RE Agenda Item G.2: Swordfish Management Policy Connections; authorization of deep set buoy gear

Dear Chair Lowman and Council Members:

We understand that the Council is now considering transitioning buoy gear from an experimental gear to a federally authorized gear under the Highly Migratory Species Fishery Management Plan. We are writing to ask the Council to make authorization of buoy gear a high priority and initiate this process early in 2016, so that West Coast fishermen can start fishing with buoy gear as soon as possible.

As an organization that works to create a more knowledgeable constituency for ocean conservation and assesses the sustainability of seafood species, we are always thrilled to hear of innovative ideas that could improve the way we fish. This is why we are so excited about deep-set buoy gear.

We believe that buoy gear is a viable alternative to the currently used drift gillnets in the U.S. West Coast swordfish fishery, and could help make the fishery more sustainable. Experiments conducted with buoy gear off the West Coast have found that this fishing method catches high numbers of marketable swordfish and minimal amounts of non-target species, like sea turtles, whales, and bluefin tuna. This fishing method also results in a higher quality swordfish product, similar to harpoon-caught swordfish; this means fishermen get a higher price for their catch and consumers get a tastier product.

The "green-rated" buoy gear fishery for swordfish off the U.S. East Coast has benefited both ocean wildlife and fishermen. We believe it is time to bring this success story to the West Coast.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

RE: Agenda Item F.3 – Deep-set buoy gear amendment scoping

Dear Chair Lowman and Members of the Council:

We appreciate the Council's recognition that deep-set buoy gear (DSBG) may be "an economically viable low / no bycatch gear for catching swordfish."¹ What is more, we agree with and support the Council's November 2015 decision to focus 2016 efforts on the rapid authorization of a responsible deep-set buoy gear swordfish fishery and to postpone discussion of West Coast-based pelagic longline fishery on the high seas.² We continue to view drift gillnets (DGN) as an unacceptable fishing method for catching swordfish due to the high rates of fish discards and the bycatch of marine wildlife inherent to the West Coast drift gillnet fishery. Conversely, based on the comparative analysis of commercial swordfish fishing gears contained in our November 4, 2015 report, "Providing Domestically Caught U.S. West Coast Swordfish: How to Achieve Environmental Sustainability and Economic Profitability",³ and the results of recent Exempted Fishing Permits, deep-set buoy gear has emerged as a proven method to profitably catch swordfish while minimizing bycatch.

A West Coast deep-set buoy gear swordfish fishery has real potential to provide equal or greater swordfish landings than the DGN fleet. If done deliberately and thoughtfully, the Council has the opportunity to bring DSBG online for the 2017 fishing season and promote a voluntary transition away from drift gillnet fishing gear. We request the Council move forward with DSBG authorization by completing scoping at this meeting and follow the NMFS-suggested schedule⁴ whereby a Final Preferred Alternative would be adopted in March 2017.

Purpose and Need

Consistent with the NMFS Report⁵, we agree that the Council's Purpose and Need for this action should meet the goals of reducing protected species bycatch, reducing unmarketable finfish catch, and supporting an economically viable West Coast swordfish fishery. To accomplish these goals, the initial authorization of DSBG should focus on the objective of transitioning current DGN permit holders to DSBG, thus reducing and phasing out the use of DGN while maintaining and increasing swordfish landings. With proper incentives, this can be done in such a way that current DGN permit holders can voluntarily exchange their DGN permits for equally (if not more) valuable DSBG permits.

Scope of the Action

The scope of the Highly Migratory Species Fishery Management Plan (HMS FMP) amendment authorizing and permitting DSBG should include the following elements:

1. Establishment of a clear gear deep-set buoy gear definition

Given the success of the current Exempted Fishing Permit (EFP) conducted in 2015 by the Pflieger Institute of Environmental Research, we urge the Council to base the gear definition, characteristics, and tending requirements equivalent to those included in that EFP. In particular, these should include a limit of 10 buoys per vessel and active tending of gear.

2. Time/Area Management

The high selectivity demonstrated by DSBG to date may obviate the need for time and area closures like the Pacific Leatherback Conservation Area and Pacific Loggerhead Conservation Area that apply to the DGN fishery. Time and area management, however, should be in the scope of issues to discuss. This gear should not be used in state marine reserves and there may be other time and area considerations that arise during the course of this action.

3. Monitoring requirements

⁴ Agenda Item F.3.a NMFS Report: http://www.pcouncil.org/wp-content/uploads/2016/02/F3a_NMFS_Rpt_DSBG_AmendmentScoping_MAR2016BB.pdf

⁵ Agenda Item F.3.a NMFS Report: http://www.pcouncil.org/wp-content/uploads/2016/02/F3a_NMFS_Rpt_DSBG_AmendmentScoping_MAR2016BB.pdf

Given very low bycatch levels and rates and no endangered species interactions, there may not be need for extensive observer coverage. The purposes of monitoring the fishery as it first develops should therefore be to confirm that bycatch rates remain low and improve long-term accurate and precise bycatch estimates. Since observer coverage is costly, we suggest that the Council and NMFS first develop a pilot observer program covering the initial years of the fishery. The need for human observers may decrease over time provided bycatch remains minimal. Ultimately the pilot observer program may switch from human to electronic monitoring. However, if new, unanticipated bycatch concerns emerge, this should trigger a reconsideration of the appropriate monitoring regime.

4. Establish a limited entry DSBG permitting program with a voluntary DGN permit transfer option

The authorization of deep-set buoy gear provides the Council with an opportunity to further reduce DGN fishing effort, and thus the associated bycatch, while maintaining if not increasing West Coast swordfish landings. This amendment process to authorize and establish a new DSBG fishery should be designed to facilitate the transfer of DGN gear to DSBG by providing financial compensation and opportunity to DGN fishermen who are willing to transfer their DGN permit in exchange for a specified number of DSBG permit(s). Given the demonstrated profitability of DSBG and ability to access areas off limits to DGN gear, DSBG permits will be valuable.

We suggest that the initial allocation of limited entry DSBG permits be made specific to those DGN fishermen willing to make the exchange. This is important as it provides an incentive for gear conversion that would not otherwise be there if permits are broadly issued. If the initial DSBG permits are offered exclusively to DGN permit holders who are willing to voluntarily transfer their DGN permit, this could be a strong incentive for fishermen to switch to a cleaner fishing method. We are confident that there would be significant interest.

Such a program would involve several considerations. The Council would need to determine how many DSBG permits to offer in exchange for a DGN permit. Also, consideration should be given to distinguishing between active and latent DGN permit holders. This could be based on, for example, the June 2014 control date recently set by the Council (or based on a new control date). Under such a scenario, active DGN permit holders could receive a greater number of DSBG permits than latent permit holders. Importantly, each vessel should only be able to fish one permit at a time, and any additional DSBG permits could be leased or sold to other fishermen. As such, the ability to lease or sell additional permits would enable willing fishermen to recover the value of their new gear and cover transition costs. It would also allow non-DGN permit holders the opportunity to enter the DSBG fishery.

Furthermore, since all remaining DGN permits are issued by the State of California, there will need to be consideration for how a permit transfer option would work such that the surrendering of the state-issued DGN permits would qualify fishermen to receive federal DSBG permits. This may involve the federalization of DGN permits, and we would support such a federalization insofar as it would be done for this specific purpose of enabling a transition to DSBG.

Given the experience thus far with DSBG, we are aware there is a learning curve associated with the initial use of the gear. We suggest the Council consider requiring all DSBG permit holders to receive training on the proper and effective use of DSBG as a condition of being able to use the gear. There may be funding opportunities available for such a training program, and it would make sense that NOAA and the current successful experimental fishing permit participants could help craft and implement such a program.

Eventually, based on the number of willing participants in a gear transition program and the performance of commercial DSBG we would envision allocating additional access to DSBG to achieve a target level of DSBG capacity. It may also be beneficial to consider EFPs in the future to explore further improvements to the performance of the current DSBG design. However, focusing the current action on a DSBG authorization with the specific purpose of transitioning the fleet from DGN to DSBG would be an important first step.

Other concurrent actions (outside of the HMS FMP amendment process)

Outside the HMS FMP amendment process, the Council, the State of California, fishermen and NGOs should consider parallel actions to promote and facilitate a successful DSBG fishery. In particular, there may be several funding opportunities available to assist fishermen who would like to begin using the gear. Specifically, the establishment of a “transition fund” could alleviate many of the hurdles, risks, and challenges associated with the adoption of a new gear type. Such a fund could assist individual fishermen with the acquisition of the new gear, vessels, and other capital; retiring and destroying drift gillnets; training programs to use DSBG effectively; financial assistance in the initial years of learning to use the gear; marketing efforts for DSBG-caught swordfish to achieve higher prices; and additional experiments to further improve the DSBG configuration.

In the past, the California Ocean Protection Council has provided funding for similar projects (and in fact contributed to the funding for some of the initial DSBG experiments off California).

In addition, the California Fisheries Fund provides access to loans to individual fishermen to fund the acquisition or conversion to cleaner, more sustainable methods. We hope to partner with the Council and others in approaching these bodies to explore these opportunities.

Conclusion

The authorization of DSBG should be viewed as an integral component of a broader approach to transition the current swordfish fishery using DGN gear into one that is both ecologically and economically sustainable. In concert with the Council's work to reduce and limit bycatch in the DGN fishery including hard caps, performance objectives and increased monitoring, authorization of a DSBG fishery will provide new clean fishing opportunities for a sustainable West Coast swordfish fishery.

We urge the Council to formally initiate an HMS FMP amendment to authorize DSBG at this meeting. Furthermore, we stand ready to work productively with other stakeholders to flesh out the various details associated with this authorization to help ensure it makes sense for fishermen, fishing communities, and a thriving ocean ecosystem. Thank you for considering these comments.

Re: Agenda Item F.3 – Deep Set Buoy Gear Amendment Scoping

Dear Chair Lowman and Council Members:

For more than forty years, Wild Oceans has worked nationally and internationally to develop innovative approaches and solutions to fisheries management that preserve healthy ocean ecosystems, the big fish of the sea and fishing for the future.

That's why we are encouraged by the Pacific Fishery Management Council's (Council) decision last November 2015 to move forward rapidly to authorize deep set swordfish buoy gear (DSBG).¹ DSBG promises to bring highly prized swordfish to consumers while limiting impacts on the California Current large marine ecosystem.

We ask the Council to evaluate and adopt this contemporary gear pursuant to the schedule outlined in the National Marine Fisheries Service Report On Deep Set Buoy Gear Amendment Scoping (NMFS Report)² with selection of a Final Preferred Alternative in March 2017. This timeline will facilitate a seamless transition for fishermen fishing pursuant to an exempted fishing permit (EFP). It will afford DSBG fishermen more certainty as they develop a market for this more highly valuable swordfish product. In addition, fishermen, including current drift gillnet fishermen, can begin planning for investment in new DSBG.

When we look to the future of fishing, we imagine safer, more selective, more sustainable fishing methods than longlines or driftnets. We imagine gear that is not only friendly to the environment, but friendlier to fishermen and fishing communities, too. Buoy gear emerged a decade ago in the Atlantic as an economically viable gear that could expand commercial swordfish fishing opportunities with minimal bycatch and bycatch mortality. The Pflieger Institute of Environmental Research (PIER) has since conducted five years of research in the Pacific, first optimizing buoy gear for fishing for swordfish at depth, then testing the gear through a rigorous research program, and finally engaging four commercial vessels to fish using DSBG pursuant to an exempted fishing permit approved by the Council.³

The NMFS Report presents valuable guidance for the Council regarding scoping and authorization of DSBG. But, before the Council delves into the details such as management area, access and catch limits, the Council should consider and discuss the following overarching management questions during the March Council meeting:

What is the purpose and need of the proposed amendment?

We propose that the primary purpose of this amendment is to provide commercial swordfish fishing opportunities using selective, actively tended DSBG that minimizes unmarketable bycatch and bycatch mortality thereby minimizing both the cost of management and impacts on the open ocean ecosystem. The Council's support and careful expansion of actively tended handgear fisheries is critically important to the Council's intention to harvest Pacific swordfish while minimizing bycatch and complying with all of the legal obligations to protect threatened and endangered species.

This purpose is consistent with the input the Council has received from thousands of constituents, members of Congress and the California legislature, dozens of conservation organizations and recreational fishing clubs and businesses asking for a transition away from passive gears like driftnets to actively tended fishing gear that will keep fishermen on the water and significantly reduce the catching and killing of non-target ocean wildlife. In addition to written comments, in November the Council heard from more than 30 recreational fishermen who attended the Council meeting to speak out against multi-mile longlines and in favor of a more sustainable swordfish fishery.

How do we define actively tended gear? Monitor, detect, retrieve and repeat, not wait and see.

Deep set swordfish buoy gear can fundamentally change the way we currently catch Pacific swordfish from passive driftnets to actively tended gear. We join the recommendation in the NMFS Report in asking the Council consider the specifics of the term “actively tended” and include it in the definition of DSBG. Actively tended gear like DSBG and other handgear is employed by a vigilant crew that is trained to monitor the gear, visually detect strikes immediately, retrieve the catch within minutes and re-bait and repeat to keep fishing. Actively tended gear maximizes the live release of non-marketable bycatch. Meanwhile the swordfish is landed and dressed quickly, in a fresher and more pristine condition, and yields a greater price per pound.

In contrast, passive gear like driftnets and longlines are designed to “soak”. When marine mammals and turtles get tangled or hooked on passive gear, they may remain submerged for hours, leading to suffocation and death. By that time, much of the non-marketable finfish bycatch, including important recreational species such as marlin, come aboard dead or dying.

What are the target highly migratory species?

It’s time for the Council to designate target highly migratory species. Once the Council defines the target species, the Highly Migratory Species Management Team (HMSMT) can better evaluate authorized and proposed gear against a benchmark and determine whether it achieves the Council’s goal and mandate to reduce bycatch. And the HMSMT can determine steps to preserve the future biological options of stocks, such as opah, until we know more about their biology and whether they can support a commercial fishery.

A robust discussion of these initial questions can outline a picture of the DSBG fishery. The Council can then task the HMSMT with developing alternatives that fill in the details, including seasons, number of buoys, observer coverage, bycatch performance criteria and number of permits. With regard to these specifics, the Council should revisit the PIER EFP proposal submitted in March 2015 and the NMFS Report.

The Council should support development of alternatives that recognize the extensive research conducted and the fundamental difference in actively tended gear.

The use of deep set buoy gear results in a dramatic shift in the highly migratory fisheries ability to target the desired catch, swordfish, and minimize bycatch and bycatch mortality. PIER has demonstrated this over the past five years of research and fishing pursuant in an EFP. When sketching a range of alternatives for observer coverage and management areas, the Council should use the research and EFP data to guide the analysis of alternatives that are less-restrictive than are necessary for passive drift gillnets or longlines. By recognizing the fundamental difference in actively tended gear, the Council can select a range of regulations that maximize profits to the fishery while minimizing the cost involved in management and the impact on the open ocean ecosystem.

When discussing access to the fishery, the Council should direct the HMSMT to include a series of alternatives that would incentivize the transition of drift gillnet permit holders to deep set buoy gear permits. This alternative is critically important for drift gillnet fishermen on "unobservable" driftnet vessels or new fishermen who want to employ a more actively tended gear that has minimal startup costs and a high market value.

Thank you for your commitment and attention to the details of drawing a picture of tomorrow's fishery today.

Sincerely,

RE: Agenda Item F.3 – Deep Set Buoy Gear Amendment Scoping

Dear Chair Lowman and Council members:

We write in support of the authorization of deep-set buoy gear (DSBG) and appreciate the Pacific Fishery Management Council's (Council) continued commitment to reducing bycatch in the West Coast swordfish fishery. To this end, we ask the Council to take the following actions:

- Move forward with DSBG authorization under the Highly Migratory Species (HMS) Fishery Management Plan (FMP);
- Prioritize DSBG authorization in HMS workload planning;
- Incentivize drift gillnet (DGN) fishermen to switch to DSBG; and
- Schedule DSBG authorization on the Year-at-a-glance calendar with final action in March 2017.

By taking the above actions, the Council will move toward a healthy and sustainable swordfish fishery off the West Coast.

At the Swordfish Workshop hosted by NOAA Fisheries in May 2015, participants expressed broad support and consensus that DSBG should be made an allowable gear. The Pflieger Institute of Environmental Research (PIER) developed DSBG specifically for West Coast swordfish.¹ DSBG has been tested extensively over the past five years showing positive and consistent results with over 94 percent of the catch marketable and primarily swordfish.²

The efficacy of using buoy gear to catch swordfish without catching other species is abundantly clear through the data collected since 2006 in the Atlantic fishery. Ninety percent or more of the catch is swordfish with most of the catch that is not retained (93%) released alive, resulting in an overall low ecosystem impact.³ The fishery also consumes far less bait and fuel.⁴ Buoy gear has not only been beneficial to the environment, but it also revitalized the small boat commercial fishing fleet in Florida by offering a simple and affordable way to catch swordfish.⁵

The authorization of DSBG should be prioritized above other HMS workload considerations. Authorizing DSBG is consistent with the Draft Swordfish Fishery Management and Monitoring Plan and meets the Council's twin goals of reducing bycatch and promoting a West Coast swordfish fishery.⁶ Given available information, it is not necessary for the Council to wait for the conclusion of PIER's EFP to begin the FMP amendment process. In doing so, the Council can allow a smooth transition from exempted fishing to an authorized fishery. Simply extending the DSBG EFPs beyond the 2016-2017 fishing season will provide little benefit and be very costly to the EFP administrators and participants. The Council previously expressed its interest to "move forward rapidly to authorize DSBG"⁷ under the HMS FMP. It makes little sense to delay authorization when DSBG is proving effective at selectively catching swordfish and has broad support from fishermen, scientists, seafood suppliers, fishery managers, and the conservation community.

Further, initial economic analysis conducted by Cap Log Group LLC shows that DSBG is profitable at current catch levels and market prices. The preliminary results from the first year of the PIER EFP indicate that both catch and price have the potential to increase allowing DSBG to be at least as profitable as DGN. These analyses also show that, using current catch rates, a DSBG fishery could deliver an equivalent amount of swordfish to the West Coast as DGNs.⁸ We look forward to sharing the results of this analysis with the Council and other interested parties in the coming weeks.

We support the proposal from NMFS to implement a pilot observer program in order to determine what amount of observer coverage is necessary in the DSBG fishery.⁹ Given the attributes of DSBG, including active tending and selectivity, it is unlikely that it will be necessary to monitor the fishery at the same level as DGNs.

⁹ NMFS Report, March 2016, p. 5.

We also recommend that the Council consider requiring a skipper training or certification as a condition of DSBG permits. This would ensure that fishermen are properly trained in the use of the gear in order to maximize catch, minimize bycatch, and ensure that any bycatch is properly handled and released alive whenever possible.

Throughout the authorization process, we suggest the Council consider ways to incentivize DGN fishermen to switch to DSBG. One potential pathway would be to establish a limited entry program that offers a set number of DSBG permits to HMS permit holders who agree not to fish DGN gear.¹⁰ Such a program could also include an annual allocation of open-access permits based on information and data collected in the fishery.

We understand the limitations imposed by time and resource constraints and are sympathetic to workload concerns. However, the timeline for DSBG authorization proposed by NMFS¹¹ is a reasonable approach, particularly if the Council and HMSMT adjust their workload to prioritize this authorization as decided at the November 2015 Council meeting.

We appreciate your consideration of these comments and look forward to working together to authorize DSBG on the West Coast.

RE Agenda Item F.3 Deep-Set Buoy Gear Amendment Scoping

Dear Chair Lowman and Council Members:

More and more Americans are asking for sustainable, locally sourced seafood when they dine out. As commercial fishermen, seafood processors, distributors, chefs, restaurateurs and others along the supply chain, we take pride in our ability to provide local seafood to our customers. We are always looking for innovative ways to sell the freshest product possible, and that often means telling a story a story that separates the good fish from the bad.

That's why we are excited about an emerging innovation in the domestic swordfish fishery: deep-set buoy gear. This gear type is actively tended and minimizes interactions with non-targeted species such as sea turtles and dolphins.

Deep-set buoy gear has benefits in addition to less bycatch. Fishermen are able to land, bleed and put the fish on ice quickly, so swordfish caught with buoy gear is of the highest quality. This means a higher price to innovative West Coast fishermen and a tastier product for consumers.

The Council is now considering transitioning buoy gear from an experimental gear to a federally authorized gear under the Highly Migratory Species Fishery Management Plan. Collectively we recommend that the Council make authorization of buoy gear a priority and initiate this process early in 2016 to expedite the authorization of buoy gear as soon as possible.

We all share in the responsibility of making our fisheries more sustainable. Deep-set buoy gear is a step in that direction. The commercial market and many in the fishing fleet are ready to make this gear type a viable alternative on the water. Working together, we can deliver a sustainably caught and higher quality product to our customers.

RE: Agenda Item F.3 – Deep Set Buoy Gear Amendment Scoping

Dear Chair Lowman and Council members,

Sportfishing is the backbone of our industry and sportfishermen are the lifeblood keeping our businesses running. We write to stand with the thousands of sportfishermen calling for change in the West Coast swordfish fishery, and encourage you to begin the authorization process for deep-set buoy gear in March.

The West Coast commercial fishery for swordfish needs alternative gear types to drift gillnets. These mile-long nets, set for hours at a time overnight, ensnare finfish such as striped marlin and many other species of marine life resulting in 64% of the catch being discarded overboard, often injured or dead.

Last year, the Pacific Fishery Management Council took several positive steps in developing a comprehensive Swordfish Management & Monitoring Plan with the goal of reducing bycatch in the West Coast swordfish fishery. We commend the Council for its approval of hard caps on protected and vulnerable species, as well as 100 percent monitoring in the drift gillnet fishery, as interim measures until a transition to cleaner gear occurs.

Additionally, we applaud the Council's decision to leave authorization of shallow-set longline gear outside the Exclusive Economic Zone off of the Council's 2016 agenda. We hope this deletion is permanent, as any West Coast-based longline fishery would not achieve the Council's goal of reducing bycatch and are not a sustainable alternative to drift gillnets.

Deep-set buoy gear provides such an alternative, and we strongly encourage the Pacific Fishery Management Council to authorize this gear in a timely manner. Buoy gear is actively tended, using a hook-and-buoy system that enables fishermen to drop their hooks as deep as 1,200 feet to reach swordfish and respond to a bite within minutes. Scientists and cooperating fishermen have tested the gear extensively for nearly five years and it maintains a 94 percent marketable catch rate.

We believe the work to implement hard caps and 100 percent monitoring can coincide with authorization of deep-set buoy gear. Please ensure that authorization of this important innovation is a priority in 2016.

Thank you in advance on behalf of the International Game Fish Association, Coastal Conservation Association California, the American Sportfishing Association, and the over one hundred sportfishing businesses listed below.

Sincerely,

We the undersigned

RE: Comments on Council Agenda Item F.3. Deep set Buoy Gear scoping

Dear Chair Lowman,

We applaud the Council's efforts to bring deep set buoy gear (DSBG) online as a West Coast fishery and urge the Council to prioritize this authorization in the coming year to be ready in early 2017. As you move forward, we urge you to coordinate with California authorities to ensure that the interests of California are protected and California's authority maintained in a fishery affecting California marine and coastal resources, involving California's fishing industry and implicating California's coastal communities. In addition, we request that the Council also move forward with measures to incentivize the switch to DSBG and to plan for an orderly transition away from the use of antiquated drift gill nets.

Authorization

Given the promising data from the last several years of testing on the west coast and the bycatch observed on the east coast we feel prioritizing the authorization of DSBG in the work plan, ideally to be ready for 2017. Certainly, the data presented to date suggest that sets of 12-15 buoys, as is commonly fished by east coast fishermen, will produce catch very much comparable to the 1.7 average swordfish per set average seen in the observer program from 2011-2014. Given the price premium and the ability to market DSBG fish as a sustainable California brand to distinguish such products from generic frozen imports, this gear shows tremendous potential as a reliable foundation for a sustainable California swordfish fishery. Therefore, we urge the Council to prioritize an FMP amendment for a state-federal co-managed fishery much like the drift gill net fishery.

Authorizing a DSBG fishery within the next year also takes on new importance given a new effort by the California legislature to authorize the parallel state components of a state-federal co-managed fishery. As you know, members of the California legislature, as well as California members of Congress, have been urging the Council to adopt a transition plan for several years. As a result, several members of the California legislature led by Senator Ben Allen are preparing legislation for such a transition plan that includes authorization for the California Department of Fish and Wildlife to issue permits for a DSBG fishery under appropriate measures and limits as developed in coordination with the Council. This bill has been developed in consultation between the environmental community, fishermen, regulators and scientists, and it incorporates new and innovative measures to address concerns of many stakeholders. Consequently, this bill concept has met a favorable reception on both sides of the aisle. While legislation is never certain of passage until signed into law by the governor, we would urge that the Council time its work to coincide with the legislative process, such that the structure of the federal component can be largely worked out by early 2017 when the California law would come into force authorizing CDFW to work on regulations and permit issuance. Thus, we urge the Council to stay in close communication with CDFW on key parameters as this work moves forward.

We also urge the Council to move promptly toward authorization of the fishery rather than merely extending existing EFPs. Although extended EFPs could run in tandem with this process, we expect that future data will continue to demonstrate the value of the gear rather than reveal markedly different characteristics. Thus, beginning work on authorization now will allow those participants in the EFPs to move seamlessly into fishing independently and to provide certainty and new opportunities to fishermen and coastal communities.

With regard to specific elements, we urge the Council to maintain an observer program on a pilot basis, but if the data show that bycatch remains low that observers be lessened to levels commensurate with identifying issues should they arise in the future. Also, we recognize the ongoing need for innovation in gear configurations, so we recommend flexibility in regulatory definitions or a mechanism for such innovation to be tested and for any new gear configurations to be subject to rigorous observer coverage until continued near-zero bycatch is confirmed. Ultimately, we believe that a significant element of the economic value of the DSBG will be the lower regulatory and observer costs than those required for more destructive gear.

Also, we urge the Council to consider a limited entry system to allow for CDFW and the Council to maintain adequate control of fishery impacts on the stock and marine resources. In addition, we anticipate that some provision should be made for those fishermen who avoided drift gill nets on account of the environmental impacts of the gear may be newly interested in fishing for swordfish with sustainable gear. In addition to the regulatory benefits of a limited entry system, such a permit system may prove valuable in developing a transition plan for the swordfish fishery.

Transition

As we have repeatedly urged the Council, it is past time that the use of drift gill nets be discontinued throughout the United States, including California. Not only will this have benefits of relieving pressures on marine wildlife in the United States, but such a move will allow interested parties to apply market pressure to foreign fisheries that persist in using harmful gear through such vehicles as the Moratorium Protection Act and Section 102(a) of the Marine Mammal Protection Act.

In order to provide for an orderly winding down of the use of drift gill nets, the Council should at least consider the wide variety of policy ideas that have been developed to date. As mentioned above, Sen. Allen and other legislators are currently developing a broad transition plan to move the fleet to a sustainable swordfish fishery in consultation with as many stakeholders as possible. Such a plan could include a variety of approaches, including the issuance of limited entry permits to active drift gill net fishermen, exchanges of additional permits for sale for those fishermen surrendering drift net permits, support for fishermen moving to the new gear through training and in purchasing new gear, and eventual sunseting of the gear as moves to DSBG, other fisheries or retirement. Although to date the Council has not pursued such options, the current context of authorization of a new sustainable gear, popular support for change in California, and legislative interest provides a tremendous opportunity for actively engaging in helping develop evolving policy ideas to create a truly sustainable fishery in California.

As always, we are quite grateful for the work of the Council and look forward to working with the Council and all stakeholders to develop these ideas further.

Respectfully submitted,

Dear Chair Lowman and Members of the Council:

The Pew Charitable Trusts has collected 10,015 comments, along with a separate message from 1,739 individuals to the CA delegation of the PFMC, in support of deep-set buoy gear authorization in 2016.

Please include the attached petition as an electronic submission on the web site for the Council's supplemental briefing book. The petition itself is included here, along with the names, cities and states of individual signers that were gathered as of February 29, 2016. RE: Agenda item F.3 - Deep-set Buoy Gear Amendment Scoping

Dear Chair Lowman and council members:

I am writing to encourage you to keep authorization of deep-set buoy gear on track in 2016. By taking this action, the Pacific Fishery Management Council can help to meet its stated commitment to reduced bycatch as outlined in its draft Swordfish Fishery Management and Monitoring Plan from September 2015.

Off the West Coast, hundreds of animals are unnecessarily entangled and killed by drift gillnets. Fortunately, better alternatives are available. Deep-set buoy gear uses a hook-and-buoy system that enables fishermen to drop their hooks as deep as 1,200 feet to reach swordfish during the day. The gear boasts a 94 percent marketable catch rate, meaning that almost all of what is caught can be kept and sold. Buoy gear has been tested by scientists and cooperating fishermen with minimal bycatch of non-target species and a consistent catch of swordfish. In fact, if buoy gear authorization stays on track, it will have received six years of extensive testing on the West Coast by the time it is allowed on the water.

Deep-set buoy gear has other benefits in addition to reducing bycatch. Fishermen are able to catch and put the fish on ice quickly, so swordfish caught with buoy gear is of the highest quality. This means a higher price for innovative West Coast fishermen and a tastier, more sustainable choice for consumers.

For several years, the Pacific council has stated concerns about bycatch from drift gillnets in the swordfish fishery. Deep-set buoy gear provides a real opportunity to address bycatch while ensuring an alternative that supports sustainable fisheries and local economies on the West Coast. Please authorize deep-set buoy gear in 2016.

Sincerely,

RE: Deep-set Buoy Gear Authorization in California

Dear Director Bonham:

I am writing to encourage you, along with your designees to the Pacific Fishery Management Council (PFMC), to keep the authorization of deep-set buoy gear on track this year. By taking this action, the PFMC can help to meet its stated commitment to reducing bycatch, as outlined in its draft Swordfish Fishery Management and Monitoring Plan from September 2015.

Californians take pride in managing natural resources sustainably. However, many are surprised to learn that off the West Coast, hundreds of animals are unnecessarily entangled and killed by drift gillnets—an indiscriminate form of fishing gear targeting swordfish and thresher sharks.

Fortunately, better alternatives are available. Deep-set buoy gear uses a hook-and-buoy system that enables fishermen to drop their hooks as deep as 1,200 feet to reach swordfish during the day. The gear boasts a 94 percent marketable catch rate, meaning that almost all of what is caught can be kept and sold. Buoy gear has been tested by scientists and cooperating fishermen with minimal bycatch of non-target species and a consistent catch of swordfish. In fact, if buoy gear authorization stays on track, it will have received six years of extensive testing on the West Coast by the time it is allowed on the water.

Deep-set buoy gear has other benefits as well. Fishermen are able to catch and put the fish on ice quickly, so swordfish caught with buoy gear is of the highest quality. This means a higher price for innovative West Coast fishermen and a tastier, more sustainable choice for consumers.

By working to authorize deep-set buoy gear, California can uphold its reputation as a champion of conservation while supporting sustainable fisheries for our coastal communities. Please work with the California members of the PFMC to ensure the authorization of this gear type in the California swordfish fishery.

Sincerely,
