Subject: Please authorize deep-set buoy gear to protect sealife

To: pfmc.comments@noaa.gov

Chair Anderson and Council Members:

I request the Pacific Fishery Management Council adopt alternatives for authorization of deep-set buoy gear and ensure that this process stays on track for final action in early 2018. In doing so, the Council can move toward more selective and actively tended fishing gear in the West Coast swordfish fishery. The research is conclusive and demonstrates that this gear is ready for approval.

Specifically, authorization should give priority to active drift gillnet permit holders and include options for the existing fishing fleet to trade in their permits for one or more deep-set buoy gear permits. Such action will incentivize fishermen to transition away from drift gillnets.

Deep-set buoy gear allows fishermen to target swordfish at depth during the day while avoiding interactions with other marine life closer to the surface. It has the support of thousands of Californians, conservation organizations, and hundreds of businesses along the seafood supply chain and in the sport fishing community. Perhaps even more important, fishermen who have used the gear agree that deep-set buoy gear is a viable alternative. Swordfish caught with this gear provides a high-quality product to the West Coast that can bring more than double the price of a swordfish caught in a drift gillnet.

Thank you for your work to promote our West Coast fisheries while ensuring protection for our ocean ecosystem.

Sincerely,
Stacy Miller

Dear Chair Anderson and Council Members:

Drift Gillnets are shrouds of death that evacuate the oceans of life. They do not constitute a means of "fishing" as most people would recognize the term. Swallowing a vast realm of the pelagic ecosystem within inescapable netting and drowning countless intelligent, sentient creatures, whose only crime is swimming amidst lucrative swordfish and thresher sharks, is morally profane and offensive to our dignity. You must terminate the use of gillnets entirely in waters governed by the PFMC, and stop these pirates engaged in the gruesome, cold, commercial efficiency from evacuating our common ocean ecosystem in search of the profitable nuggets.

I am writing to ask the Pacific Fishery Management Council to adopt a range of alternatives for authorization of deep-set buoy gear and ensure that this process stays on track for final action in early 2018. Dear Chair Lowman and Council Members:

I am writing to the Pacific Fisheries Management Council, on behalf of my organization Ocean Conservation Society, to ask the Council to follow the conclusive data supporting deep-set buoy gear and ensure its process for authorization remains on track. More specifically, to incentivize fishermen, priority should be given to active drift gillnet permit holders and include options for the existing fishing fleet to trade in their permits for one or more deep-set buoy gear permits.

The transition from drift gillnets to deep-set buoy gear is vital for both sustainable fishing environments and the ocean ecosystem, something we at OCS care deeply about. It's time to listen to over 30 years of concerns from anglers and Californians on the dangers of the drift gillnet fishery. Years of research and development put into buoy gear as a low-impact method of fishing prove that it is far less destructive than the current practice. It's time for California fishery leaders to take the next step in supporting deep-set buoy gear, today's most important fishing innovation for the swordfish industry.

Drift gillnets drastically disrupt sensitive and natural ecosystems as they sweep up over 70 different species, including important tunas and billfish as well as endangered species like leatherback sea turtles, loggerhead sea turtles and sperm whales. Marine life caught in these nets play a role in these complex marine ecosystems and food webs. The unselective process wastefully forces fishermen to throw over 60 percent of what is caught overboard, disrupting habitats which could cause permanent damage. With bycatch representing a large portion of marine catches on a global scale, California would do well as a leader of a new, sustainable fishing innovation. Active use of deep-set buoy gear, a far less disruptive technology, will help create a resilient ocean environment to the benefit of fishermen, consumers and precious marine life.

It is time to hold ourselves accountable for the damages that have already been incurred by drift gillnets and move forward with a safe, effective form of fishing that will improve prospects for fishermen and provide sustainable seafood choices for everyone. Putting these incentives in place will help move this process forward and provide fishermen with the opportunity to effectively begin the transition. With the opportunity to advance authorization of deep set buoy gear this coming September, we hope to see active change toward a more sustainable fishery future.

Thank you for your consideration.

Dorothy Lowman, Chair
Pacific Fishery Management Council
7700 NE Ambassador Place, Suite 101
Portland, Oregon 97220-1384

Dear Chair Lowman and Council members:

On behalf of Marine Conservation Institute, I want to encourage you to keep authorization of deep-set buoy gear on track at the upcoming September meeting. Our organization uses the latest science to identify threats to ocean ecosystems and work with scientists, politicians, government officials and organizations to implement well-researched, sound methods of conservation for the benefit of all those who rely it. Moving forward with a low-impact, sustainable solution to catch swordfish makes sense for fishermen and consumers alike; it's dramatic decrease in bycatch through a tended hook-and-buoy system creates sustainable catches. This innovative technology is here for our use, and it is now time to work collectively to see it through its implementation.

The current use of drift gillnets in West Coast commercial fisheries ensnares whales, dolphins, sea turtles and other sensitive species—not to mention other recreationally and commercially important species that are not kept. Not only was this fishery called out in our 2003 report "Shifting Gears-Addressing the Collateral Impacts of Fishing in U.S. Waters" (http://www.mcbi.org/publications/pub_pdfs/ShiftingGears.pdf) for having extraordinarily high levels of bycatch, it continues to be one of the dirtiest fisheries in the U.S. Gillnets are wasteful and outdated; introduced in the 1980s they are an indiscriminate form of fishing that has failed to address its extreme bycatch problem.

After nearly 6 years of research and development by the Pflieger Institute of Environmental Research, we can confidently establish that local swordfish caught via deep-set buoy gear are ready for the market. This proven alternative produces a higher value product due to greater freshness, quality and market demand for sustainable seafood. It's a win-win when this practice boasts a marketable catch rate of 94%, significantly reducing bycatch, as drift gillnets have an incomparably low marketable catch rate of only 36%. This low-impact fishing practice is better for marine life and better for fishermen.

To incentivize fishermen toward this best practice, authorization should give priority to active drift gillnet permit holders and include options for the existing fishing fleet to trade in their permits for one or more deep-set buoy gear permits. Incentives like these provide support for the transition away from drift gillnets in California.

As a California I take pride in our beautiful ocean ecosystems and marine wildlife. Deep-set buoy gear is a solution to a very ugly problem, and working together, we can create more sustainable fisheries where all of those dependent on it can thrive.

Sincerely,

RE: Agenda Item J.6. Authorization of Deep-Set Buoy Gear and Federal Permitting

Dear Chair Anderson and Council members:

Thank you for your commitment to authorize deep set buoy gear (DSBG) as part of a comprehensive approach to both reduce bycatch and increase landings using more selective gear in the West Coast swordfish fishery. This action is of utmost priority and urgency. The dozens of DSBG applicants in the last year show there is immense interest in using this innovative gear type. NMFS's recent withdrawal of the proposed drift gillnet (DGN) hard caps rule — in contravention of the Council's recommended measure to reduce bycatch — further increases the urgency of authorizing DSBG as a cleaner gear type.

We attended the Highly Migratory Species Management Team (HMS MT) meeting at the Southwest Fisheries Science Center in La Jolla, California on August 8-10 and appreciate the hard work of the management team members and their responsiveness to our public comments in their report.¹ We offer the following comments to the Council as you finalize your range of alternatives for authorizing and permitting deep set buoy gear.

Purpose and Need:

We request that the Council explicitly include “reducing bycatch and bycatch mortality” in its description of the purpose and need for this action. National Standard 9 requires that “Conservation and management measures . . . to the extent practicable, (a) minimize bycatch and (b) to the extent bycatch cannot be avoided, minimize the mortality of such bycatch.”² Deep-set buoy gear has proven to be a highly selective method of catching swordfish that minimizes bycatch and the mortality of such bycatch. We believe that any DGN effort that is reduced due either to a trade-in or use of DSBG instead of DGN will result in a decrease in bycatch. In light of NMFS's withdrawal of the hard caps rule and its decision not to move forward with 100% monitoring of the fishery by 2018, both of which would have helped minimize bycatch, it is critical that the Council authorize and permit DSBG in a manner that reduces domestic bycatch. In addition, replacing imported swordfish with domestically-caught DSBG swordfish may help reduce global bycatch. Including “reducing bycatch” in the purpose and need statement will allow the Council to link actions such as DGN permit trade-ins directly to the purpose and need.

Gear definition:

We support the definitions of standard buoy gear and linked buoy gear in the HMS MT report. Given linked buoy gear is currently entering its first year of experimental fishing permits (EFP) and standard buoy gear has already had two years of successful EFPs, we ask that the Council initially limit the gear description to standard buoy gear. However, the Council should provide in the FMP the flexibility to amend the gear definition in the biennial HMS specifications process to include linked buoy gear pending the results of the upcoming EFPs.

We support limiting the total footprint of the gear and putting reasonable, enforceable limits on gear retrieval after dark to prevent fishing DSBG at night, while allowing gear retrieval after sunset when a fish is on the line before sunset. This approach is consistent with the manner in which the gear has been used under the EFPs.

We support the option of allowing other fishing activities to occur concurrently with DSBG provided the operation of the DSBG complies with active tending requirements. However, we strongly support a prohibition on DGN and DSBG being fished on the same trip. There are several reasons for this. First, the success of DSBG relies heavily on the market price. In particular, we understand the price premium that DSBG has received thus far over DGN or pelagic longline-caught swordfish to be driven both by quality and sustainability considerations. If DGN and DSBG can be fished on the same trip, there will be a strong incentive to intermingle the products and potentially land and sell DGN-caught swordfish as DSBG-caught. This could undermine the financial incentive to fish with cleaner DSBG. Furthermore, there are concerns about the enforceability of requirements to separate catch by gear type. Relying on accurate logbooks and fish tickets to differentiate gear types is simply insufficient considering the incentives to misreport. Therefore, prohibiting use of DGN and DSBG on the same trip will facilitate more accurate labeling, tracking and management.

Permitting:

We strongly believe the Council should establish a limited entry permitting system for DSBG. The Council has broad authority to establish limited entry under the Magnuson-Stevens Act to achieve optimum yield.³ Applicable rationale for making DSBG limited entry include:

- “contribut[ing] to economic efficiency or conservation;”
- “combat[ing] overfishing, overcrowding, or overcapitalization in a fishery” or in an “unutilized or underutilized fishery,” . . . “reduc[ing] the chance that these conditions will adversely affect the fishery in the future;” and
- “provid[ing] adequate economic return to pioneers in a new fishery.”⁴

We support the Council providing the option for DGN fishermen to voluntarily trade in their DGN permit and the option for a person to hold more than one limited entry DSBG permit, which will increase flexibility in any permit trade in regime and allow fishermen to receive compensation for permits acquired through trade-in. However, each fishing operation should be limited to using one permit at a time per vessel, which would currently be limited to 10 pieces of gear.

³ 16 U.S.C. § 1853(b)(6).

Permit transferability should be specific to the criteria and purpose for which the permit is issued. For example, for DGN fishermen who would like to fish with DSBG in addition to DGN gear, they should qualify for a permit with a three-year transferability restriction, which will encourage DGN fishermen to use and try out DSBG, not simply sell it. However, for a DGN fisherman who wishes to trade in his or her permit for a DSBG permit, the DSBG permit should be fully transferable, as the purpose of issuing such a permit is to compensate the fisherman for voluntarily retiring the DGN permit.

We encourage the Council to initially issue a smaller number of permits, but to provide flexibility in the FMP to increase the number of permits and/or expand qualification criteria during the biennial HMS specifications process. We support a “tiered approach” to the initial issuance of permits in the following order of priority (note: “active” DGN permits are those with documented swordfish landings in the five DGN fishing seasons prior to February 1, 2018):

1. Active Deep-Set Buoy Gear fishermen who have pioneered this new gear type through participation in research and EFPs;
2. Active DGN permit holders who wish to voluntarily trade in their DGN permit and DGN gear in exchange for a DSBG permit;
3. Active DGN permit holders who wish to acquire a DSBG permit in addition to their DGN permit;
4. Latent DGN permit holders who wish to voluntarily trade in their DGN permit and DGN gear in exchange for a DSBG permit; and
5. Other DSBG or harpoon fishermen with active swordfish landings.

Together with a broader comprehensive plan, the authorization and federal permitting of DSBG is a widely supported action that has the potential to increase domestic West Coast swordfish production while reducing bycatch. Adding this new gear type will provide opportunities and additional options that will reduce DGN effort while providing compensation and additional fishing opportunities.

RE: Agenda Item J.6.a, HMSMT Report

Dear Chairman Anderson and Council Members,

The Nature Conservancy (the Conservancy) focuses on driving innovation through collaborative partnerships and on-the-water experimentation to achieve thriving, sustainable fisheries and healthy marine ecosystems. There is a major opportunity to use these approaches in the west coast swordfish fishery to ensure the long-term sustainability of the swordfish stock, conservation of associated marine ecosystems, as well as to build stable fishing communities.

With the proposed action, the Pacific Fishery Management Council (the Council) and the National Marine Fisheries Service (NMFS) have an opportunity to revitalize the west coast commercial swordfish fishery by authorizing a new fishing gear that will drastically reduce bycatch and increase domestic swordfish production and fishery profitability. Although we have concerns with some specific alternatives, overall, the Conservancy is supportive of the draft range of alternatives for authorization of deep-set buoy gear outlined in the Highly Migratory Species Management Team (HMSMT) report. We applaud the HMSMT on the progress made since the June 2017 Council meeting in conducting further analyses and considering the complexities and nuances associated with authorizing this new gear type. In addition to the HMSMT report, we urge the Council to carefully consider the following issue areas as they evaluate whether the draft range of alternatives will successfully achieve the primary objectives of the proposed action.

Purpose and Need

The purpose and need of the proposed action is to encourage the use of a fishing gear that minimizes bycatch and bycatch mortality while allowing for the fishery to remain economically viable. To achieve the most successful outcome from this action, the Council must evaluate any aspects of this action that would discourage participation in the swordfish fishery, as well as avoid any unintended consequences that could arise from consideration of one alternative over another. Such an evaluation is critical to ensuring the local and global environmental benefits associated with authorization of this new low bycatch gear. For instance, the Council should carefully evaluate the intended role or need for a permit trade-in. If these new gears are viewed as supplementary to existing gears, then an unintended consequence of a permit trade-in could be to reduce domestic production of swordfish, increasing the imports from foreign fleets that are needed to meet domestic demand, and thereby increasing the global bycatch footprint. A reduction in domestic production and increase in bycatch would be counter to the objectives of this proposed action, and could inhibit the potential success of this new gear type.

Additionally, the Council should consider the authorization timeline and permit allocation processes necessary to encourage rapid uptake of new low bycatch gears. Immediate authorization of standard buoy gear (SBG) and linked buoy gear (LBG) would allow for fishermen to maximize sustainable catch of swordfish in the near future. An adaptive management scheme would also need to be considered to avoid unnecessarily limiting the growth rate of this new fleet. If the rate of entry to the fishery is viewed as too slow, and participation is viewed as highly exclusive, fishermen may be discouraged to participate even when they are finally given the opportunity to utilize new gears that reduce bycatch.

A. Limited Entry Alternatives

As the Council seeks to authorize a new low bycatch gear that provides an opportunity for sustained participation in the swordfish fishery, the Conservancy has some concerns about the potential exclusion of key stakeholders without ample discussion of associated impacts. Under Alternative A(2)(d)(i), which represents a tiered approach, the Council should carefully discuss the implications for all stakeholders of the currently proposed ranking of qualifications for limited entry permit allocation. Given the finite number of permits that may be issued to fish in the region south of Point Conception, the rank order chosen will determine the limited few that have access to this region. Discussions should include how the rank order of qualifications chosen will differentially impact fishermen that are participating in exempted fishing permits (EFPs), actively fishing with existing authorized gears, and those that have actively renewed their permits to remain engaged until a time that the swordfish fishery became economically viable once again. Additionally, under Alternative A(2)(d)(iii), the Council should evaluate if the landings time periods are too exclusive in nature by only considering permit holders that have been engaged within the past two to five fishing seasons. It is clear from the comment letters submitted thus far (see Agenda Item J.6.b) that there is a strong desire from a range of existing permit holders, both currently active and recently inactive, to utilize new low bycatch harvesting options. Thus, the Council should consider inclusive participation criteria that encourage gear uptake across both demographics.

B. Gear Description

The Council is seeking to encourage use of low bycatch gears in the swordfish fishery. The two configurations of deep-set buoy gear have been designed holistically considering specific needs of the U.S. west coast swordfish fishery – SBG is designed to augment the local harpoon fishery and LBG to support a larger volume fishery. The best available science from EFPs and collaborative research trials thus far indicate similar catch composition for SBG and LBG, with significantly lower bycatch and a higher percentage of swordfish caught with SBG and LBG than any another other gear currently authorized for targeting swordfish. There are ongoing efforts to increase the data available to continue validating these trends as we move toward authorization. Authorizing these low bycatch gears could provide more flexibility and fishing opportunities to fishermen to increase domestic production of swordfish. As such, there is support from environmental non-governmental organizations (NGOs), fishermen, and state agencies such as the California Fish and Game Commission to support immediate authorization of both configurations. Given the highly selective nature of both gear configurations, the Council should consider how dual authorization of SBG and LBG can reduce bycatch, increase economic gains in this fishery, and reduce the regulatory and administrative burden to the Council and NMFS by evaluating these similar gears in a single rulemaking.

D. Gear Deployment and Retrieval

While it is imperative to have effective, enforceable gear regulations that continue to mitigate bycatch interactions in this fishery, it is also essential to ensure that any restrictions implemented serve an explicit conservation purpose and do not create unnecessary constraints on fishing. In reviewing this range of alternatives around gear deployment and retrieval, the Council should assess if there is a specific conservation objective achieved with each proposed requirement. To encourage use of this gear, the Council must avoid inflicting unnecessary enforcement burden on fishermen, which may disincentivize use of the gear, if unrealistic parameters are implemented. Both SBG and LBG are designed to be highly selective by targeting highly migratory species below the thermocline. The primary bycatch risk associated with fishing buoy gear at night is if gear is modified to fish shallow (i.e. above 90 meters); data from the Pflieger Institute of Environmental Research (PIER) has demonstrated a significant increase in the non-target catch such as blue sharks under such nighttime, shallow fishing conditions. Provided deep-set buoy gear is actively tended, and authorized to be fished at the appropriate depth of 90 meters or greater, we encourage the Council to discuss whether an alternative needs to be considered that puts a tight time restraint on the gear retrieval process. Thus, it is critical that the Council evaluate whether a conservation benefit exists for all proposed requirements to avoid considering implementation of regulations that may not be feasible for fishermen and thus increase the likelihood of compliance violations.

E. Multiple Gears

Active tending is a key component of buoy gear operation that ensures that interactions with non-target species are immediately mitigated and increases the likelihood that the gear is available to target marketable species. Provided fishermen maintain a distance where active tending is not compromised, they should have opportunities to maximize their catch per trip by engaging in other fishing activities either concurrently or at distinct times during the trip. Allowing for this kind of flexibility in gear use is a proven hallmark of sustainable fisheries management and thriving fisheries. We encourage the Council to evaluate whether there is sufficient, concrete evidence to support and validate concerns (e.g. mislabeling of catch by gear type) surrounding use of multiple gears on a trip.

The Conservancy appreciates the opportunity to provide feedback on the draft range of alternatives to authorize deep-set buoy gear in the west coast commercial swordfish fishery. Authorization of this gear provides increased fishing opportunities while mitigating bycatch off the U.S. west coast, helping to ensure the long-term sustainability of the swordfish fishery. We anticipate that success in the west coast swordfish fishery will have far reaching, positive ecological impacts, encouraging the use of new low bycatch gears in swordfish fisheries around the globe.

Re: Agenda Item J.6 – Authorization of Deep-Set Buoy Gear and Federal Permitting

Dear Chair Anderson and members of the Council:

We write in support of the Pacific Fishery Management Council's actions to authorize deep-set buoy gear (DSBG) under the Highly Migratory Species (HMS) Fishery Management Plan (FMP). DSBG has been researched and developed for over six years with consistent results and we ask the Council to authorize a DSBG fishery without delay. While the Western Central and North Pacific Ocean stock of swordfish off California is currently considered to be healthy, it has been inaccessible due to the high rates of bycatch resulting from the current methods used. The authorization of DSBG provides the opportunity for fishermen to target this resource without the high bycatch associated with drift gillnet (DGN) and longline gear. We appreciate the thorough range of alternatives (ROA) put forward by the HMS Management Team (HMSMT) and provide the following recommendations and considerations.

Permitting Alternatives

We recommend a geographic split in permit regimes north and south of Point Conception with a limited issuance of permits in the Southern California Bight (SCB) and an open access fishery north of Point Conception. By taking this approach, the Council will prevent overcrowding in the SCB, allow the market for buoy-caught swordfish to expand gradually and provide opportunity to fishermen in northern areas where swordfish effort has been minimal since the implementation of the Pacific Leatherback Conservation Area.

South of Point Conception, we recommend the Council implement a tiered approach similar to that proposed by the HMSMT which prioritizes permit issuance first to Exempted Fishing Permit (EFP) participants that have invested in the development and advancement of DSBG followed by active DGN fishermen. The qualifications for EFP participants should include consideration of the EFP holder's contribution level and participation in the EFP fishery. We support the HMSMT's recommendation to use DSBG landings as a way to prevent speculative activity, but suggest that the requirement be increased to 20 DSBG landings in order to show substantial investment and commitment by EFP participants before granting a permit. While there are many approaches for defining what it means to be an “active” DGN fisherman, we recommend using the last five years of swordfish landings as endorsed by the HMSMT. If it is determined that more capacity in the fishery will not cause negative impacts on fishery resources or protected species additional permits could be issued during the biennial specifications process. We recommend this flexibility be incorporated into the FMP.

North of Point Conception, we recommend the Council consider an open access fishery that allows for entrants would not qualify under the above criteria due to the lack of recent swordfish fishing off northern California and Oregon. As discussed below additional observer requirements should be mandatory on the initial effort in these areas until enough data is collected to ensure there are no unforeseen impacts.

We also support inclusion in the ROA of a voluntary trade-in option for DGN fishermen who have fished in the last five years which would allow a DGN permit holder to receive two DSBG permits if they relinquish their DGN permit and dispose of their DGN gear. By offering incentives for fishermen to use DSBG, a voluntary trade-in option helps meet the draft purpose and need “to encourage the use of fishing gear in the West Coast commercial swordfish fishery that minimizes bycatch and bycatch mortality.”¹ This approach has been supported by the Advisory Subpanel and members of the DGN fleet.² Trade-in options provide compensation for DGN fishermen and, because it is a voluntary decision, it allows each individual to decide what makes the most sense for their business. Trade-in options also provide an opportunity for new entrants in the SCB by creating permits that could be transferable immediately to those who do not qualify for a permit under the initial tier of permit issuance. It also addresses National Standard 8 by offering additional and sustained opportunity in the West Coast swordfish fishery and National Standard 9 by incentivizing the use of gear with minimal bycatch.

Transferability and Durability

Limiting the transferability of DSBG permits can help ensure that permits go to those most likely to actively participate in the fishery and help grow the market for buoy-caught swordfish. We suggest permits be issued on an annual basis and transfers be limited to a qualified pool of applicants that have demonstrated participation in the DSBG fishery either through landings or crew time on a DSBG vessel. We also recommend that the initial tier of ² See Supplemental HMSAS Report, June 2017 and Supplemental HMSAS Report, November 2016 (“The HMSAS is not opposed to incentives for DGN fishermen to voluntarily transition to DSBG. For example, an option could be for fishermen to receive two DSBG permits for one DGN permits. The DSBG permits should be fully transferrable so if the Council moves in the direction of making the fishery limited entry, fisherman could then sell the extra permit.”).

permits not be transferable for 3 years unless a permit holder holds more than one DSBG permit due to a DGN permit trade-in as described above, in which case the additional permit may be transferred immediately to a qualified purchaser. We do not support a durability requirement that limits permit renewal to those that have fished in the previous year as this would not allow fishermen the flexibility to target fisheries as they become available and could force fishermen to take DSBG trips even if it would not be profitable or would preclude other opportunity.

Gear Description

DSBG is designed to target swordfish at depth while avoiding sensitive species at the surface. The current gear configurations, discussed in depth at past council meetings, are a result of several years of research and tagging data. For future clarification we support the HMSMT's recommended change in terminology using an umbrella term of DSBG that encompasses two separate gear types, standard buoy gear (SBG) and linked buoy gear (LBG). We also support the addition of radar reflectors on each piece of SBG and on the terminal ends of LBG to prevent gear loss and allow for enforcement of gear tending requirements.

We further support the approach suggested by the HMSMT under the second alternative for gear descriptions which allows for the authorization of SBG and LBG under one action and, ultimately, under one permit. However, we do not support a delay in authorizing SBG until LBG is ready for approval. The Council should develop a regulatory mechanism where both gear configurations could be authorized and only SBG would be allowed under the issued permits until sufficient data on LBG performance has been collected and analyzed by the Council. This approach ensures authorization of LBG does not result in a new class of permits and notifies the public of the Council's intent to authorize LBG pending EFP results.

Active Gear Tending/Footprint Area

A key attribute of DSBG is the active tending of gear. This provides assurances that any bycatch will be released quickly. With this in mind, we support the HMSMT definition of active tending which requires a fishing vessel to maintain a distance of no more than 3 nautical miles from any one piece of gear with two additional suggestions. We also support the addition of a total footprint area in order to ensure that all gear is set within a specified zone. After conversations with those who have fished both SBG and LBG, a 3 nautical mile footprint for SBG and a 5 nautical mile footprint for LBG would allow for proper deployment of SBG and/or LBG while still allowing the vessel to actively tend their gear. A nautical footprint any greater could diminish the integrity and intent of the gear. Active tending and serviceability of DSBG are what distinguish the DSBG design from other gear types. These attributes are why DSBG has garnered the support of a wide range of stakeholders and must be required in a fully authorized fishery.

Use of Multiple Gear Types

We understand the desire to allow the use of multiple gear types to help improve the economic productivity of a fishing trip. However, assurances that the use of other gear types will not take away from the active tending of DSBG gear are necessary. One way to approach this is to add a requirement to the definition of active tending that a vessel remain mobile and maneuverable. We further recommend that the Council require fishermen have an observer on board if they plan to fish DGN gear on the same trip as DSBG in order to ensure proper attribution of catch by different gear types.

Species Retention

Although some concerns have been raised about the potential for DSBG to be fished improperly and lead to the targeting of other species, we agree with the HMSMT that it is not necessary to further restrict species retention beyond those already prohibited under the HMS FMP. By adding a depth restriction, the Council can ensure DSBG is not being fished on the bottom and, by requiring separation of catch, managers will be able to track DSBG landings and will be alerted to misuse of the gear.

Geographic Area

Because DSBG is selective and actively tended, we support the authorization of its use outside of the areas that have been extensively tested. However, we recommend that observer coverage be required on early effort in these areas until NOAA Fisheries requirements are met. We do not support the implementation of a 150 fathom depth requirement as there is no conservation benefit that is not met by the design of DSBG, which requires all hooks to be fished below 90 meters and active tending of the gear.

Fishery Timing Restrictions

We do not recommend that the Council impose any restrictions on the season or timing of the DSBG fishery. As stated by the HMSMT, “there is no information that suggests anything other than a year round season is necessary for management purposes.” Limiting the fishery to weekdays only in the SCB could negatively impact the profitability of the DSBG fleet. The potential for gear conflicts is an understandable concern that is only expected to arise if the DSBG fishery is open access in the SCB. If gear conflicts or other issues arise that warrant restrictions on the season or timing of a DSBG fishery, the biennial management process provides the opportunity for the Council to address those impacts.

Timeline for Authorization

We request the Council keep the authorization of DSBG on track to allow for final action in June of 2018 as proposed by the current Year-at-a-Glance.³ The Council has the information it needs to adopt an ROA at this meeting, which would allow the HMSMT the time they requested⁴ for the adoption of Preliminary Preferred Alternatives at the March 2018 meeting. This would allow NMFS adequate time to conduct the analysis required for final action in June 2018.⁵

Conclusion

We support an economically and environmentally sustainable swordfish fishery off the West Coast that can supply domestic demand. Scientists, researchers, fishermen, and NGOs support DSBG as an effective method for catching swordfish with minimal bycatch. Encouraging fishermen to use fishing methods with lower bycatch rates helps the Council meet the Magnuson-Stevens Fishery Conservation and Management Act's bycatch reduction goals. To this end, we support the authorization of DSBG which has the ability to significantly reduce bycatch and bycatch mortality from what has been observed in the contemporary DGN fishery, while providing a high quality product. We look forward to working with the Council, advisory bodies, and other stakeholders to accomplish this goal.

Please reduce bycatch; authorize deep-set buoy gear

RE: Agenda Item J.6 - Authorization of Deep-Set Buoy Gear and Federal Permitting

Dear Chair Anderson and Council Members,

I am writing to ask the Pacific Fishery Management Council to adopt a range of alternatives for authorization of deep-set buoy gear and ensure that this process stays on track for final action in early 2018. In doing so, the Council can move toward more selective and actively tended fishing gear in the West Coast swordfish fishery. The research is conclusive and demonstrates that this gear is ready for approval.

Specifically, authorization should give priority to active drift gillnet permit holders and include options for the existing fishing fleet to trade in their permits for one or more deep-set buoy gear permits. Such action will incentivize fishermen to transition away from drift gillnets.

Deep-set buoy gear allows fishermen to target swordfish at depth during the day while avoiding interactions with other marine life closer to the surface. It has the support of thousands of Californians, conservation organizations, and hundreds of businesses along the seafood supply chain and in the sport fishing community. Perhaps even more important, fishermen who have used the gear agree that deep-set buoy gear is a viable alternative. Swordfish caught with this gear provides a high-quality product to the West Coast that can bring more than double the price of a swordfish caught in a drift gillnet.

Thank you for your work to promote our West Coast fisheries while ensuring protection for our ocean ecosystem.

Sincerely,

We the undersigned.
