The Integrated West Coast Pelagics Survey is an effort led by NOAA to combine the Northwest Fisheries Science Center's survey for Pacific hake with the Southwest Fisheries Science Center's survey for coastal pelagic species starting in 2025.

- We understand you may have questions, concerns and suggestions about the new Integrated West Coast Pelagics Survey.
- We'll provide a brief status update at this meeting and dedicate most of our two hours to open discussion. So please bring your questions, concerns, and ideas.
- We will host several additional public outreach events for all stakeholders throughout the US West Coast, each presenting a brief status update with an in-person and virtual option.
