U.S. fishing grounds. The 2012 season was the exception.

U.S. fishermen have always had the ability to harvest albacore in U.S. waters without the "unneeded help" or interference from foreign fleets. We respectfully request your assistance in keeping the Canadian fleet in Canadian waters and allow U.S. taxpayers the opportunity to continue producing fish for our country.

Sincerely,

Ken Bates, Vice-President

American Tuna is a family-owned domestic processor of US albacore. Our founding families come from generations of albacore fishermen. Our American Tuna brand of albacore products have found strong consumer support for the US pole & troll albacore fishery, its heritage, and its American albacore fishermen.

As buyers and processors of albacore from this US fishery, we are well aware of the struggle of US fishermen to continue this fishery's great tradition. For each US fisherman and US vessel, there are countless jobs that depend on them. We have watched the numbers of US vessels decline under the invasion of US Exclusive Economic Zone by the Canadian fishing fleet under the treaty.

Almost from the start, this treaty was unfair, inequitable, and imbalanced. In the past decade it has become intolerable.

The Canadian government has signed a Free Trade Agreement with the European Union. As a result, our American albacore products will confront a 22% tariff by the EU, while Canadian albacore is free from that 22% tariff. Over 80% of Canadian harvested albacore are caught in our US EEZ. A large majority of that catch is landed in Canada, processed by Canadian processors, and sold as Canadian albacore.

Canada has invested heavily in increasing its fishing fleet's capacity and developing the processing capacity to go with it. They have steadily ramped up their fleet's effort and harvest in the US EEZ. Our fleet is now half of what it was.

When the treaty started, most of the albacore processors were here in the US. Now, Canadian processors have surpassed U.S. processors.

2012 witnessed the first North Pacific Albacore Season without a foreign (Canadian) fleet in 30 years. As a result, the US fishermen were able to harvest without having to compete with a foreign fleet. US ports up and down the West Coast witnessed an increase in productivity by US albacore fisherman. US businesses benefitted from US new dollars being generated by all landings of Albacore tuna. US new dollars were spent in US ports and injected in to the US economy. There was no justification for a foreign fleet to compete to harvest what US fishermen are willing and able to harvest.

American Tuna has become aware of intent to put together a 2013 Fishing Regime with the Canadians. We are also aware that the overwhelming majority of US albacore fishermen strongly oppose a 2013 fishing regime.

Re: U.S./Canada Albacore Treaty

Dear Dr. Jones:

The Western Fishboat Owners Association (WFOA) must express our members concerns regarding the U.S. Albacore Treaty with Canada, especially in regard to your December 11, 2012 letter to Dr. McIsaac of the Pacific Fisheries Management Council. We also would like to express our deep concern over the premature development of a "strawman" proposal for the 2013 fishing regime, prior to having discussions to solve U.S. fishermen's continuing issues which have gone unresolved in the earlier negotiations of the fishing regime.

By way of background, WFOA has been in existence since 1967, representing about 300 albacore vessels on the west coast. WFOA was instrumental in securing the U.S. Albacore Treaty with Canada in 1981, at a time when the U.S. did not recognize other country's jurisdiction over highly migratory species (HMS) within the newly established EEZ's put in place in the late seventies. At that time the U.S. established its Fishery Conservation Zone pursuant to the 1976 Magnuson Act, but it did not exercise jurisdiction over HMS. Canada did claim jurisdiction over HMS in their EEZ, and subsequently seized 19 U.S. vessels fishing for albacore. The seizure of these vessels in Canadian waters led the fishermen taking the initiative to negotiate a treaty to maintain U.S. access to Canadian waters and allow free port access and privileges on both sides of the border.

At the time the Treaty entered into force 31 years ago, the Canadian albacore fleet was very limited in size and capacity, and most Canadian vessels fished for albacore only as a side-fishery, when salmon and other fisheries were slack. U.S. harvesters had had some very productive years in Canadian waters in the late 1960's through the 70's prior to the treaty negotiations. The original intent of the Treaty was to maintain U.S. access to fish in the Canadian EEZ. The purpose was not to give economic benefits to U.S. ports and coastal communities from port calls of the Canadian albacore fleet.

Around 1997, as Canada was forced to cut back on its salmon fisheries, the number of Canadian troll vessels fishing in the U.S. EEZ increased dramatically. Observations of historic patterns and reported landings clearly show a dramatic increase in Canadian effort in the U.S. EEZ since 1996. The 2011 Canadian fleet is much greater than the fleet that existed in 1996 in terms of capacity and catching ability. This current Canadian effort is well beyond the effort levels that existed when the Treaty was entered into. The fishing regime has been amended twice in the last 10 years to reduce and control Canadian effort, with no effect. Canadian permits for access in the US zone have become a high value commodity, creating even more pressure on individual Canadian vessel operators to be exceedingly aggressive in their fishing methods in order to remain profitable. The increase in the Canadian fleet over time has had the unintended consequential effect of benefitting coastal businesses and communities. While this has been valuable, it should not now be used as a rationale to maintain a fishing regime that is hindering the operation of U.S. fishermen harvesting albacore in the U.S. EEZ for whose benefit the Treaty was negotiated.

The 2012 albacore season marked the first time since 1981 there has been no reciprocal fishing. It has been the first opportunity to gain some perspective from the fishermen that live and work at sea fishing for albacore off the U.S. west coast how the lack of a regime has impacted their operations. WFOA members and others reported better fishing conditions existed on the grounds this season, and U.S. fishermen were able to fully supply U.S. processors. Most U.S. fishermen, from operators of large vessels to small, as well as some recreational fishermen, have commented on the "peacefulness" that resulted in better ability to 'stay on" the albacore SCHOOLS in the narrow historic albacore distribution band off the Washington-Oregon coast, and the lack of crowding at-sea as well as in port for unloading.

In your letter to Dr. McIsaac, you state in the fourth paragraph, "We recognize that the Council has made it clear its expectations that lack of data should not preclude progress toward a new fishing regime". That statement is very troubling. We have always tried to rely on the most recent and best data and information for making decisions affecting the livelihood of our fleet. To date, the information collected and compiled by bilateral working groups, although thorough in nature, does not reflect the true effects on the U.S. economy from having a large foreign fleet in the U.S. zone competing for the same resource and markets. Data collected during the absence of foreign fishing for only one season is insufficient to determine effects of the suspension of the fishing regime on the harvesting and marketing of albacore from the U.S. EEZ. Any analysis produced at this point will provide only inconclusive or erroneous information. WFOA members believe at a minimum it will take another year of suspension to obtain the requested analysis.

There is another sentence in the fifth paragraph of your December 11th letter that raises serious concerns. It is where you state "Failure to move forward could have serious implications for a broad range of other fisheries matters that our nations face in common." We need to emphasize that the albacore fishery has never been implicated or considered in the lengthy discussions of either U.S. Canada salmon or whiting fisheries matters. The original negotiators of the Treaty intentionally kept the subject of the albacore fishery separate from other fishery issues, and it only makes sense to continue that well considered policy.

We have only now received some preliminary information on the economics that needs to be reviewed before moving to the next step. In light of the slow progress at the governmental level we hope the State Department wait an additional year to renew negotiations and in the meantime address the concerns of the U.S. fishermen whose livelihood is dependent on fair access to the resources in the U.S. EEZ.

Our observations of historical patterns and reported landings and clearly show a dramatic historic increase in Canadian effort in the U.S. EEZ especially from 1996 to 2011, well beyond the levels that existed when the Treaty was entered into. Although the fishing regime was amended twice in the last 10 years reduce and control Canadian effort, the facts are that their capacity and catching did not seem to be affected. Their permits became a commodity to sell for access in the US zone thus creating even more pressure on the Canadian fleet to catch and be profitable. The 2011 Canadian fleet had little similarities to the fleet that existed in 1996 in terms of capacity and catching ability. WFOA recognizes that treaties have their own place and structure in issues such as the albacore fishery, we do find it troubling that a foreign fishery is allowed to grow at the expense of US fishermen and clearly goes counter to the whole professed basis of managing the EEZ for the benefit of U.S. fishermen.

The Western Fishboat Owners Association, American Albacore Fishing Association, and Washington Troller's Association, together representing the vast majority of U.S. troll and baitboat albacore vessels on the west coast, have all come to similar conclusions after the 2012 season that the current fishing regime is of detriment to U.S. albacore fishermen. All strongly support continuing the suspension of the fishing regime until such time that a rational assessment can be completed and the development of corrections to the existing regime can be formulated. To impose a fishing regime for the sake of having one in 2013 will only aggravate problems on the fishing grounds to dangerous levels and could foreclose all parties ability to formulate a regime which actually can be equally beneficial to both countries.

Finally it is important to express our continuing confidence in the capabilities of Messrs. Bill Gibbons-Fly and Dave Hogan, whose diplomatic skills and intelligence we have come to know well and appreciate over the past decade. Now, we have chosen to write directly to you concerning the needs of American fishermen, since we believe these colleagues have been given new guidance by officials above them in the Department, who may not have had the opportunity to gain a complete understanding of the situation with regard to the U.S. Albacore Treaty with Canada.

Thank you for the opportunity to convey the concerns of the members of WFOA and the viewpoint of American fishermen on the importance of maintaining control over foreign fishing inside our EEZ.

Sincerely,

Wayne Heikkila

Dear Dr. Jones:

At the end of 2011, the fishing regime under the US-Canada Albacore Treaty expired. The American Albacore Fishing Association (AAFA), an association representing US commercial albacore fishermen, viewed the expiration as a welcome development. Canadian fishermen, supported by their government, have been reaping enormous economic benefits by capturing fish in US waters at the direct expense of the US albacore fishing industry. US natural resources should first and foremost benefit American workers and the US economy. The expired fishing regime between US and Canada should not be renewed.

Treaty Background

The 1981 albacore Treaty was established to resolve a jurisdictional conflict, a jurisdictional conflict that no longer exists. The Treaty was negotiated to allow reciprocal fishing and port calls in authorized ports during a time when the US and Canada asserted different jurisdictional claims in their respective EEZs. The US position became aligned with Canada in 1990 through an amendment to the Fishery Conservation and Management Act. Nonetheless, the treaty remained. As a result, this albacore treaty is the only reciprocal fishing treaty for the US.

In the late 1970's, the albacore treaty and a number of other fisheries agreements between the US and Canada were spawned as the result of efforts to restore traditional patterns of fishing in an era of newly established Exclusive Economic Zones.

Reciprocity treaties with Canada have proven unsuccessful in the past. The US- Canada Reciprocity Treaty of 1854 was abrogated by the US in 1866 in large part because Canada was the only nation benefiting from it.

The scarcity of reciprocal fishing treaties in use today is evidence of their problematic implementation and the counterproductive incentives they promote.

Canada's Increased Effort Impacts US Fishermen

When the albacore treaty was enacted in 1981, Canada's albacore fishery consisted of 46 Canadian vessels that landed 200 metric tons of albacore.[1] Canada soon developed a view of the treaty's access to US albacore fishing grounds as a promising opportunity to shift excess capacity from other Canadian fisheries. The Canada Commission on Pacific Fisheries Policy presented this finding along with its recommendation to issue licenses without restriction.[2]

The Department of Fisheries and Oceans determined that excess harvest capacity in traditional British Columbia fisheries had created heavy competition that was causing economic hardship for Canadian fishermen.[3] License limitations, particularly vessels displaced from the halibut fishery off Alaska, aggravated the situation.

The best remaining option for unlimited entry was determined to be albacore tuna. The DFO recognized that albacore occur seasonally close to the North American coast, sometimes off Canada and sometimes not. The DFO acknowledged that almost all of the albacore landed on the west coast was shipped to US canneries for processing.[4]

Canadian fisheries scientists have long been aware of the limited participation of BC fishermen in the albacore fishery. According to the Department of Fisheries and Oceans, it was "well known that the presence of a United States fishing fleet off the Canadian coast helps Canadian fishermen (whose main preoccupation is salmon) to determine the progress of the seasonal migration of albacore and where the best fishing areas are likely to be."[5]

In the mid-1990s, a lot of "former salmon trollers were starting to suffer pretty badly with the decline in fish and fishing opportunities with salmon."[6] In response, BC fishermen sought and obtained the assistance of their government to create a tuna fishery based on unlimited fishing opportunities in the US EEZ.

Between 1992 and 2002, Canadian landings of Pacific salmon decreased by 50%. At the same time, Canada's landings of albacore increased by 583%.[7]

Harvests and wholesale values fluctuate: 7,300 tonnes at $36.4 million in 2004, 6,400 tonnes at $25.9 million in 2007. BC fishermen catch around 5,000 tonnes on average per year (BC Seafood Industry Year in Review).

Need for Treaty Amendment and Goals of Amendment

During the 1990s US fishermen became increasingly aware of the rapidly growing Canadian presence in the US EEZ. The Canadian fleet was overcrowding US vessels and interfering with the efficient operation of the US fleet within the US EEZ. What had been fewer than 75 Canadian vessels catching a few hundred tons of albacore in the US EEZ had rapidly grown into a foreign fleet of over 200 vessels aggressively competing against US fishermen in the US EEZ. Canada's once small and opportunistic albacore fleet was now extracting over 2,000 tons of albacore annually from the US EEZ and this effort was still growing.

Prompted by concerns of the US industry over the growing inequity in the balance of benefits under the treaty, the US entered into negotiations with Canada with a goal to reduce Canadian fishing effort in US waters. The resulting treaty amendment sought to reduce Canadian fishing effort in the US EEZ to a level slightly above the pre-1998 average level of fishing.[8]

It is unknown how the "pre-1998 level" was derived and whether NMFS or the Pacific Fishery Management Council ever evaluated the effort level of the Canadian in the US EEZ prior to implementing the required effort limitation. Such analysis has not been made available to stakeholders. It soon became apparent that this effort limitation regime was unsuccessful at addressing the concerns of US fishermen. Yet, these concerns can be traced back to the motivations for the treaty amendment.

Characterization of "pre-1998" Level of Effort

As enacted, the treaty called for regular exchange of information by the parties. However, it appears that little of this information was actually exchanged or used to inform the development and monitoring of the amendment's resulting effort limitation scheme. As a result, the treaty's effort limitation measures have been ineffective at achieving the established goals. In addition to not achieving the necessary reductions in Canadian effort, they have spawned a lucrative, multi-million dollar market for Canadian permits to fish in the US EEZ, bestowing an additional benefit for Canadian fishermen.

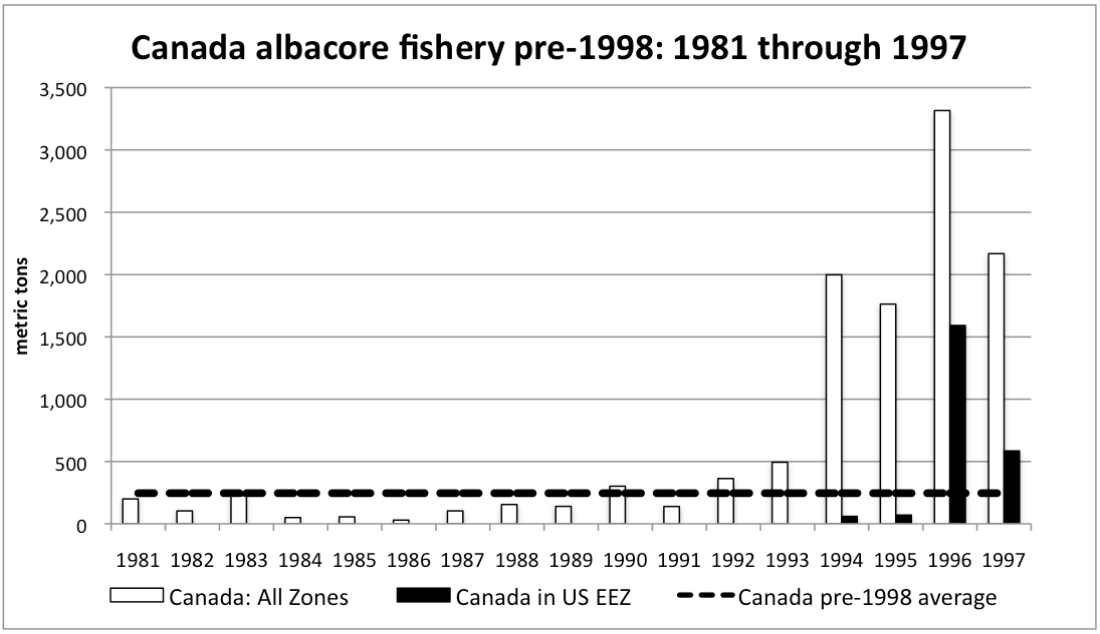

[8] Statement of David A. Balton, Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for Oceans and Fisheries, US Department of State, made before the Subcommittee on Fisheries Conservation, Wildlife and Oceans of the Committee on Resources, US House of Representatives, 108th Congress, 2nd Session.

In the years leading up to the enactment of the treaty, 1975-1980, Canada's average albacore catch was less than 200 metric tons. This is obtained from catch data reported to the International Scientific Committee for Tuna and Tuna-like Species in the North Pacific Ocean.

The treaty was enacted in 1981. Despite the treaty provisions, data on the Canadian fishery effort in the US EEZ has proven difficult to obtain. Some logbook data on the Canadian fishery is contained in a report entitled Economic Potential for Offshore Highly Migratory Species, by D. Pepper & Associates, prepared for the BC Seafood Sector Council in May 2001. This report was distributed by the Canadian DFO & the BCTFA. In combination with data submitted to the ISC in its report on the 2006 and 2007 Canadian North Pacific Albacore Tuna Troll Fisheries, by John Holmes and Max Stocker, Department of Fisheries and Oceans, Canada, it appears that Canada's albacore fishery underwent a significant expansion in the mid-1990s. This expansion took place in conjunction with the significant increase in effort by the Canadian fleet, which US fishermen had experienced first-hand.

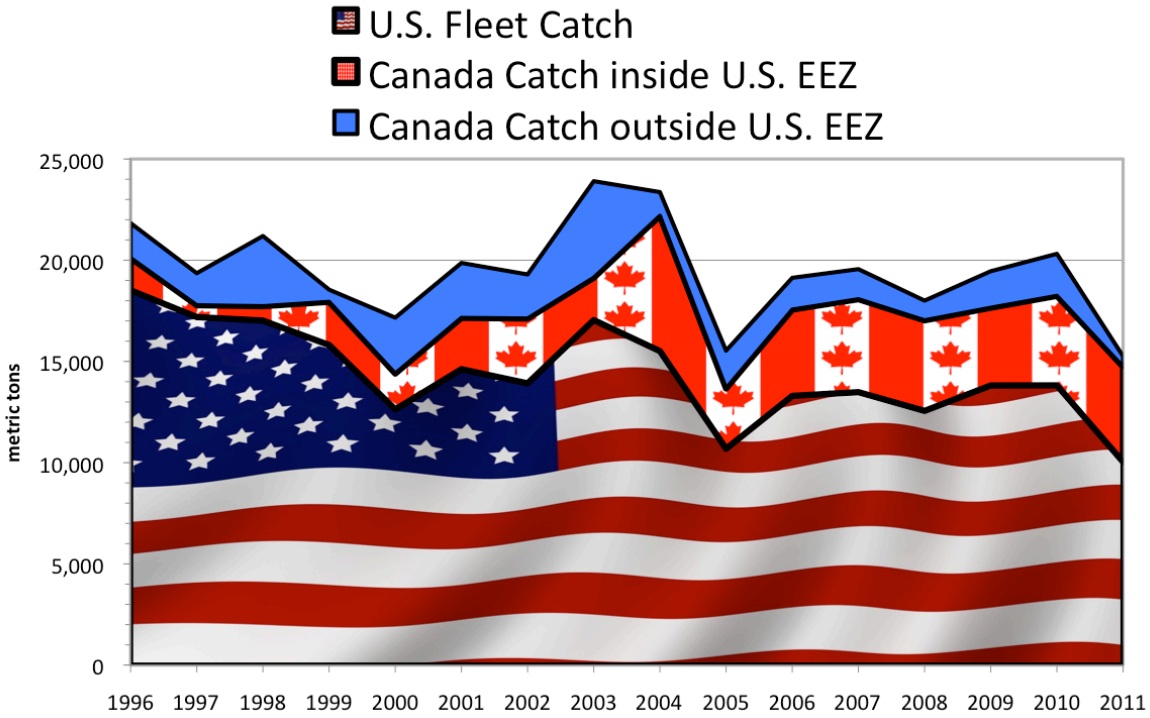

From the enactment of the treaty in 1981 through 1992, Canada's effort was relatively steady. Canada's albacore catch averaged 156 metric tons from 1981 through 1992. In 1993, Canada's albacore catch climbed to 494 metric tons. 1993 was Canada's largest harvest since 1979.

However, 1994 saw the Canadian albacore catch increase even more. In 1994, Canada's catch skyrocketed to almost 2,000 metric tons. The following years, Canada continued this trend by harvesting 1,763 metric tons in 1995 and 3,316 metric tons in 1996. Canada's aggressive shift of excess capacity from its declining salmon fisheries into the albacore fishery was well underway.

Canada average levels of albacore catch

	all zones	US EEZ	pre-1998
1981-1992 (12 yrs)	156 mt
1993-1997 (5 yrs)		462 mt
1981-1997 (17 yrs)			< 246 mt

From the enactment of the treaty in 1981 to 1997 (the last of the "pre-1998" period), 17 years of treaty fishing took place. Recognizing that Canada's level of fishing from 1981 through 1992 is reflected by a total fishery average (in all zones) of 156 metric tons. From 1993 through 1997, Canada's level of fishing in the US EEZ (only) averaged 462 metric tons. Combining these averages yields a pre-1998 average level of fishing of 246 metric tons. Canada's average level of fishing under the treaty amendment should not have been allowed to more than slightly exceed this pre-1998 average level of 246 metric tons.

Inadequate Treaty Implementation

When Congress adopted the Magnuson-Stevens Act in 1976, one key objective was the elimination of foreign fishing in US waters. The Act has been largely effective. This treaty fishery is the only foreign fishery operating in the US EEZ. It is worth considering that inadequate monitoring and enforcement of this treaty has allowed the US albacore fishery to decline while enabling a foreign fishing fleet to increase its operations within the US EEZ.

The treaty's Annex A includes specific requirements that would allow accurate monitoring of the foreign fleet fishing in the US EEZ. The US and Canada are required to exchange and approve detailed vessel lists in order to enable the albacore fishery to proceed pursuant to the treaty. AAFA has sought, unsuccessfully, to obtain copies of these vessel lists in order to facilitate assessment of the treaty and development of potential proposals toward resolution of the treaty issues.

Annex A also requires vessels of the foreign fishing fleet to keep accurate logs while fishing pursuant to the treaty. The recent activities of the Data Working Group have revealed that, for much of the treaty's existence, this provision has not been effectively implemented or enforced against Canadian vessels that fish in the US EEZ.

The legislation implementing the treaty, Public Law 108-219, title IV, § 401, April 13, 2004, 118 Stat. 616, provided that that Magnuson-Stevens Fishery Conservation and Management Act (16 USC. 1801 et seq.) shall be enforced as if the treaty were part of the Act.

Despite these regulations, the HMS Fishery Management Plan reported in 2002 that "implementation of the treaty has been sporadic." Furthermore, it noted that "...there have not been regular exchanges of data, nor has there been an effective monitoring program to determine the level of fishing..."

Despite express provisions in the treaty requiring the pre-season exchange of vessel lists, little data is available regarding which Canadian vessels were approved to fish in US waters each year. This lack of data has prolonged the unacceptable conditions experienced by US fishermen having to compete against an aggressive and growing foreign fleet operating in the US EEZ. Without the benefit of these vessel lists, US fishermen have been unable to identify and report treaty violations and illegal fishing by Canadian vessels in US waters.

In 2001, NMFS reported that during Technical Consultations on the treaty on November 20, 2000, the US and Canada agreed to "compile and exchange all national regulations relevant to the troll albacore fisheries and to make them available to the industry."[9] Despite numerous requests at delegation and bilateral meetings, this database of the applicable regulations of both parties has not been provided.

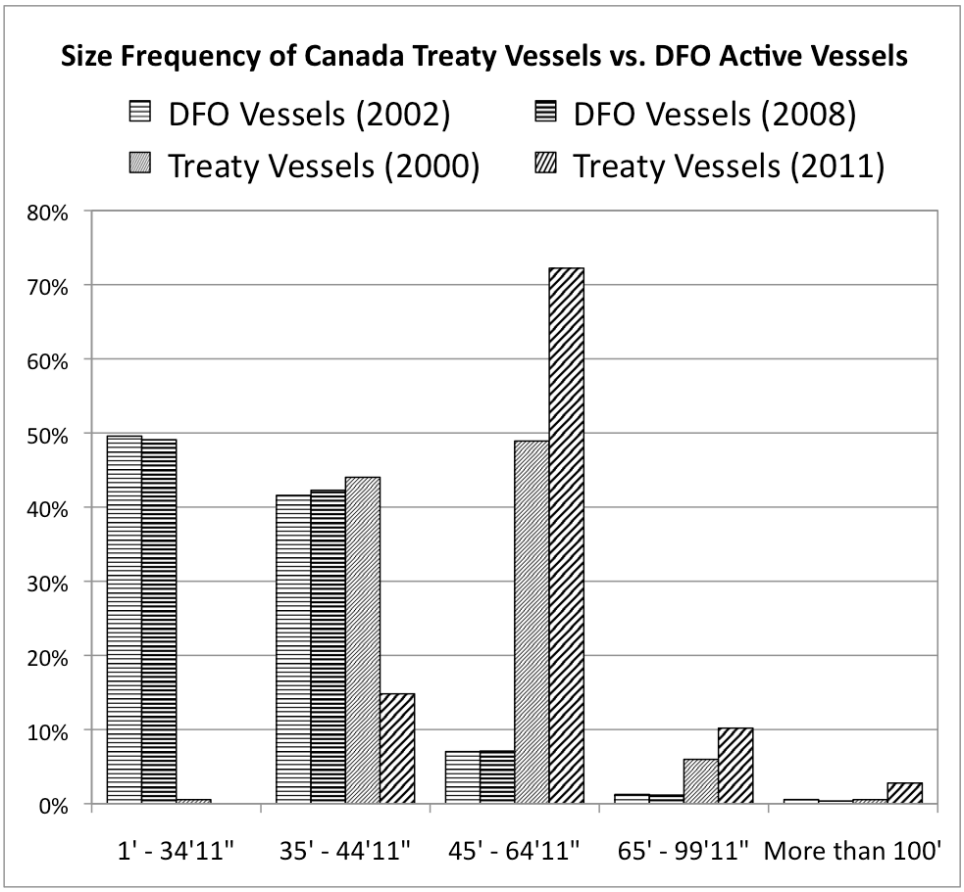

What little data is available regarding the Canadian fleet confirms that Canada's fishing vessels have significantly increased in size during the most recent period of the treaty, from 2000 to 2011. The foreign fleet has transformed from a fleet of smaller vessels to a fleet of significantly larger vessels, with a particularly large increase in vessels over 80 feet.

In addition, the available data suggests that the Canadian albacore fishery has been a significant source of expansion among active fishing vessels in the Canadian fleet. Canadian fleet records for active fishing vessels indicate that Canada's commercial fishing fleet has remained fairly stable in recent years. In marked contrast, there has been significant increase in the size of Canadian albacore fleet vessels.

[9] Technical Consultation with Canada on the US-Albacore Treaty, November 20, 2000, PFMC Exhibit E.1.a, March 2001.

When reviewing these changes in vessel length, it is important to note that vessel capacity increases much more rapidly than length. Increasing a vessel's length by 10 feet may produce a vessel with twice the capacity. This important aspect of increased effort was not considered.

It should be noted that the Canadian albacore fleet has undergone growth and expansion quite unique among Canadian commercial fisheries and quite unlike the US albacore fleet.

Need for reconsideration of treaty

By employing treaty negotiations to develop management measures, the State Department is in effect, managing the US fishery without adhering to the national policies and requirements embodied by the Magnuson Act. The treaty operates to deprive US albacore fishermen of the Act's provisions established specifically to protect US fishermen from foreign fleets.

The Magnuson Act allows foreign fleets access to under-utilized stocks in the US EEZ under carefully prescribed circumstances that ensure necessary protections are provided for US fishermen. The albacore treaty has denied US fishermen these protections for too long. In considering this treaty it should be kept in mind that "while economic effects must be taken into account, such effects were not meant to trump the real purpose of the Act, which is to preserve and protect US fisheries."[10]

NMFS has identified the US albacore fishery among the top 20 fisheries having excess capacity. The US fleet has ample capacity to replace any albacore landings by Canadian vessels. The 2012 fishing season proves insightful in this regard. In 2012, without having to compete alongside Canadian vessels in the US EEZ, the efficiency of US albacore vessels appears to have increased substantially, perhaps by 30 percent. If 2012 is any indication; the Canadian fleet operating in the US EEZ has had a significant negative impact on the operations of the US fleet.

Under the treaty, Canada increased its fishing effort in the US EEZ at the expense of US fishermen. As long as the US fleet has excess capacity, there is no good reason to allow a foreign fleet to benefit from fishing in the US EEZ.

Considering all of the above, we strongly believe there is no reason to proceed with negotiations for a fishing regime for 2013.

Sincerely,

Natalie Webster

Dear Deputy Director Hogan,

As the owner and operator of Driscoll's Wharf, a San Diego, California commercial fishing port, I am writing to express my opposition to a proposed renewal of the Canadian Albacore Treaty. My family and I have supported the efforts of the San Diego commercial albacore fishing fleet since the 1980's.

Driscoll's Wharf has served as the home port and off-loading site for the San Diego albacore fishing fleet for over 30 years. During that time, we have watched the San Diego commercial fishing industry pay the ultimate price (loss of jobs and fishermen) as a result of the Canadian Albacore Treaty. In 2012, we witnessed a resurgence of albacore catches and landings by the U.S. fleet, when not limited by the inequitable competition with the Canadian fleet. The U.S. albacore fishing captains based out Driscoll's Wharf are unanimous in saying the fishing grounds were much more peaceful and production was up for individual vessels without the Canadian fleet.

I join our local fishermen in expressing anger and frustration with the U.S. State Department's unwillingness to advocate for the right to access and preserve the last open access fishery on the West Coast. The Canadian government is protecting and fighting for their fishermen. I believe our government should work to protect the U.S. fishermen's interests and not that of the Canadian fishermen.

It seems the U.S. government is playing politics with the commercial albacore fleet and in-turn our livelihoods. I personally think the way the government is representing the U.S albacore fleet in the Treaty negotiations is disgraceful. I respectfully request your assistance in opposing any discussion advocating for the renewal of the Canadian Albacore Treaty.

I thank you for your time and consideration of this important issue and hope you will work to preserve the U.S. albacore fleet and industry.

Sincerely,

Cathy Driscoll

Subject: Canadian Treaty

Dear Mrs. Rebecca Blank

The following is copied directly from the Department of Commerce home page.
"The Commerce Department's mission is to help make American businesses more innovative at home and more competitive abroad." Please help us meet these goals!

My family and I have been fishing for salmon and tuna for over 45 years. I have suffered the near demise of the salmon industry and have only been able to survive due to the albacore fishery off the West Coast of Oregon and Washington. I have witnessed the tremendous increase in not only the sheer magnitude, but the tremendous size and sophistication of the Canadian albacore fishing fleet compared to our own diminishing fishing fleet.

I do not speak for any fishing association or organization, but I unequivocally know that my views align with the majority of individual albacore fishermen. We simply cannot compete with the Canadian fishing boats due to their superior size, technology, catch range and most of all the ability to get subsidies from their government to replace and update their fleet. Last year the absenteeism of the Canadian fishing fleet in our traditional and limited albacore zones made them not only safer, but most of all refreshing to think our government actually supported us, at least for 2012.

It is no secret among our fishermen that the Canadian government highly subsidizes their fishing fleet while the US continues to compound our fishermen with strangling restrictions.

The sheer size of the Canadian boats are intimidating, but when a 40 foot wooden boat encounters a new 90 foot steel hull Canadian albacore fishing boat on the same school of albacore there is no doubt who demands and gets the right of way; now add 50 more boats and our fishermen are forced to give the school to the Canadian fleet and search elsewhere.
As I understand it, a Canadian proposal is to limit increasing a replacement boat to no more than 10 feet at a time. When subsided with low loans or even grant money these boats will add the extra 10 feet each and every time. I believe the detrimental significance of the much larger sizes of the Canadian fishing boats compared to our aging fleet is being grossly underestimated as is the enormity of their at sea sustained catch capability. Here are only few of the inequalities!

- Unlike the Canadian fleet, the majority of our boats are very limited in range, thus share a small catch area.
- Unlike the Canadian fleet, the majority of our boats frequently have to stop fishing to deliver fish.
- Unlike the Canadian fleet, the majority of our boats put dollars directly into our economy.
- Unlike the Canadian fleet, our boats are not subsidized by the government!
- Unlike the Canadian fleet, the majority of our boats are family owned rather than owned by large corporations.
- Unlike the Canadians ports, we let them use our ports even though restricted from our local fishing grounds.
- Unlike the Canadian fleet, we communicate with one another on the fishing grounds; many Canadian boats won't even answer a call on the radio to determine their intentions for an impending collision.

I commend the Canadian government for supporting their fishermen, we should be so lucky!
However, our government went to bat for Boeing over losing a bid to build airplanes in France because of a subsidized disadvantage. We should expect no less!!

Mr. Hogan,

I am writing this letter to share my perspective regarding the U.S. - Canada Albacore Treaty. I am the business owner and manager of Westport Seafood Inc. in Westport WA. . Our business is directly affected by this fishery as we are one of the largest offloading facilities for Albacore on the Pacific Coast of the US. In addition we also provide live bait to the albacore fleet. Our business has been directly affected by this treaty arrangement in past years. The Canadian fleet does not visit U.S. ports for supplies or bait, nor do they offload their catch at U.S. facilities. The Albacore that are caught by Canadian fisherman are not introduced into the U.S. economy at any stage. From my perspective it seems fairly simple, we are allowing the Canadians access to one of our natural resources, for no gain. That being said, with the state of our economy, and unemployment rates in the U.S. at record levels, it does not make sense for us to give away our resources when the economic impact is so great. The fishing industry is comprised of mostly smaller, family owned businesses and fisherman who depend on this resource for their success. In turn we provide many jobs in rural, economically distressed towns. During the albacore season we directly employ 35 full time employees. Our bait fishing vessel contributes 4 more full time positions. Indirectly this fishery provides jobs in the Grays Harbor area for trucking, logistics, supplies, and administrative support for our operations. The impact to the U.S. economy does not stop at our dock, it is far reaching. I would urge you, and others involved with the decisions regarding this treaty to consider the livelihood of our families, and the state of the U.S. economy, as you move through the decision making process. Thank you for your time.

Dear Mr. Hogan,

My name is Lynn Crump, I am the owner and operator of the U.S. fishing vessel BILLIE MARIE ll. My reasons for wanting the Canadian treaty canceled are: Canadians are unsafe to fish around, there are too many of them, they don't respect our fishing practices, they shut down to close at night and don't have adequate lighting. When the weather gets rough they go to port, take up all the slips and I never have anywhere to tie up. I have never caught fish off Canada, and don't intend to ever go up into their waters. There have been years when our markets have been weak, and the Canadians don't help by flooding those markets. 2012 was a more profitable year for me, and much more enjoyable without them being around. Thank you for what you did with the Canadian treaty last year, please do it again and again.

Please support our U.S. commercial Albacore fishing Industry by not renewing the expired fishing regime between the U.S. and Canada.

We are a custom cannery that depends on our albacore fisheries year around. Albacore has become our mainstay and we would not be canning year around without it. We need to preserve and protect our fisheries for American families.

A treaty that would allow the U.S. Albacore fishery to decline while enhancing the Canadian foreign fleet in U.S. waters is wrong!

Dear Mr. Hogan,

LLewellyn Supply is writing this to you in support of the AAFA in their efforts to effectively protect the rights of U.S. fishermen.

I have been in the marine distribution business for over 50 years, providing products to the commercial fishing industry. I have seen the ups and downs of commercial fishing on our coast. With among other set backs, Mexico on our south closing fishing to U.S. fishermen, with support of the U.S. Government. It only seems fair and reasonable that our government should support our fishermen on our northern border.

Please be aware of U.S. boats that are home ported in U.S. waters are subject to Federal, State, and Local environmental regulations that are costly to our fishermen. Reduced copper, no biocides in bottom paint to reduce an impact on water quality requires more frequent haulouts for cleaning to name a few. By our government not supporting U.S. fishermen, it has far reaching financial implications on our economy. Not only does it effect the fishermen directly, but indirecty boat yards, suppliers, manufacturers, and non-marine industries.

Please issue your support for the U.S. fishermen our economy needs you to respond to their request. The ripple effect on our economy is at stake.

Dear Mr. Hogan,

I have recently become aware of the intent of US-Canada Albacore Treaty for 2013; and I am writing this letter in hopes to convince otherwise. Let me begin by stating; this treaty is a disservice to our nation. Its track record has proven this treaty is not only to be ineffective but hinders the growth of the US Economy across several industries. I function as General Manager for an International Freight Forwarder; 2012 demonstrated to be a rewarding year – as Albacore's exports had set a record high in tonnage.

2012 Albacore's record high in export; should be confirmation – that we do not need Canadians in our US EEZ. The people have spoken in masses against this treaty; Imbalanced, un-fair, antiquated, and overcrowded. I ask you to listen to the American people. Any efforts to renegotiate this treaty would be a disgrace to the US albacore community. Then to add insult, much of the Canadian finished product comes to the U.S. to compete for market share. This treaty has harmed the US fishery, our US fishermen, the US processors and our communities.

Please explain to me – Why would we allow foreign fleets to fish in our US Exclusive Economic Zone? Why doesn't the treaty force the Canadians to unload its catches from our waters in US ports? Why would we allow millions of US dollars in albacore out of the US EEZ and added to the Canadian economy? In my opinion, there is no benefit to the U.S. albacore fleet to allow the Canadian fishermen to work U.S. waters. Please help in the effort to change or eliminate this existing treaty.

In closing, thank you for an opportunity to express my opposition to the US-Canadian Albacore Treaty. I ask you to keep these thoughts and concerns in mind, and ask that you put a stop to the Canadian fleet fishing in the U.S. EEZ.

Thanks,

Dear Mr. Hogan,

We appreciate the opportunity to relate our concerns about the US-Canada Albacore Treaty. Over the past two years, my company, Trailer Service Company, has been honored to be the primary on-road freight hauler for American Albacore Fishing Association's fleet of Tuna boats. AAFA's massive presence in Washington State during the Albacore season accounts for nearly 80% of our overall business during that time.

One of our biggest concerns when securing freight for our customers is that we are not under booking our trucks. When American and Canadian fishermen compete for the same grounds, in US waters, it necessarily means you will reduce the amount of catch for both groups. It seems unconscionable to us that Canadian boats are allowed to exploit our waters for their national benefit, completely bypassing US based trucking and US ports.

Based on their massive utilization of our US-based truck fleet during that season, we are making a very large investment in the purchase of more trucks to meet their needs. When the US-Canada Treaty is dissolved, we will feel much more confident in our choice to invest in more trucks, putting more hard working American tax-payers to work, both building the trucks as well as driving them.

In regards to the current difficulties the US economy is facing, there are few trucking companies out there willing to invest the capital required to increase their fleet to support their customers. I'm sure you can agree with me in saying that due to this difficult economy, it's that much more important for us to dissolve this treaty so we do not have Canadian fishermen competing head to head with American tax-paying fishermen, in our own waters.

Re: U.S./Canada Albacore Treaty

Dear Mr. Hogan,

The Westport Marina in Westport, Washington is a facility of the Port of Grays Harbor. It was the number one seafood landing port in Washington State last year, accounting for more than half of the commercial fish landings in the state.

Both the Westport Marina and the surrounding communities depend heavily on the success of the domestic fishing industry. It is our understanding the number of Canadian albacore fleets have more than doubled in recent years, while the number of U.S. fleets struggle to survive. In accordance with the Magnuson-Stevens Act, we strongly oppose any agreement or legislation that might deprive U.S. fishermen of their livelihood.

We respectfully request that you consider the impacts that reinstating such a regime will have on our U.S. fishermen, their families, and their communities. We trust that you and other U.S. representatives will keep the best interests of the hard-working U.S. citizens and the communities of coastal Washington in mind when addressing this issue.

Re: U.S. Canada Albacore Treaty

The Washington Trollers Association represents approximately 80 Trollers that fish the ocean along the US West coast and many of the WA Trollers target albacore tuna as part of their business model. Some of our Trollers have also fished for albacore tuna in the Canadian EEZ in past years under the US/Canada Albacore Treaty (Treaty). Most of our Trollers think that the Treaty is obsolete and that the suspension of the fishing regime should continue into 2013 fishing season. It is our understanding that the objective of the Magnuson Act was to provide maximum opportunity for US fishermen to fish and maximize their harvest in the US EEZ. What we are realizing is that as the Canadian fleet has become larger and more aggressive since the mid-1990s, they are catching albacore in the US EEZ that would likely have been caught by US boats if the Canadian fleet had not been present. In other words, the Canadian fleet is diminishing the US albacore fishermen opportunity in the US EEZ. With the increase in the number of Canadian vessels fishing for albacore in the Canadian EEZ, we do not think there will ever be an opportunity to make up in the Canadian EEZ what we are losing to the Canadian fleet in the US EEZ.

We understand that "equity" between the US and Canada is primary goal of the Treaty. If there must be a fishing regime annex to the Treaty for the 2013, we will work with others in the US delegation to find a more equitable fishing regime that clearly reduces the Canadian removals from the US EEZ.

Re: U.S./Canada Albacore Treaty

Dear Mr. Wolford:

Dear Chairman Wolford:

Western Fishboat Owners Association (WFOA) would like to take this opportunity to respond to the letter sent to Dr. McIssac by Denis Stevens - Canadian Consul General on January 21, 2013 in regards to Canada's position on the US/Canada treaty "fishing regime" suspension, and plans for the 2013 season.

First of all we are somewhat confused over the role of the PFMC regarding this correspondence and implications in paragraph (3) that some "understanding" has been reached between Canada and the PFMC to resume bicameral negotiations. We find this confusing given that the PFMC is only a U.S. stakeholder in the process and has been a strong supporter of the U.S. albacore fleet in the past and leading up to this point.

In regards to Mr. Stevens letter, we would like to point out that his interpretation, that the treaty was put into effect to ensure continued harvest to albacore on their "traditional" fishing grounds along the NW coast, is in fact true for U.S. fishermen far more than Canadians who prior to 1996 had very little fishing effort in U.S. waters which is shown clearly in the data working group reports.

Mr. Stevens goes on to point out that both sides have become reliant on the benefits offered by the treaty such as access to ports for crew exchange and unloading. We want to point out that Canadians still have full access to US ports except for unloading fish. The U.S. fishermen on the other hand were not granted even the most minimal access to Canadian ports in 2012 for any activity. As far as ports for the U.S. to exchange foreign crew, this is a U.S. issue that should be resolved domestically by legislation and should have nothing to do with the treaty. We remind the council and others again that this treaty was originally requested by fishermen for access to Canada and not the other way around. It served the fleet well for 20 years but has been difficult and contentious over the past 10 years.

The letter states there are benefits of mutual cooperation within the IATTC and WCPFC. We totally agree and believe having a fishing regime or not, should not be a factor when it comes to cooperation between the US and Canada on conservation of the resource. This is not any different from the U.S. or Canada cooperating with a nation such as Japan which we share any EEZ access, but can cooperate on mutual management, conservation, and research goals.

Mr. Stevens refers to Canada presenting proposals at the May 2012 meeting in Portland on issues such as etiquette on the grounds, capacity, transfers of licenses etc. However, as we all know Canada did not offer at anytime a reduction in their fleet numbers.

In 2012 the U.S. fleet made up for any difference in benefit to the U.S. through reported increased per vessels landings due to reduced pressure on the fish. Most fishermen reported their own landings up with no stress of an aggressive foreign fleet in their midst. Some processors have also reported their best landings in a number of seasons. Some of this is hard to quantify especially over one season thus the suspension needs to go on to create a sound basis for such determinations. To resume the fishery in 2013 will only set back the process.

U.S. albacore tuna fishermen harbor no ill feeling toward their Canadian counterparts. We are all on the ocean trying to make a living under harsh conditions, rising operating costs, and increasing pressure from regulatory agencies. Compared to 1981 albacore fishing has become more intense as fleets have modernized and have been displaced from other traditional fisheries by management and regulations. This is more true of the Canadian albacore fleet which 15 years ago was small is now an elite force of high production vessels.

Albacore tuna is highly migratory and theoretically belongs to no one nation, the opportunity to catch and harvest the species still belongs to the individual nations within their EEZ. That is where the problem lies with U.S. waters traditionally far more productive than Canadian waters for the species. U.S. fishermen recognize that Canadian fishermen with bills to pay and families to support see the U.S. zone as an area that may make or break the entire year. Some with large investments in equipment and government granted permits need substantial landings to survive and some have no other fisheries to return to. However so do U.S. albacore fishermen, and such sentiment should not be part of the decision making process.

WFOA, AAFA, WTA, Westport Charterboat Association and supporting businesses now all agree that suspension is the best thing for now in accessing a situation that took 30 years to evolve. The PFMC needs to be an advocate for what amounts to a clean and sustainable for U.S. fishermen. In a time when more and more focus is on conservation of the resource a continued suspension of the fishing regime is what is best for the U.S. fisherman and we value the support of the PFMC.

Re: US-Canada Albacore Treaty

Dear Dr. Jones:

At the end of 2011, the fishing regime under the US-Canada Albacore Treaty expired. The American Albacore Fishing Association (AAFA), an association representing US commercial albacore fishermen, viewed the expiration as a welcome development. Canadian fishermen, supported by their government, have been reaping enormous economic benefits by capturing fish in US waters at the direct expense of the US albacore fishing industry. US natural resources should first and foremost benefit American workers and the US economy. The expired fishing regime between US and Canada should not be renewed.

Treaty Background

The 1981 albacore Treaty was established to resolve a jurisdictional conflict, a jurisdictional conflict that no longer exists. The Treaty was negotiated to allow reciprocal fishing and port calls in authorized ports during a time when the US and Canada asserted different jurisdictional claims in their respective EEZs. The US position became aligned with Canada in 1990 through an amendment to the Fishery Conservation and Management Act. Nonetheless, the treaty remained. As a result, this albacore treaty is the only reciprocal fishing treaty for the US.

In the late 1970's, the albacore treaty and a number of other fisheries agreements between the US and Canada were spawned as the result of efforts to restore traditional patterns of fishing in an era of newly established Exclusive Economic Zones.

Reciprocity treaties with Canada have proven unsuccessful in the past. The US- Canada Reciprocity Treaty of 1854 was abrogated by the US in 1866 in large part because Canada was the only nation benefiting from it.

The scarcity of reciprocal fishing treaties in use today is evidence of their problematic implementation and the counterproductive incentives they promote.

Canada's Increased Effort Impacts US Fishermen

When the albacore treaty was enacted in 1981, Canada's albacore fishery consisted of 46 Canadian vessels that landed 200 metric tons of albacore.[1] Canada soon developed a view of the treaty's access to US albacore fishing grounds as a promising opportunity to shift excess capacity from other Canadian fisheries. The Canada Commission on Pacific Fisheries Policy presented this finding along with its recommendation to issue licenses without restriction.[2]

The Department of Fisheries and Oceans determined that excess harvest capacity in traditional British Columbia fisheries had created heavy competition that was causing economic hardship for Canadian fishermen.[3] License limitations, particularly vessels displaced from the halibut fishery off Alaska, aggravated the situation.

The best remaining option for unlimited entry was determined to be albacore tuna. The DFO recognized that albacore occur seasonally close to the North American coast, sometimes off Canada and sometimes not. The DFO acknowledged that almost all of the albacore landed on the west coast was shipped to US canneries for processing.[4]

Canadian fisheries scientists have long been aware of the limited participation of BC fishermen in the albacore fishery. According to the Department of Fisheries and Oceans, it was "well known that the presence of a United States fishing fleet off the Canadian coast helps Canadian fishermen (whose main preoccupation is salmon) to determine the progress of the seasonal migration of albacore and where the best fishing areas are likely to be."[5]

In the mid-1990s, a lot of "former salmon trollers were starting to suffer pretty badly with the decline in fish and fishing opportunities with salmon."[6] In response, BC fishermen sought and obtained the assistance of their government to create a tuna fishery based on unlimited fishing opportunities in the US EEZ.

Between 1992 and 2002, Canadian landings of Pacific salmon decreased by 50%. At the same time, Canada's landings of albacore increased by 583%.[7]

Harvests and wholesale values fluctuate: 7,300 tonnes at $36.4 million in 2004, 6,400 tonnes at $25.9 million in 2007. BC fishermen catch around 5,000 tonnes on average per year (BC Seafood Industry Year in Review).

Need for Treaty Amendment and Goals of Amendment

During the 1990s US fishermen became increasingly aware of the rapidly growing Canadian presence in the US EEZ. The Canadian fleet was overcrowding US vessels and interfering with the efficient operation of the US fleet within the US EEZ. What had been fewer than 75 Canadian vessels catching a few hundred tons of albacore in the US EEZ had rapidly grown into a foreign fleet of over 200 vessels aggressively competing against US fishermen in the US EEZ. Canada's once small and opportunistic albacore fleet was now extracting over 2,000 tons of albacore annually from the US EEZ and this effort was still growing.

Prompted by concerns of the US industry over the growing inequity in the balance of benefits under the treaty, the US entered into negotiations with Canada with a goal to reduce Canadian fishing effort in US waters. The resulting treaty amendment sought to reduce Canadian fishing effort in the US EEZ to a level slightly above the pre-1998 average level of fishing.[8]

It is unknown how the "pre-1998 level" was derived and whether NMFS or the Pacific Fishery Management Council ever evaluated the effort level of the Canadian in the US EEZ prior to implementing the required effort limitation. Such analysis has not been made available to stakeholders. It soon became apparent that this effort limitation regime was unsuccessful at addressing the concerns of US fishermen. Yet, these concerns can be traced back to the motivations for the treaty amendment.

Characterization of "pre-1998" Level of Effort

As enacted, the treaty called for regular exchange of information by the parties. However, it appears that little of this information was actually exchanged or used to inform the development and monitoring of the amendment's resulting effort limitation scheme. As a result, the treaty's effort limitation measures have been ineffective at achieving the established goals. In addition to not achieving the necessary reductions in Canadian effort, they have spawned a lucrative, multi-million dollar market for Canadian permits to fish in the US EEZ, bestowing an additional benefit for Canadian fishermen.

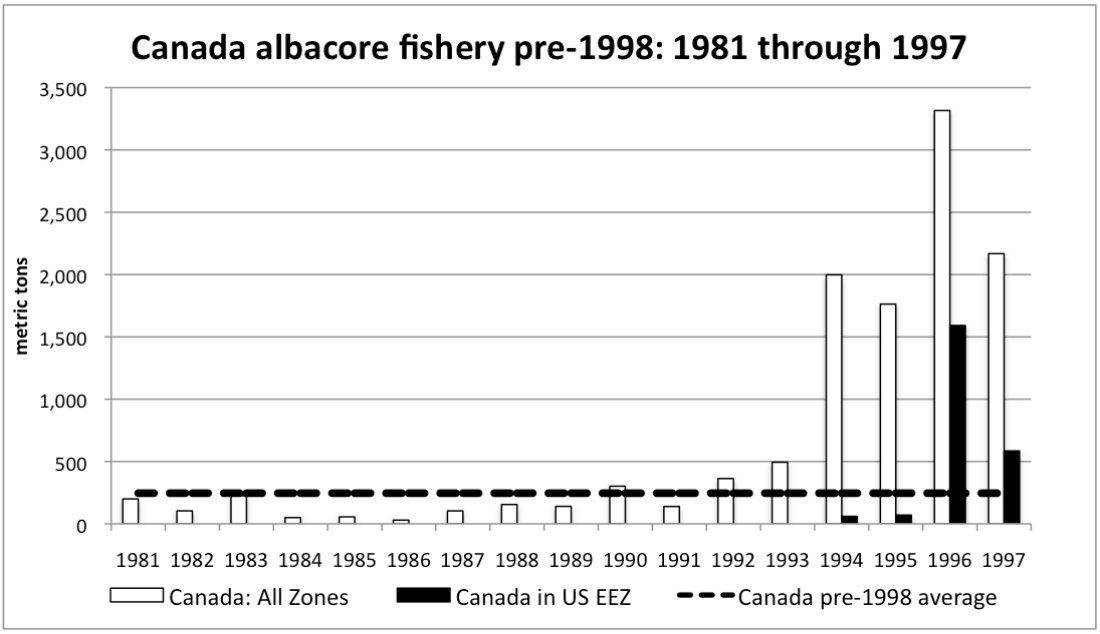

[8] Statement of David A. Balton, Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for Oceans and Fisheries, US Department of State, made before the Subcommittee on Fisheries Conservation, Wildlife and Oceans of the Committee on Resources, US House of Representatives, 108th Congress, 2nd Session.

In the years leading up to the enactment of the treaty, 1975-1980, Canada's average albacore catch was less than 200 metric tons. This is obtained from catch data reported to the International Scientific Committee for Tuna and Tuna-like Species in the North Pacific Ocean.

The treaty was enacted in 1981. Despite the treaty provisions, data on the Canadian fishery effort in the US EEZ has proven difficult to obtain. Some logbook data on the Canadian fishery is contained in a report entitled Economic Potential for Offshore Highly Migratory Species, by D. Pepper & Associates, prepared for the BC Seafood Sector Council in May 2001. This report was distributed by the Canadian DFO & the BCTFA. In combination with data submitted to the ISC in its report on the 2006 and 2007 Canadian North Pacific Albacore Tuna Troll Fisheries, by John Holmes and Max Stocker, Department of Fisheries and Oceans, Canada, it appears that Canada's albacore fishery underwent a significant expansion in the mid-1990s. This expansion took place in conjunction with the significant increase in effort by the Canadian fleet, which US fishermen had experienced first-hand.

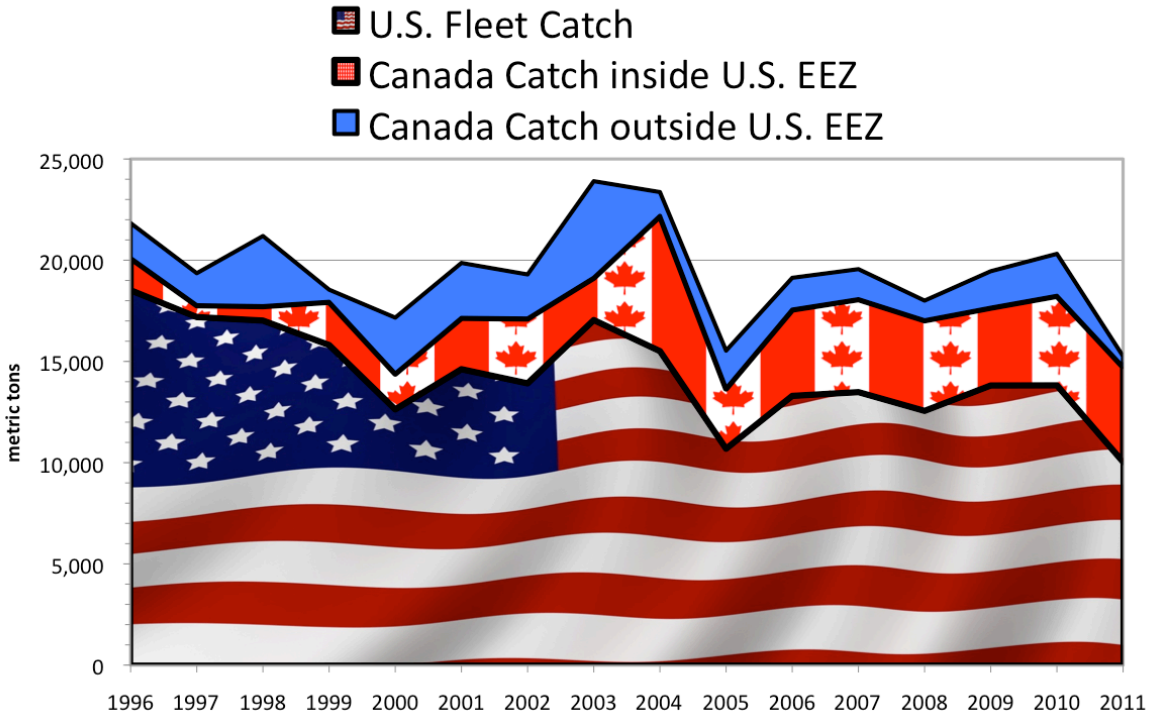

From the enactment of the treaty in 1981 through 1992, Canada's effort was relatively steady. Canada's albacore catch averaged 156 metric tons from 1981 through 1992. In 1993, Canada's albacore catch climbed to 494 metric tons. 1993 was Canada's largest harvest since 1979.

However, 1994 saw the Canadian albacore catch increase even more. In 1994, Canada's catch skyrocketed to almost 2,000 metric tons. The following years, Canada continued this trend by harvesting 1,763 metric tons in 1995 and 3,316 metric tons in 1996. Canada's aggressive shift of excess capacity from its declining salmon fisheries into the albacore fishery was well underway.

Canada average levels of albacore catch

	all zones	US EEZ	pre-1998
1981-1992 (12 yrs)	156 mt
1993-1997 (5 yrs)		462 mt
1981-1997 (17 yrs)			< 246 mt

From the enactment of the treaty in 1981 to 1997 (the last of the "pre-1998" period), 17 years of treaty fishing took place. Recognizing that Canada's level of fishing from 1981 through 1992 is reflected by a total fishery average (in all zones) of 156 metric tons. From 1993 through 1997, Canada's level of fishing in the US EEZ (only) averaged 462 metric tons. Combining these averages yields a pre-1998 average level of fishing of 246 metric tons. Canada's average level of fishing under the treaty amendment should not have been allowed to more than slightly exceed this pre-1998 average level of 246 metric tons.

Inadequate Treaty Implementation

When Congress adopted the Magnuson-Stevens Act in 1976, one key objective was the elimination of foreign fishing in US waters. The Act has been largely effective. This treaty fishery is the only foreign fishery operating in the US EEZ. It is worth considering that inadequate monitoring and enforcement of this treaty has allowed the US albacore fishery to decline while enabling a foreign fishing fleet to increase its operations within the US EEZ.

The treaty's Annex A includes specific requirements that would allow accurate monitoring of the foreign fleet fishing in the US EEZ. The US and Canada are required to exchange and approve detailed vessel lists in order to enable the albacore fishery to proceed pursuant to the treaty. AAFA has sought, unsuccessfully, to obtain copies of these vessel lists in order to facilitate assessment of the treaty and development of potential proposals toward resolution of the treaty issues.

Annex A also requires vessels of the foreign fishing fleet to keep accurate logs while fishing pursuant to the treaty. The recent activities of the Data Working Group have revealed that, for much of the treaty's existence, this provision has not been effectively implemented or enforced against Canadian vessels that fish in the US EEZ.

The legislation implementing the treaty, Public Law 108-219, title IV, § 401, April 13, 2004, 118 Stat. 616, provided that that Magnuson-Stevens Fishery Conservation and Management Act (16 USC. 1801 et seq.) shall be enforced as if the treaty were part of the Act.

Despite these regulations, the HMS Fishery Management Plan reported in 2002 that "implementation of the treaty has been sporadic." Furthermore, it noted that "...there have not been regular exchanges of data, nor has there been an effective monitoring program to determine the level of fishing..."

Despite express provisions in the treaty requiring the pre-season exchange of vessel lists, little data is available regarding which Canadian vessels were approved to fish in US waters each year. This lack of data has prolonged the unacceptable conditions experienced by US fishermen having to compete against an aggressive and growing foreign fleet operating in the US EEZ. Without the benefit of these vessel lists, US fishermen have been unable to identify and report treaty violations and illegal fishing by Canadian vessels in US waters.

In 2001, NMFS reported that during Technical Consultations on the treaty on November 20, 2000, the US and Canada agreed to "compile and exchange all national regulations relevant to the troll albacore fisheries and to make them available to the industry."[9] Despite numerous requests at delegation and bilateral meetings, this database of the applicable regulations of both parties has not been provided.

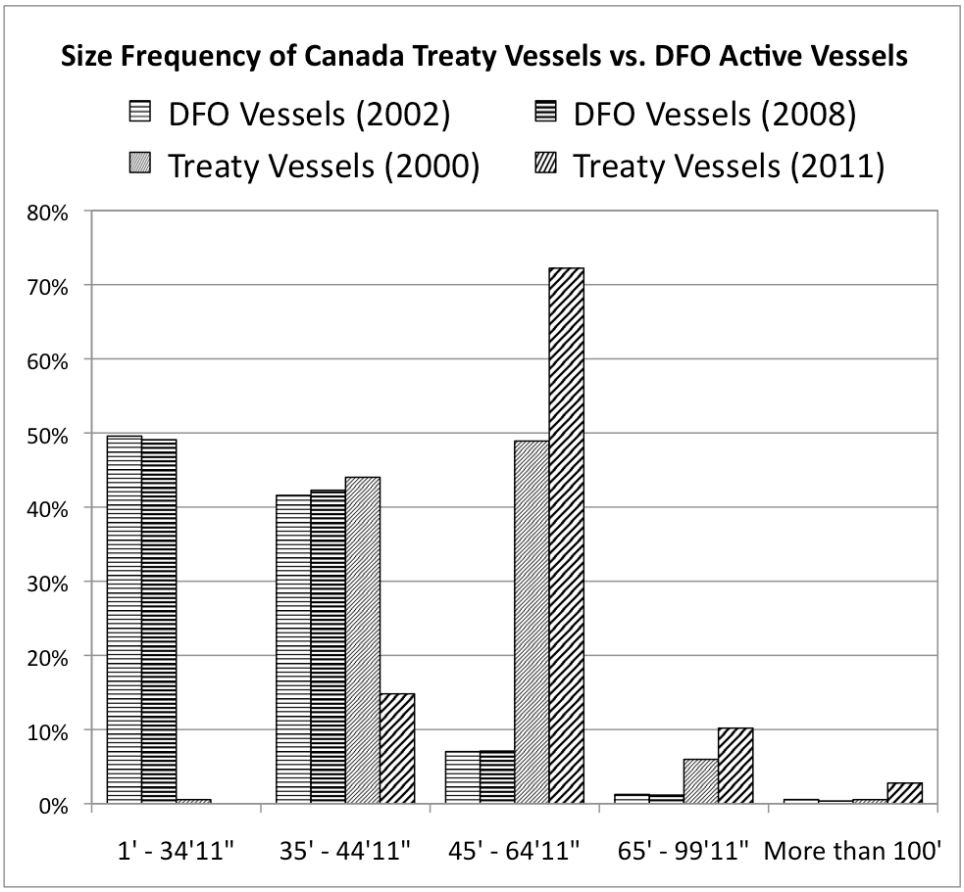

What little data is available regarding the Canadian fleet confirms that Canada's fishing vessels have significantly increased in size during the most recent period of the treaty, from 2000 to 2011. The foreign fleet has transformed from a fleet of smaller vessels to a fleet of significantly larger vessels, with a particularly large increase in vessels over 80 feet.

In addition, the available data suggests that the Canadian albacore fishery has been a significant source of expansion among active fishing vessels in the Canadian fleet. Canadian fleet records for active fishing vessels indicate that Canada's commercial fishing fleet has remained fairly stable in recent years. In marked contrast, there has been significant increase in the size of Canadian albacore fleet vessels.

[9] Technical Consultation with Canada on the US-Albacore Treaty, November 20, 2000, PFMC Exhibit E.1.a, March 2001.

When reviewing these changes in vessel length, it is important to note that vessel capacity increases much more rapidly than length. Increasing a vessel's length by 10 feet may produce a vessel with twice the capacity. This important aspect of increased effort was not considered.

It should be noted that the Canadian albacore fleet has undergone growth and expansion quite unique among Canadian commercial fisheries and quite unlike the US albacore fleet.

Need for reconsideration of treaty

By employing treaty negotiations to develop management measures, the State Department is in effect, managing the US fishery without adhering to the national policies and requirements embodied by the Magnuson Act. The treaty operates to deprive US albacore fishermen of the Act's provisions established specifically to protect US fishermen from foreign fleets.

The Magnuson Act allows foreign fleets access to under-utilized stocks in the US EEZ under carefully prescribed circumstances that ensure necessary protections are provided for US fishermen. The albacore treaty has denied US fishermen these protections for too long. In considering this treaty it should be kept in mind that "while economic effects must be taken into account, such effects were not meant to trump the real purpose of the Act, which is to preserve and protect US fisheries."[10]

NMFS has identified the US albacore fishery among the top 20 fisheries having excess capacity. The US fleet has ample capacity to replace any albacore landings by Canadian vessels. The 2012 fishing season proves insightful in this regard. In 2012, without having to compete alongside Canadian vessels in the US EEZ, the efficiency of US albacore vessels appears to have increased substantially, perhaps by 30 percent. If 2012 is any indication; the Canadian fleet operating in the US EEZ has had a significant negative impact on the operations of the US fleet.

Under the treaty, Canada increased its fishing effort in the US EEZ at the expense of US fishermen. As long as the US fleet has excess capacity, there is no good reason to allow a foreign fleet to benefit from fishing in the US EEZ.

Considering all of the above, we strongly believe there is no reason to proceed with negotiations for a fishing regime for 2013.

Sincerely,

Natalie Webster

Subject: USA/Canadian tuna treaty
Dear Dr. McIsaac,

Our names are Kyle and kathryn Vanderpool. We have been high seas albacore fishermen for 50years. We own and operate the F/V Pursuit, a medium sized jig vessel of 60ft over all. We are still actively going to sea, and have albacore as our ONLY fishery now.

Ours is a 3 generation commercial fishing vessel, actively supporting 3 families.

We fully support a USA/Canadian fishing regime for the 2013 albacore tuna fishing season.

As to conditions on the albacore fishing grounds. We can only speak to our particular sea time and experience.

Crowding, yes it does occur. However, we find that USA pole and line vessels are as overt if not more so than Canadian towards the jig vessels. (note we are a jig vessel)

Markets, it has been our experience that the Canadian markets are healthier than USA. We feel that the USA buyers have been pushed to better prices when they know the Canadians are offering a better price. This when they know we can easily take our albacore into a Canadian port for delivery. The cost of trucking our product from a USA port to a buyer in Canada is prohibitive.

Albacore coming through the Canadian markets is viewed by many buyers as being superior in quality. (not necessarily the truth, but the perception). We have in the past been able to avail ourselves of the broader playing field by taking our albacore for delivery into Canada. We appreciate our USA buyers, we just need to receive the best price possible for all the effort and financial outlay we incur harvesting the albacore.

Albacore tuna is a highly migratory specie. We have personally fished the Canadian EEZ over the years. While in recent years, the albacore has been primarily off the coasts of Washington and Oregon coasts, it will eventually cycle back north. It is our view that many of the USA fishermen are short sighted, limiting their future harvest to only the USA EEZ. Many of the participants now, were only youngsters when we fished the far northern coast, an thus just lack the first hand knowledge of how very fruitful the Canadian EEZ can be to an albacore vessel.

We feel strongly that whatever fish is harvested in the USA EEZ, no matter the country of the vessel catching, should be counted in future negotiations as USA harvest. Conversely any fish harvested in the Canadian EEZ, no matter the country of origin of the vessel, should be counted in the annual harvest for future negotiations as Canadian harvest.

Although we realize that Council does not make policy wherein International Agreements are the purview of the USA Department of State, we urge you to endorse a position from the Council's perspective that a USA/Canadian albacore treaty would be healthy for the 2013 season.

Thank you in advance for your time and attention.

Respectfully,

Kyle and kathryn Vanderpool

Re: Agenda Item I.3.c – US-Canada Albacore Treaty: Recommendations for Future Negotiations

Dear Mr. Chairman and Council members:

The American Albacore Fishing Association would like to express its sincere gratitude to this Council for its recognition of US fishermen's concerns and the need to protect US albacore fishermen from a foreign fleet operating in the US Exclusive Economic Zone (EEZ).

This chart depicts Canada's albacore fishery from 1981-1997. The chart reflects Canada's fishery data submitted to the ISC and used in the North Pacific albacore stock assessments.

The treaty was enacted in 1981. At that time, Canada's albacore fishery consisted of several dozen Canadian vessels and annual landings of some 200 metric tons of albacore.[1] As you can see in this chart, up until the mid-90s, Canadian effort under the treaty was relatively stable.

In the mid 1990's, Canada's fleet aggressively expanded its fishery, including its effort in the US EEZ. Many Canadian salmon trollers were encouraged to convert over to fishing albacore in the US EEZ. With its government's assistance, the Canadian fleet was transformed into a larger, more aggressive, and highly competitive fleet.

In 1998, US fishermen were able to get the attention of the State Department. With the growing inequity of the treaty and crowding on the grounds, the US entered into negotiations with Canada in order to reduce Canadian fishing effort in US waters. The resulting 2002 treaty amendment sought to reduce Canadian effort back to the pre-1998 average level of fishing.[2]

That pre-1998 average is shown on this chart by the black dashed line. It is worth noting that between 1992 and the 2002 treaty amendment, the Canadian fishery had already increased over 580%.[3]

The treaty amendment was approved by Congress and signed by the President in 2004. In presenting the treaty amendment before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, the State Department explained that this significant reduction in Canada's fishing effort was necessary to protect US fishermen. There was no mention of protecting other economic interests or other fishery relations. The reduction of Canada's effort to the pre-1998 average level was necessary to protect US fishermen.

US fishermen are still seeking that protection. The reduction in Canadian effort that was necessary in the 1990s was never achieved. The treaty was amended, but the goals were not achieved. Congress has not reviewed the performance of the treaty amendment, but it is evident it was not successful at achieving its goals. In the decade that followed the amendment, Canada's fleet continued to increase operations in the US EEZ and continued to have significant negative impacts on US fishermen.

Since the treaty's fishing regime expired in 2011, US fishermen have not been idle. AAFA submitted to the State Department a framework proposal for developing future treaty options. No response or encouragement was received. Nonetheless, fishermen sought to obtain information that could facilitate progress. Unfortunately, requests to National Marine Fisheries Service were unproductive, despite a lengthy and costly process under the Freedom of Information Act. Even the most basic requests, such as for the annual Canadian vessel lists, required under the treaty, were denied.

AAFA commends the State Department for requesting that Canada produce its fleet's effort characterization data. That request was made in May 2012 but the data has not been provided.

The absence of data production by both parties has made it difficult to develop fact-based proposals that would achieve the required goals and provide the necessary certainty to protect US fishermen and restore the US albacore fishery.

[2] Statement of David A. Balton, Deputy Assistant Secretary of State for Oceans and Fisheries, US Department of State, made before the Subcommittee on Fisheries Conservation, Wildlife and Oceans of the Committee on Resources, US House of Representatives, 108th Congress, 2nd Session.

[3] The Overall State of Canada's Fishery in 2002, Department of Fisheries and Oceans (Dec. 2003).

It is important that the Council recognizes that the Data Working Group and the Economic Working Group were not created or tasked with evaluating the effectiveness of the required effort reduction. That important distinction was made very clear.

It is worth noting that, in the absence of the Canadian fleet, the US fleet had a most surprising 2012 season. Surprising because, as the 110 Canadian treaty vessels were barred from US waters, we saw US participation rebound with over 170 more US vessels. Even more surprising was how these US vessels fished without all the crowding, interference and aggression that characterized fishing under the treaty. The US catch also rebounded, despite a challenging season and a soft market. In fact, the US fleet more than made up for the landings of Canadian vessels. All of the catch was landed at US ports and sold through US buyers.

With the expiration of the treaty's last fishing regime, US fishermen have been afforded a glimpse of what they had hoped the treaty amendment would have provided a decade ago.

During the 2012 season, US fishermen experienced first hand the amount of effort reduction necessary to ensure that a foreign fleet does not harm US fishermen. Most every US fishermen is convinced that keeping Canadian vessels out of the US EEZ is essential for the future of this fishery. After so many years of struggling under an oppressive treaty regime, there is little if any tolerance for keeping the treaty.

Letters are arriving from ports, even including authorized treaty ports, offloading facilities, fuel companies, trucking companies, albacore processors and buyers, recreational charter fleets, and a broad range of businesses, expressing their support for US albacore fishermen and their opposition to negotiations of a future fishing regime.

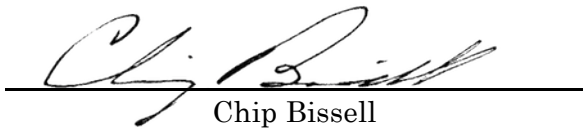

In summary, we strongly believe the treaty amendment has not been effectively implemented, monitored, or enforced, and the treaty has considerable negative impacts on US fishermen.

There is a pressing need to protect US albacore fishermen and protect this important US fishery. Sound policies at the foundation of the Magnuson Act direct that foreign fishing should be removed from US waters.

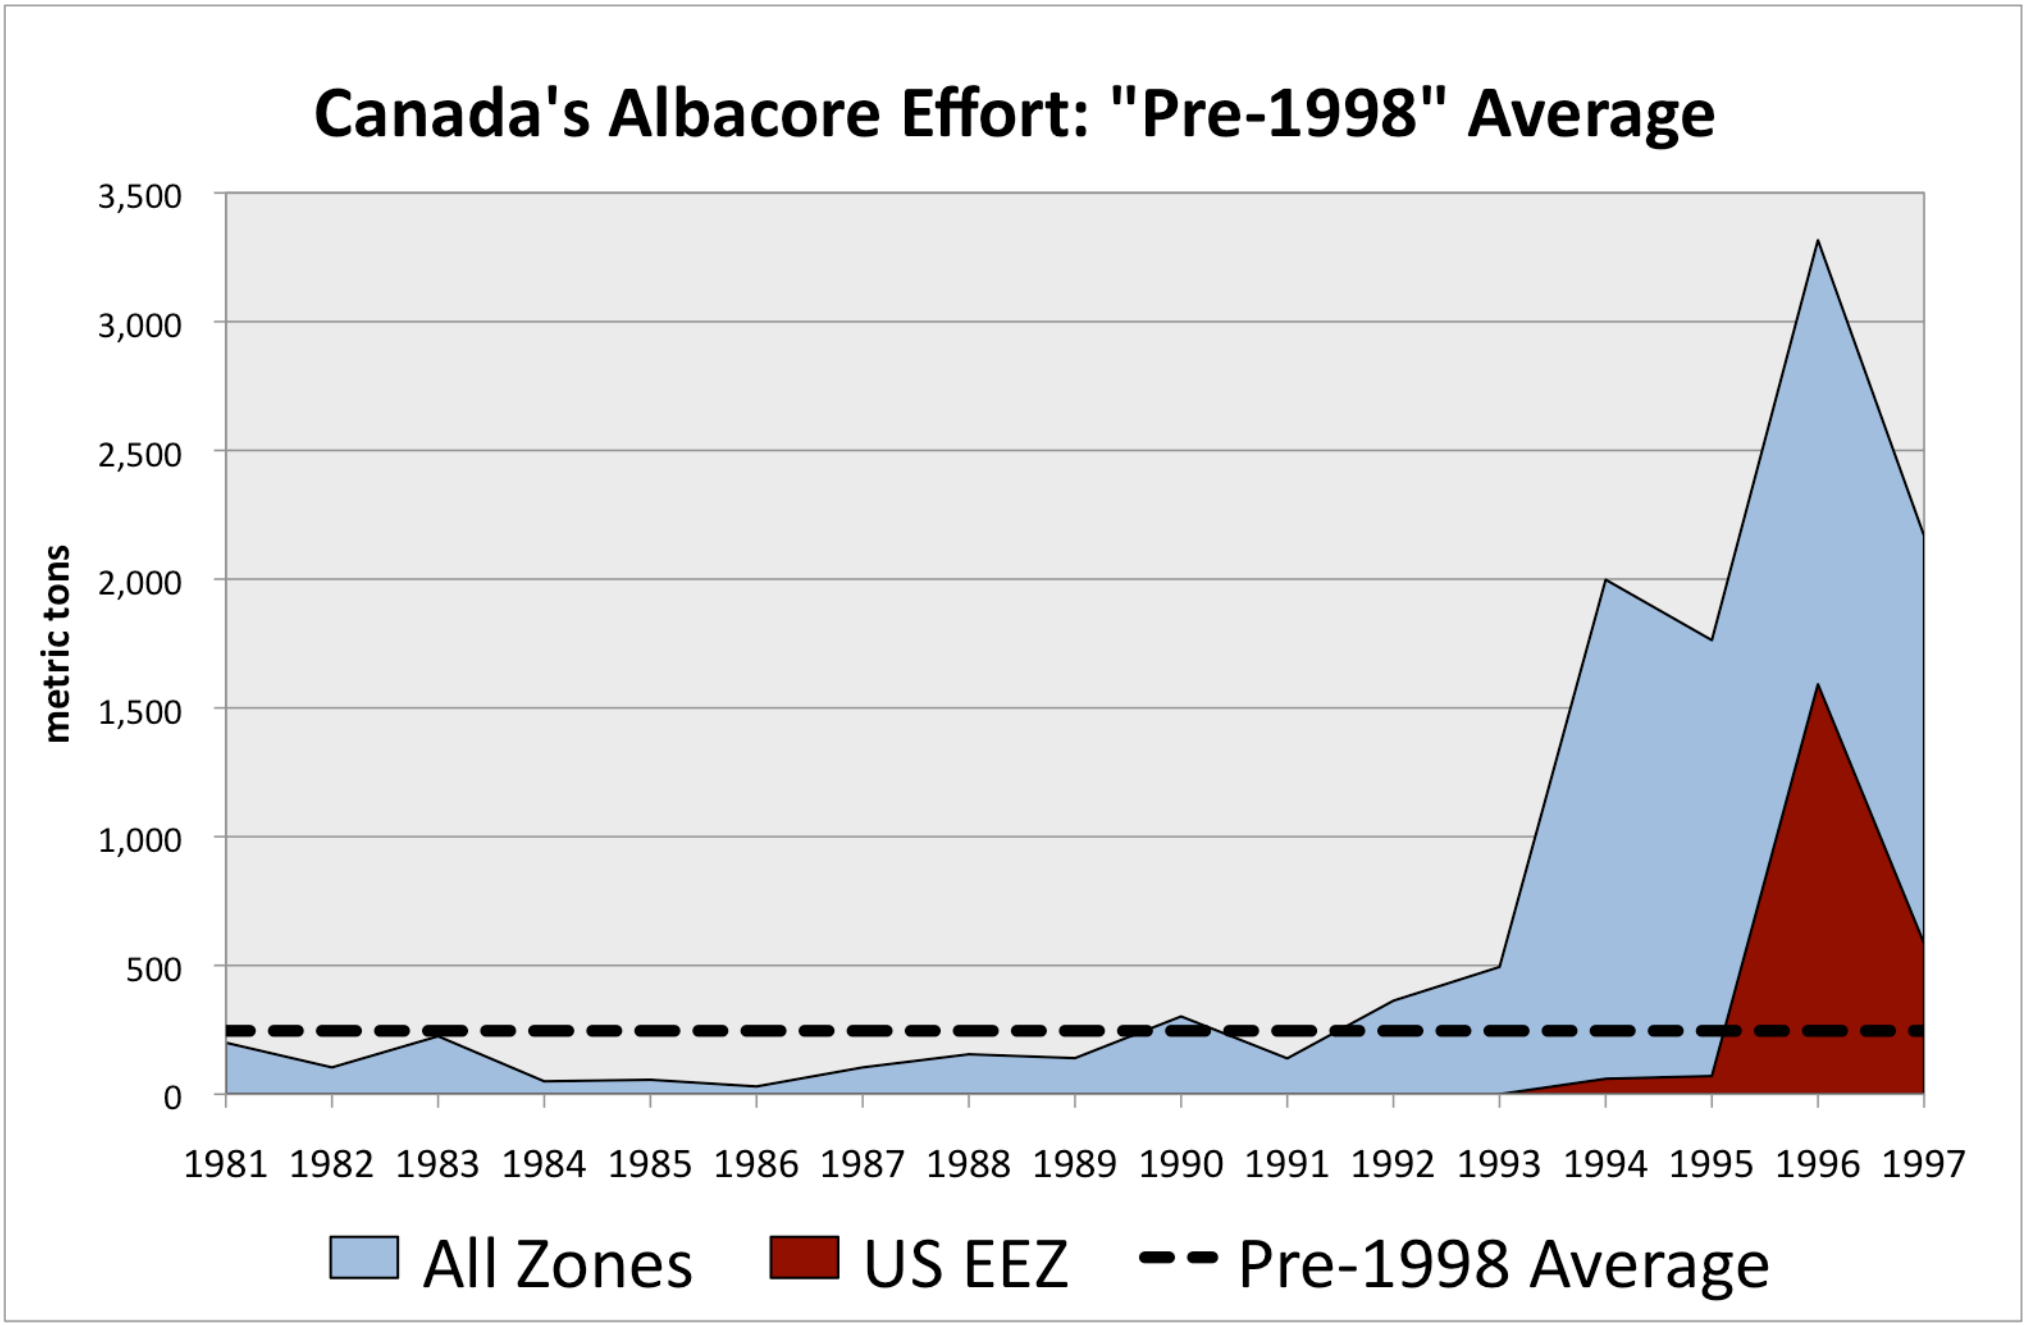

We ask the Council to recommend the State Department not proceed with negotiations for any future fishing regime.

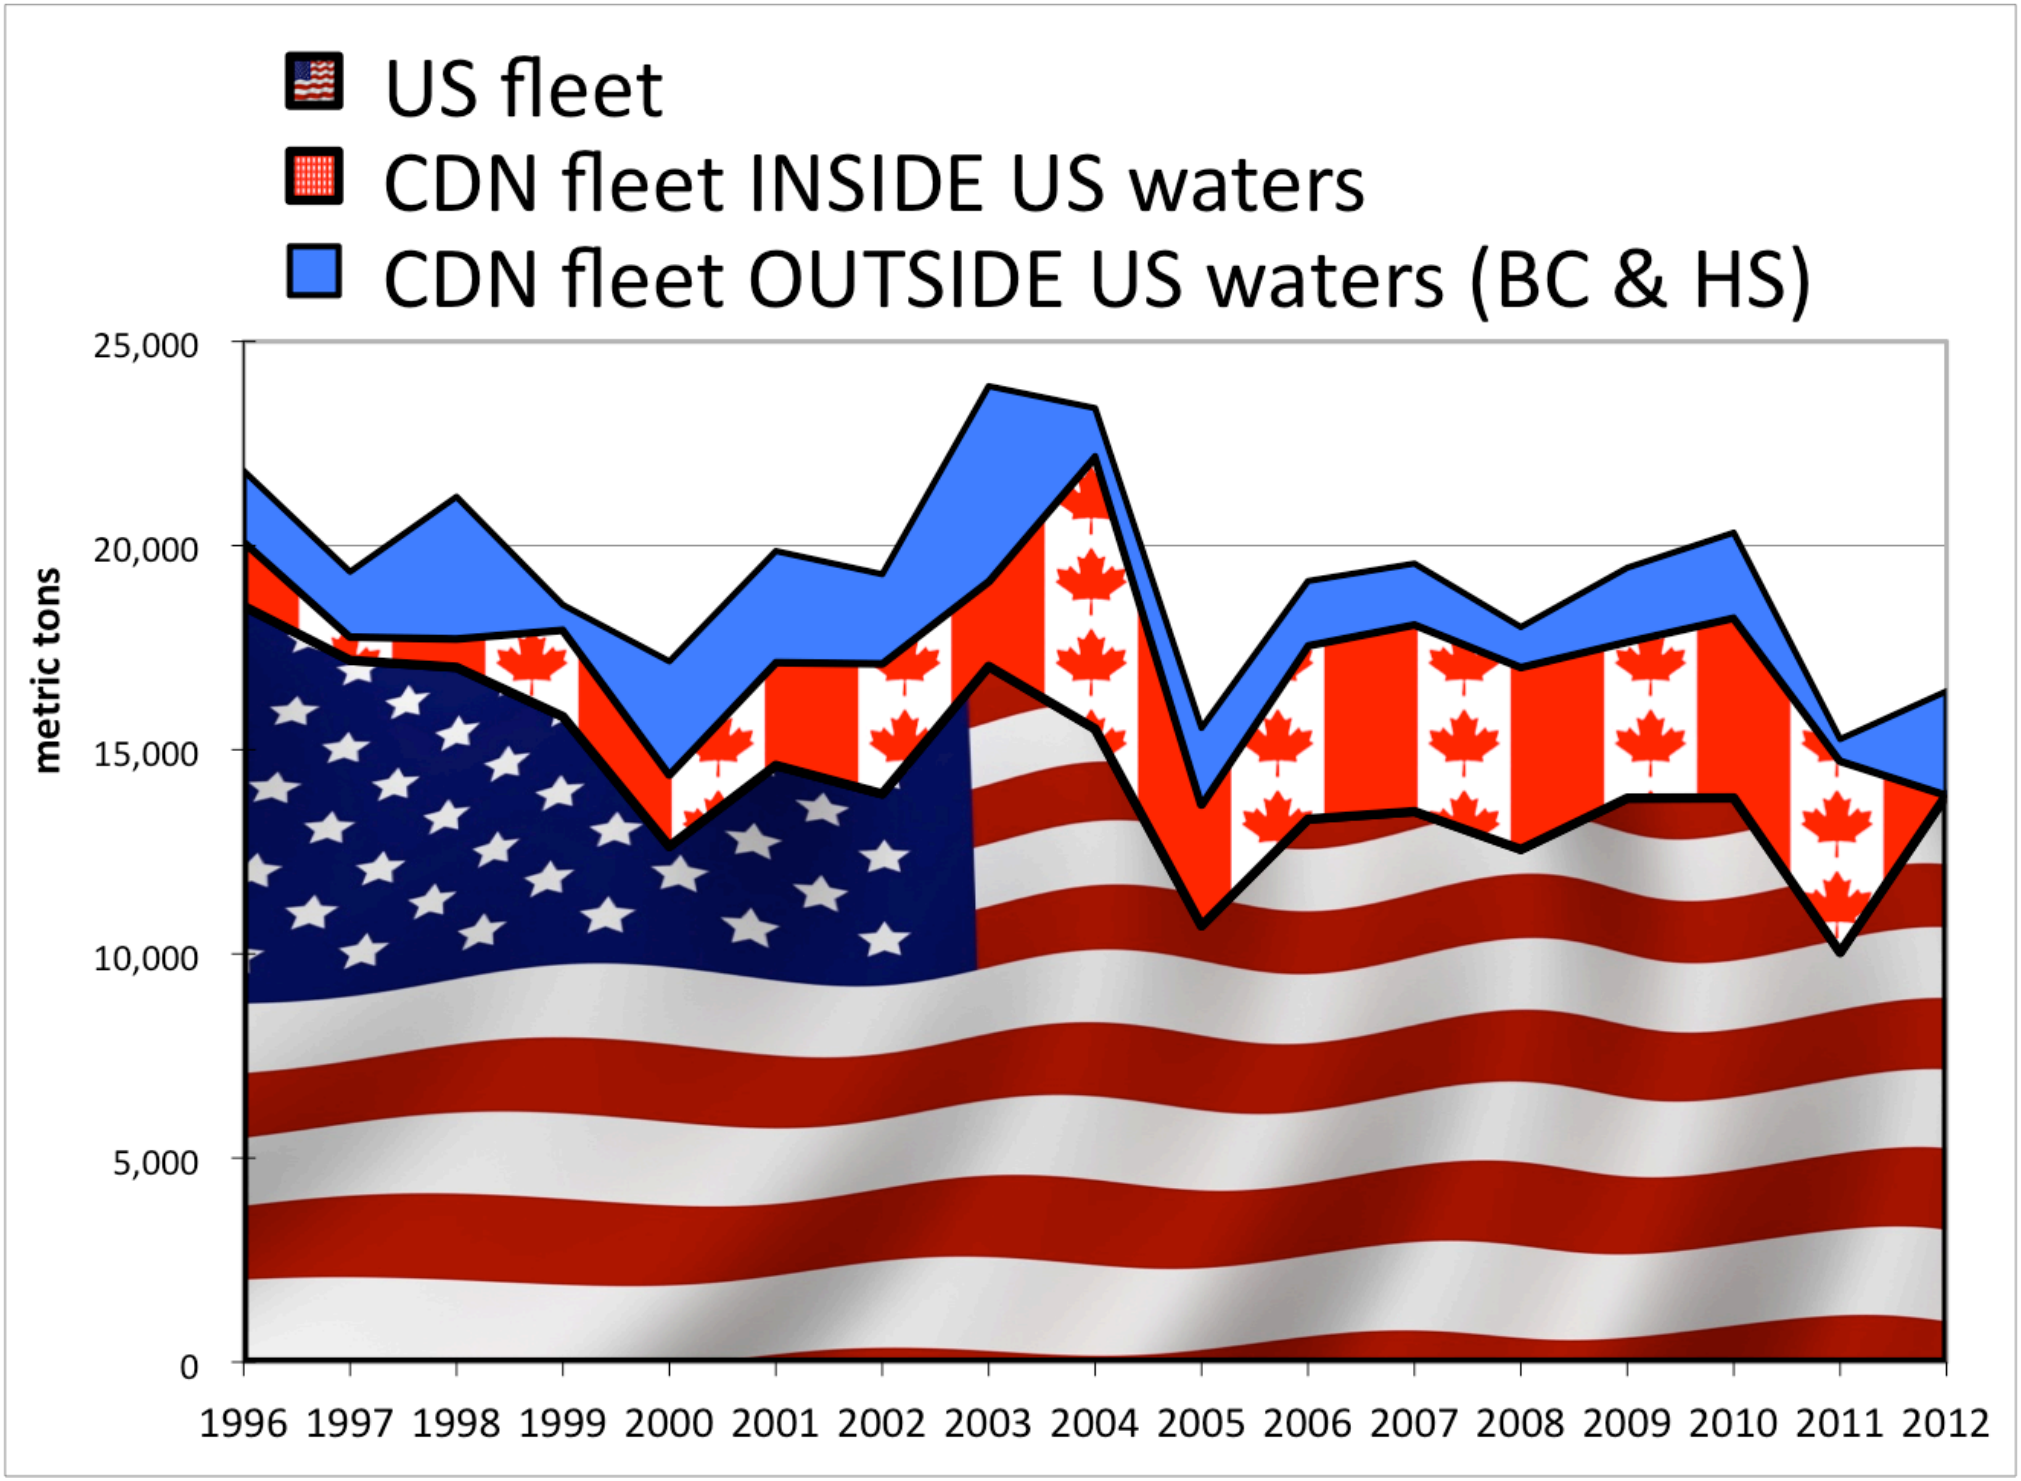

We thank you for your support of US albacore fishermen and this historic fishery.

Sincerely,

Mr. Dave F. Hogan, Deputy Director

Dear Mr. Hogan,

I am a U.S. fisherman who has been fishing albacore in the Pacific Northwest for the past fifty-four years. My father began fishing albacore here in the 1930's and now both my sons fish albacore, one on his own vessel and the other with me on my boat Nightwind.

I was present when Canada and then the U.S. established EEZ's which in turn led to the US-Canadian Albacore Treaty. Initially there were equal benefits to both nations fishermen. Even though the US fleet only spent occasional periods of time in Canadian waters the US fleet was much larger in both number and size while most of the Canadian vessels were salmon style wooden trollers of eight to twelve ton capacity with owner operators.

In the three subsequent decades the Canadian vessels grew in both size and numbers with many owner operators being replaced by more aggressive lease captains. During this same period there appears to be a shift in albacore populations centering more on the Oregon coast making any benefit to the US fishermen negligible compared to the burdens of fishing with the Canadian fleet in the US EEZ.

The disparity in the landings of the two nations fleet in each others EEZ is clear evidence of this, as was the US fleets experience last season without the burden of the Canadian fleet in our waters. The universal consensus I heard from the US vessels was that even though the numbers of albacore present last season were average at best, the fishing was much more productive, safer and less stressful because of the lack of Canadian presence. Personally, it was our best season in fifty-four years even with less days on the grounds. These albacore grounds appear to cover a large area while in reality the fish concentrate in commercial quantities only in finite areas along water temp edges and current streaks.

If these schools of fish are harassed or plowed over and over by boats, the schools are broken up and won't bite. This is especially true of our fishing method in which we use live bait and must entice the schools within a few feet of the boat. The Canadian fleets tend to cluster in very tight formations on these edges disturbing these schools of fish and making what the US boats feel is unsafe overcrowding. It is extremely frustrating to be forced out of a prime fishing area by a foreign fleet in your own country's waters using this carpet bombing, saturation fishing method. After experiencing the freedom of fishing our own waters without conflicts with the Canadian fleet regressing to the turmoil of past seasons will be unbearable.

As to any claimed benefit of Canadian vessels in US ports, my vessels catch was significantly increased by the non presence of Canadians in US waters and 100% of our fish proceeds are churned back into the economies of Washington, Oregon and California. All of our fish are landed in US ports across US docks and sold through US buyers. All of our fuel, repairs, moorage, parts and food are purchased here, taxes paid here and profits invested and paid here. My vessel alone supports three families, one in Washington, one in Oregon and one in California plus two single crewmen.

With the changes in the Canadian fleet and operators and the different migration patterns of the albacore that has taken place over the last thirty years, the US-Canadian treaty has become a clear detriment to both the US fishermen and local US economies and the Canadians access should not be reinstated.

Respectfully,

Stan D. Davis

To whom it may concern,

I have been a commercial albacore fisherman for forty years and although I have participated in other fisheries throughout my career, albacore has always been my main fishery and source of income. I am writing this letter in regards to the continuing negotiations involving access for the Canadian Albacore Fleet to U.S. waters.

With the virtually unanimous position of the actual participants in the fishery and the overwhelming input from the supporting infrastructure favoring no access for the Canadian fleet, it should be clear what is in the best interest of the U.S. Albacore Fleet. So in light of the apparent effort and energy still being devoted to negotiating access for Canadian Vessels, I have to ask myself why? The only conclusion I can come to is that our own government is in fact not looking out for our best interest.

Why should we have our ability to make a living for our families and crew compromised by direct competition from a foreign fleet in our own backyard? I don't see what is so hard to follow, we the U.S. Fishermen want to fish in our own territorial waters, and have the Canadian Fleet fish in theirs. It really is that simple. As I see it anything else at this point amounts to my own government bargaining with my livelihood for some other dubious agenda. So again I find myself asking why? What is the real agenda and what is really going on here? I am concerned that the albacore fishery and its management is being considered in the same manner as other fisheries with joint Canadian concerns, such as salmon and ground fish. I am just a fisherman not a biologist but if this is what is going on, I see no valid correlation whatsoever. There should be no comparisons drawn between harvesting coastal stocks sharing territorial waters and a migratory pelagic species like albacore. This isn't a fish that was spawned in a Canadian river, spends part of it's life cycle in U.S. water and returns to Canada. Unlike salmon and ground fish albacore have no nation of origin. Harvest quotas and stock numbers are not the issue here. What is the issue is our ability to fish in our own EEZ without direct competition from a foreign fleet, the fundamental reason that an Exclusive Economic Zone was established in the first place.

Is our neighbor to the north trying to leverage cooperation and considerations regarding other fisheries in order to maintain access to our EEZ? Perhaps I am reading too much into all this, and apologies if I am, but it appears to me that the Canadian Government negotiates as aggressively and arrogantly, as it's albacore fleet fishes. They seem all too eager to subvert sound biological management in other fisheries in order to achieve their goals. With these fisheries so fundamentally different from the albacore fishery, this would almost seem to be a form of blackmail. I can only hope that those in a position to affect this issue would have the wisdom and integrity to realize the difference and act accordingly to protect this unique fishery.

The albacore fishery should not be viewed as a minor fishery and a useful bargaining chip. Its value extends far beyond dollar figures and catch rates. It isn't just the full time Albacore Fleet that is being impacted and compromised by the pressure and overcrowding on the fishing grounds. Virtually every boat that fishes crab, salmon, bottom fish or shrimp, has at one time or another also fished for albacore. This is an intangible that should not be viewed lightly. Our coastal albacore fishery helps feed the core health and vitality of the entire West Coast Fleet. We work here, create jobs here, pay taxes and vote here. This should count for something. The income and opportunity this fishery generates should take precedence over providing a dumping ground and escape valve for the over capitalization of the Canadian Fleet.

Thank you for your time,

Mr. Hogan,

I'm a 66 yr old fisherman having spent 50 yr @ sea feeding our nation. Our boat is a family operation, for a future survival of this industry in the U S we need to contain our EEZ to Americans. I gave 3 yr of my life and a lot of blood serving our country in the military I have a son with 20 plus yr serving our country another son planning to continue our family operation at sea. This is a disturbing and disgusting mess that needs to be corrected by our government NOW. We want our EEZ to be for Americans only.

Dear Mr. Hogan,

I am a 50 year veteran, 3rd generation tuna fisherman. I own and operate our family Albacore fishing vessel 'Her Grace', which supports 6 separate families who pay taxes and support our local economy. Thus includes fuel, provisions, repairs and maintenance in the United States.

I am writing this letter in support and agreement of my fellow U.S. fisherman and stake holders that the Canadian Treaty has become a detriment to the American Albacore Fisherman.

We should not have to compete in the U.S. EEZ with a foreign fleet period. This directly impacts my livelihood and my future. Especially at a time the whole world is protecting their own recourses.

Let's be positive about promoting a healthily U.S. fishery and economy.

In my opinion, the Canadians have shown no respect for the treaty or good will towards the U.S. fisherman.

Thanks you for listening.

"The Big Picture"

RE: US - Canadian Albacore Treaty
TO: Pacific Fisheries Management Council

Dear Council members, my name is John Harder & I am a long time albacore fisherman with lots of history as it is my heritage…
I ask you to step out of the box for just a few moments and take a serious look at the overall Tuna situation regarding international affairs & our albacore tuna treaty.

There is a Tuna Treaty called the South Pacific Tuna Treaty (SPTT) that is also being renegotiated, and in trouble. This Tuna treaty started in 1988 and allowed 40 US Super Purse Seine Tuna vessels access to all Pacific Island nation's waters for 21 million dollars for rent and aid. This seems like a lot of money but is only a drop in the bucket compared to what other nations pay for the rights to fish in territorial waters of the Island nations. This was a great advantage to the US tuna seine vessels as they could go from one country to the next without having to stop fishing. This also allowed tuna caught in foreign waters full access to the US markets bearing our US brand names, and the "dolphin safe" label. None of these purse seine vessels target Albacore tuna.

In 1982, a group of 18 Island nations formed Parties to the Nauru Agreement (PNA) to help develop and promote local fisheries. By 1990's the PNA fisheries were facing collapse of two out of four major tuna species, Big-eye & yellowfin. Early efforts to control fish catches in the 1990s by limiting the number of fishing vessels were in vain as the vessels got larger & the size of nets increased with production.

In 2007, the PNA developed a new strategy to combat over fishing by establishing the Vessel Day Scheme (VDS). Each PNA member receives a fixed number of fishing days according to its share of biomass of tuna. Each member can reserve the days for its domestic fisheries, or sell them to outside fishing nations. Over all this VDS conservation measure has been largely successful & in 2012 received a sustainable certification from Marine Stewardship Council (MSC). The PNA is now the largest sustainable tuna fishery in the world.

In May, 2011, Papua New Guinea announced it was giving 1 years notice to withdraw from the treaty. 18 parties have scrambled to give new life to the agreement.

The biggest problem with the SPTT treaty is that it has not adopted the FDS and seems stuck on capping number of US vessels at 40. The Pacific Islands rightfully complain that the system could contribute to over fishing. The US purse seine fleet has dwindled to 14 registered vessels, but the US has made the controversial decision to allow 25 Taiwanese vessels to purchase the right to use the US as a "flag of convenience" in order to get around the FDS. This is not in the best interest of conservation!

Another problem is about the money. As everything is now equated to "fishing days", US pays $1,800 per fishing day under the FDS witch comes from the 21 million dollars. This sum is greatly undervalued compared to the $6,050 per day paid by Japan. The imbalance is magnified because US ships can follow the fish across international borders. In recent talks, US offered 58 million dollars for 9,000 fishing days but the Island nations want 60 million dollars for 7,000 fishing days…

Even though this treaty says nothing about albacore tuna, albacore tuna is the leading seller of tuna in our US market today. US purse seine vessels do not target albacore tuna. 99.9% of all albacore sold in the US under US major brands comes from foreign countries that benefit by this treaty. The Major US brands, "Chicken of the Sea", "Starkist", and "Bumble Bee Tuna" are now owned by foreign countries. One of these countries being Canada. These brands have stopped buying any major amount of albacore tuna from local US fishermen since 1985.This is in direct competition to our US albacore fisheries and forces us US albacore fishermen to market our fish on our own & in foreign countries like Europe.

On the other side of the spectrum, after the United Nations requested a BAN on driftnets in international waters in 1989, US joined up with 4 other nations to form the Northern Comity (NC). The NC formed a task force to stop this destructive method of fishing. The only draw back was that the NC did not use enforcement equally between the catching of Salmon as to the catching of Albacore, making the latter a lesser crime and therefore not to seize the offending vessels, or press charges against the offenders with albacore, but to simply release them to their flag state authorities. The US then entered negotiations with China, the leading known offending nation, to make up a "moratorium" on driftnets. As it stands today, this moratorium continues, and has not deterred the IUU driftnets from fishing for albacore tuna. This "moratorium has killed our US & Canadian "off shore" fishery…

The US department of state, threw international treaties, and agreements, have taken away our US markets, & our fish.

Council members, please send a strong message to our US department of State to make a treaty that will benefit the US albacore fishermen like the SPTT does for our US purse seine vessels. Compensation, subsidies, & proper protection is needed for our off shore albacore fleet. If the main goal in the US & Canada albacore treaty was to promote sustainable fishing (MSC), as both nations share this new eco-label instead of trying to figure out the number of vessels allowed to fish inside the EEZ's, there would be unity instead of division.

I hope I have made he intentions of the US dep. Of states clear. It is to benefit other nations, as international trade is for the industry that is abroad, and only takes away from our local economy and fishermen.

It is urgent that we stand together to support sustainable fishing! We have the MSC label. It is the best option available and should not be criticized, but honored!! Save the criticism for the "dolphin safe" standard, as it must be replaced.

If there is Canadian vessels fishing in US waters this year of 2013 without some kind of "off-shore" aid for both US and Canadian vessels, there will not be peace on the water front! I hope I have made myself clear.

Thank you for your time and attention in this matter.
Regards, John-boy

Dear Sir:

My name is Waylon Blocker. I fish on my father's commercial fishing vessel the 'Her Grace'. I am a 4th generation fisherman and have been fishing since I was 7 years old. I am now 27. I have seen personally the impact that the Canadian fishing fleet has had on our fisheries.

I am recently married and have also just purchased my first home. Any compromise with the Canadians would severely jeopardize my family's income and livelihood.

Mr. Hogan, please consider the livelihood of the 'American Fisherman' and their families by keeping the Canadians out of our U.S. EEZ.

Sincerely,

Dear Mr. Hogan, Chairman and members of the council. I've been fishing Albacore since 1980. I presently own, am the owner and operator of, a commercial albacore vessel. I have owned and operated the vessel since 1996.

The US/Canadian treaty has been allowed to become something not intended. The Canadian fleet has grown in physical size, and brazenness on the goodwill that the US has shown during the treaty process. This has done nothing but create ill will and has put undo stress on the US fisherman that fish for albacore in the US EEZ.

The suspension of the US/Canadian treaty for the 2012 season opened the eyes of all US fisherman that participate in the fishery. They were able to experience fishing in their EEZ without the pressure of another country's fleet competing with them. The consensus by the harvesting sector for termination of the US/Canadian albacore regime is overwhelming.

The Canadians at the expense of US fisherman, and ultimately the US as a whole have exploited every major aspect of the treaty. The undo pressure put on the albacore industry by the manipulation of all aspects of the treaty by Canada has gone far enough.

The fisherman, and the family's that make up the US/Pole and troll fishery are a true treasure. The Pole/Troll fishery, which US fisherman developed, should not have to support another country's fleet in our EXCULSIVE ECONOMIC ZONE.

Sincerely,

Jack Webster

Dear Sir:

I would like to thank you, sincerely, for allowing us the opportunity to fish albacore last season without Canadian interference. Production per day was up for us and nearly all other American fishermen we work with. Above all, it was much safer and more relaxed without the presence of the overly aggressive Canadian fleet.

I've been fishing albacore full time for the past 30 plus years and have at times watched the Canadian fleet push us right off our schools in our own waters. Now I'm in the process of training my 23 year old son to operate and fish our 62' F/V Captain Banjo. My son has fished with me full time since he was 18, and he shows the potential to take over the business at some point in the future. Is this foreign competition something we want to subject our next generation of fishermen to? I think it should end here and now.

It's hard to believe that once again you are considering letting the Canadians back into our economic exclusive zone. It will surely be much more difficult for our next generation to make a living albacore fishing with the unnecessary competition of a foreign fleet in our waters. When I first started fishing, we had very few Canadian interactions, as there were few Canadian boats and they tended to be small salmon trollers fishing part-time for albacore to supplement their incomes. Their presence then was not felt because it was minimal.

The dynamics and potential of the Canadian fleet have changed dramatically since those days. Now most of the vessels are large, full time albacore boats that fish very aggressively and rarely leave the grounds. I have gone to Canada to fish maybe twice, and I don't care if I ever go there again. As fishermen in America, we need more opportunities to support our own and teach our next generation to carry our torch into the future. What we don't need is foreign competition in our waters taking our jobs away from our citizens.

Thank you for the opportunity to express our opinions. We urge you, PLEASE, to completely discontinue the Canadian albacore treaty, create American jobs, and quit allowing foreigners access to our resources. Our continued existence into the next generation depends upon it.

Sincerely,

Skip McMaster

Dear Mr. Hogan,

Concerns I have with the United States – Canada Albacore Tuna Treaty begins with our own United States government. After hearing from the US Albacore Fisherman and how this is affecting them as citizens of the US. Why are you even putting an attempt in future negotiations with Canada? I am writing you this letter in hopes you will stand up and do what is being asked from those who are affected the most. Do not renew the fishing regime between the US/Canada Albacore Tuna. The US Albacore fisherman depends on your support.

After the fishing regime/treaty talks were unsuccessful between US/Canada 2012, the US processors, fishermen, and ports had a real feel of the Canadians not being here in the US EEZ. Each US individual that was once on the fence about the regime is now on the side of the US Albacore Fisherman. The US don't need them for our economy or do we want them to take any albacore from our US EEZ back to Canada for there economy.

What a good neighbor Canada is when all they can throw our way is threats. One of those of being closing their ports to US fisherman if we don't continue with the treaty. Canada is not willing to negotiate fairly they want it all or intimidation is thrown our way. I see Canada fighting to stay in the treaty and the US Albacore Fisherman wanting out of the treaty.

The whole world is in an economical downward spiral, and we should be helping our own US citizens first. It is very sad that our own US Albacore Fisherman have to defend themselves to our own government. It is taking tens of thousands of dollars to convince our own country to do what is right.

I am an Albacore Tuna Fisherman; I have been going up and down the US Pacific Coast for the past 60 years. I need to do everything in my power to convince our government to keep our fishery strong, for my son and grandsons that now fish on our family built tuna boat.

I have never depended on going to Canada EEZ to make a season. We went to Canada basically for the adventure; we didn't stay in Canada for very long. I don't care if we ever go back up there, I am sure that we will always make our season in our own US EEZ.

Thank you for taking the time to listen to my concerns over this issue.

Dear Mr. Hogan

I am a first generation albacore fisherman. I did not have the luxury of being handed a fishing operation nor shown how to develop a fishing operation. I got my start working on the sport boats of Westport, Washington at the young age of 13. Over the years, I have been involved in many different fisheries from California to Alaska. But albacore fishing has always been my real passion. I have been fishing albacore for 28 years. I bought my first boat to fish for albacore ten years ago.

The albacore fishery is one of the last true open access fisheries here on the west coast. I was able to buy a boat and get into this fishery because there was no need for a huge expense for gear and permits to start fishing. For a young guy looking to find a loan to get started, this is huge. The limiting factor of how big of a boat that I could buy relied solely on the amount of fish that I thought that I could catch. Competition with the Canadian fleet is a major factor in this equation.

This treaty does not allow Canadian processors to come down and share the processing capabilities of US albacore fishermen. Nor does it allow Canadian community businesses to do the same. But the treaty does allow Canadian fishermen to come into our EEZ and compete directly with me on the same schools of fish as me. It also allows me to do the same in their EEZ, if I so desire to do so. But I do not! The benefit of fishing their waters is far less beneficial than the crippling effect that the Canadian fleet has directly with me in competing for the same schools. Albacore Fishermen are directly affected by this treaty and everyone else is indirectly affected.

After being involved in this treaty process for the last two years, I have seen how hard the Canadians have pushed to try and get back into our EEZ. I also have seen fishermen that were on the fence about this treaty and some who were for reciprocal fishing turn their views towards termination of the fishing regime indefinitely. I think that after our break with Canada during the 2012 season, all fishermen views changed. Some became more solid in their opposition to reciprocal fishing, and some just finally saw clearly the inequities that we have been dealing with for so long.

I truly feel that after seeing how hard the Canadians have tried to keep their presence in our EEZ, there is no doubt in my mind that if a shift in migration patterns did change from what it has been for as long as it has been recorded, Canada would throw us out of their EEZ! Thus I feel we have to do what is best for the US albacore fishery and terminate the fishing regime indefinitely!

Dear Mr. Hogan,

Thank you for an opportunity to express my opposition to the American/Canadian Albacore Treaty.

I have been a commercial Albacore fisherman since 1969. In the years I have fished, I have firsthand knowledge of how the Albacore Treaty came about and the reason for it.

I now view this treaty agreement as being lopsided in which it favors a displaced Canadian fleet. When the treaty was enacted originally I believe it was of mutual benefit to both American and Canadian fishermen. As the years have passed, the American Fleet has experienced an ever increasing effort by the Canadians. The Canadian harvest is estimated to be 5,000-6,000 st of Albacore from the U.S. EEZ annually. This represents at 2011 prices, $16,000,000-$21,000,000 in Lost Opportunity for AMERICAN FISHERMEN. During this time fishing opportunities have dwindled for the American Fleet along the West Coast, the Albacore Fishery has become very important to fishing families in order to survive and provide jobs in a difficult economic climate.

I have personally lost my market in years past, because my buyer had purchased the entire product he needed that year from Canadian vessels. I find it outrageous that, not only do I have to compete on the fishing grounds with a Foreign Fleet, but I also when I come to the dock to unload I have to compete to unload my product!

I believe without this Treaty and without fish taken out of OUR EEZ, we would see an increase in the American Fleet's catch and value.

Thank you again.

This letter is to confirm that I inadvertently voted for the Canadian treaty on a online petition. I am adamantly apposed to any Pacific albacore treaty with Canada.

As you know I have fished albacore for over 45 years .I fish my 87 foot 116 gross ton pole & line vessel "Royal Dawn" which supports eight families entirely from the pacific albacore fishery.
In the 45+ years I have fished albacore ,the US EEZ and international waters have provided 99% of my production .
In the 1970s for approximately 3 years an ocean current anomaly occurred, creating a condition where the majority of the albacore migration was in Canadian waters. This has not occurred since that time . The overwhelming production of albacore has occurred within the US EEZ. As a result the treaty has been OVERWHELMINGLY ADVANTAGEOUS TO THE CANADIAN FLEET AND DETRIMENTAL TO THE US FLEET.

The US fleet is forced to compete with a large Canadian fleet within the US EEZ The large and aggressive Canadian fleet has pressured the US fleet as we compete for a LIMITED RESOURCE . Another inequity has been created as the Canadians permit their vessels which creates an artificial economy which adds value to the Canadian vessels via the value of the permits ,unlike the US which allows an open access fishery.

In short, because of the treaty providing the Canadians access to albacore inside the US EEZ, there is a large Canadian Fleet driven to compete with US vessels limiting the amount of fish US vessels can catch .The bottom line is that there is only so much fish to catch each season diminishing the catch supporting US families THE TREATY HAS NO SHORT OR LONG TERM BENEFITS TO US FISHERMEN OR THE US ECONOMY!!

I am unable to attend the counsel meeting this Monday as I am having a serious surgery.I hope you can read my letter and /or submit it to the counsel

Motion was made and seconded (Shawn Ryan/Larz Malony) to approve the following statement from the Oregon Albacore Commission:

The Magnusson Stevens act directs that U.S. fisheries should take preference in the U.S. EEZ. Initial evidence of data shows that, like the U.S. fleet suspected, Canadian albacore fisherman intervention in the U.S. EEZ has a significant negative impact on U.S. fisherman catch and therefore on the communities which they support. One year of data is not enough to draw a definitive conclusion of that information that is valuable to support the fishery.

Therefore the Oregon Albacore Commission requests there be a continued suspension of the fishing regime for 2013 of the U.S./Canada Albacore Treaty. This is in order to collect additional economic data for analysis of the impacts of this treaty.

Motion was approved.

RESOLUTION 2013-01

A RESOLUTION IN SUPPORT OF THE U.S. ALBACORE FLEET

WHEREAS, since 1995 U.S. albacore fishermen have seen the Canadian albacore fleet grow in numbers and capacity. Over time the profile of the Canadian fleet has changed becoming more aggressive and contributing less to local U.S. communities.

WHEREAS, during the 2010 and 2011 albacore seasons U.S. albacore fishermen reported a dramatic increase in the aggressiveness of the Canadian albacore fleets fishing tactics.

WHEREAS, by removing the Canadian albacore fleet from U.S. waters in 2012, U.S. fishermen got the first opportunity in over 30 years to fish for albacore in U.S. waters without having to compete with a foreign fleet.

WHEREAS, in 2012 the U.S. albacore fleet catch increase more than made up for any contribution the Canadian fleet might have made had it been fishing in U.S. waters. The U.S. albacore fleet is the only U.S. fleet required to compete against a foreign fleet in U.S. waters.

BE IT RESOLVED, the Port of Bandon Board of Commissioners believe it to be in the best interest of the U.S. albacore fleet, the communities they support and the U.S. economy to discontinue the U.S./Canadian reciprocal albacore tuna fishing practice.

Adopted by a majority vote of the Board of Commissioners of the Port of Bandon on this 28th day of February 2013.

Re: Agenda Item I.3.b HMS-MT Supplemental Report

Dear Sirs and Madams:

I would like to bring to the attention of the Council a reference which is made in the above report to MSC standards. This reference could be very misleading to the public. It might imply that the Council's HMS-MT has endorsed or adopted the standards set forth in the certification requirements of MSC with regard to tuna. While there is nothing necessarily incorrect about the goals to which MSC would have commercial tuna harvesters and tuna RFMOs aspire, it is not appropriate for the Council or its subsidiary bodies to give the impression that these are guiding principles for U.S. commercial fisheries.

The ENGO which has set up the MSC system is a private organization, which is headquartered in a foreign country. Its standards, while admirable, do not have any legal application in the United States. U.S. commercial fishermen are under an obligation to live up to and abide by the standards which the U.S. Congress has set forth in the Magnuson Fisheries Conservation and Management Act and its amendments. U.S. commercial fishermen are also required to abide by domestic regulations implementing agreements to which the U.S. has agreed in international tuna RFMOs. Furthermore, it should be noted that there are no limit, target, and harvest control rules which have been agreed to for any of the species of Pacific tunas, with the possible exception of the WCPFC's Northern Committee's limit reference point for North Pacific albacore.

Thank you for the opportunity to comment on this,

Sincerely,

Peter H. Flournoy
